Pearson in Spotlight as Leadership Session Starts

Pledges Made Not to Launch New Offensive

LONDON (AP)—Soviet informants said today they expect preliminary Vietnam peace talks to begin in Moscow next week.

They said the North Vietnamese already have assured the United States privately they will launch no major offensive if all American bombing attacks are halted.

The sources, who cannot be identified by name, said Hanoi already has begun lifting the siege of Khe Sanh as a sign of its intentions.

None of these statements could be confirmed in official Western circles.

The officials cautioned, however, against expecting an early end to the peace negotiations. They said they expected them to go for months.

Other sources recalled that 12,000 more Americans were killed in Korea while the truce talks were going on.

The Russian informants said Moscow was not consulted by Hanoi before Wednesday's conditional acceptance of President Johnson's call for peace talks.

They said that in view of Peking's present relatively-low influence in the North Vietnamese capital, they did not believe the Chinese were consulted either.

"What you Americans seem to find hard to realize is that North Vietnam is a sovereign nation," one Russian said.

Expected to Start Next Week

They said they expected the preliminary talks to get under way "very quickly—probably next week."

They said they believed the only possible sites for such talks were Moscow, Geneva or Paris and that the Soviet capital has the best chance of being chosen.

Moscow is the only capital in the world with American, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomatic representatives. Paris has a diplomatic mission from Hanoi but no official representative of the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The Soviet informants said they believed a major stumbling block, once real peace negotiations get under way, will be an American commitment to withdraw from South Vietnam.

They said this is a prime issue in Hanoi's eyes and the North Vietnamese want a definite agreement that U.S withdrawal will start the moment a peace pact is signed and will be completed within a fixed time.

The Russians did not believe Washington would easily give such an undertaking in view of the Manila agreement between the United States and its Vietnam allies that withdrawal would not begin until six months after the end of Viet Cong resistance.

The sources said they expected preliminary talks to be fairly short.

They said Moscow "has certain knowledge Hanoi has privately assured Washington that after a complete halt in bombing and other attacks on North Vietnam, the Communist forces—both Viet Cong and North Vietnamese—will refrain from launching any major offensive until conclusion or breakdown of peace negotiations.

Partial Pullback of Forces

They said a partial evacuation of forces besieging the U.S. marines at Khe Sanh already has begun and Communist forces were putting up little more than token resistance to a U.S.-South Vietnamese rescue drive up Highway 9 toward the base.

The informants said Hanoi was ready for private or public talks in accord with Washington's views both in the preliminary and the peace conference stages.

They said the North Vietnamese preferred direct negotiations between Hanoi and Washington but were willing to consider any other participant in the peace negotiations that the United States might propose.

The Soviet Union has not yet followed up a British bid for joint action to set Vietnam peacekeeping machinery in motion, qualified sources reported.

The two countries, as cochairman of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina, were urged by President Johnson Sunday night to reconvene the conference.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart called in Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky Monday and Prime Minister Wilson sent a direct message to Soviet Premier Aleyei N. Kosygin.

Informed sources said there had been no Soviet response.

Ford Talks Break Off

TORONTO (CP)—The United Auto Workers today broke off negotiations with the Ford Motor Co. of Canada and sent a telegram to striking locals saying talks will not be resumed until all workers return to their jobs. (See earlier story, Page 10.)

'GREAT SIGNIFICANCE' IN HANOI PEACE MOVE

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Moscow radio today said the importance of Hanoi's decision to meet U.S. representatives to discuss a complete halt to bombing of North Vietnam could not be overestimated.

Reporting Hanoi's response to President Johnson's partial bombing halt, the radio said: "The significance of this step, undertaken with positive peace intentions, is difficult to over-estimate. It creates real prerquisites for the liquidation of tension in Southeast Asia."

Tass news agency reported all Russian newspapers carried the Hanoi announcement today, at the same time noting that American bombing raids were continuing over North Vietnam.

Johnson Flying To Hawaii Meet

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has agreed to direct contacts on peace between North Vietnamese and U.S. representatives and leave for Hawaii late tonight to discuss peace and war prospects with top American officials from Saigon.

Johnson will meet with former president Dwight D. Eisenhower at March Air Force Base, Calif., Friday morning on the way to Honolulu.

Washington is understood to have sent a message to Hanoi informing the government of President Ho Chi Minh of U.S. readiness to meet the initial contacts on peace talks.

The first purpose, in the U.S. view, would be to set a time and place for actual talks on scaling down the war and eventually negotiating a settlement.

SITUATION SURPRISES

The situation has developed with such speed, since Johnson ordered a partial halt in the bombing of North Vietnam Sunday night, that even surprised U.S. government leaders are not sure what will happen next.

They voiced cautious optimism about peace prospects but appeared by no means certain the United States and North Vietnam can actually reach an agreement soon.

However the Washington-Hanoi agreement to talk after years of continuously expanding

Trudeau Runaway Looms at Ottawa

TEN ON FIRST BALLOT

OTTAWA (CP)—Ten men formally qualified today for the Liberal leadership race. The winner will be chosen Saturday by majority vote.

Only two of the six so-called fringe candidates managed to raise the necessary 50 signatures of voting delegates to be eligible for a place at Saturday's ballots.

They were Rev. Lloyd Henderson, 60, former mayor of Portage la Prairie, Man., and Ernest Zuendel, 29, a Montreal commercial artist.

The eight major candidates in order of filing nominations are:

Agriculture Minister Greene
Former trade minister Winters,
Former Quebec health minister Kierans,
Consumer Affairs Minister Turner,
External Affairs Minister Martin,
Health Minister MacEachen,
Justice Minister Trudeau.
Transport Minister Hellyer.

The last Liberal leadership convention in 1958 had three candidates. Lester Pearson easily defeated Mr. Martin and Mr. Henderson on the first ballot.

Three Ballots New Forecast

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Pierre Elliott Trudeau is threatening to run away with the Liberal leadership race.

Everywhere you go in this rocking convention city the big name is Trudeau.

The convention opened officially today, but many are saying that the only question is "when" and not "if" the justice minister will win in Saturday's voting.

Some predictions are Trudeau could take it in three.

Among the thousands of rumors buzzing in the halls and streets is of a proposed "stop Trudeau" alliance among the other main contenders.

The three alleged to be in the stop-Trudeau alliance are External Affairs Minister Martin, Transport Minister Hellyer and former trade minister Winters.

Spokesmen for the three denied any deals had been made but conceded there had been discussions of "various eventualities."

Supporters of Mitchell Sharp said the finance minister gave his support to Mr. Trudeau early to thwart any effort to gang up on the justice minister.

Events since the beginning of the week, and particularly in the last 48 hours, have given the Trudeau campaign the boosts needed to get a bandwagon rolling.

Excitement Follows One Man

The enthusiasm and excitement that Trudeau is creating—you can tell where he is by the jammed, shouting mob around him—is comparable to the early front-running of Robert Stanfield at the Tory convention last fall.

These are the factors:

Three major polls published at the beginning of the week showed him well in front of all the others.

Finance Minister Sharp dramatically announced Wednesday that he was throwing his organization behind the justice minister.

Premier Joey Smallwood arrived in Ottawa late Wednesday and promptly announced almost all of Newfoundland's 84 delegates will go for Trudeau—and Smallwood is a man who can deliver.

He has the full backing of seven other cabinet ministers, more than any other candidate.

Sharp's Move Significant

But the biggest boost was unquestionably the move of Sharp.

The polls showed him with only about 150 delegates, although his organization claimed this was low, and it is doubtful how many of these will automatically follow to Trudeau.

But the significant factor was Sharp's considerable prestige and reputation, and his blunt statement that Trudeau was the best man for the job next to himself.

Trudeau crystalized the situation best at a later press conference when he was asked about doubts of some delegates about his relatively unknown qualities.

He answered, referring to the finance minister: "If a man of his judgment, experience and ability can support me, I am not that bad a risk."

'My Last Hurrah,' Says PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today welcomed delegates who will pick his successor at what he called "the greatest political convention ever held in Canada."

The opening plenary session of the three-day leadership convention heard briefly from the prime minister, who also was to make a major farewell speech tonight.

He said this is "my last hurrah."

It would be a convention of "unprecedented size, unprecedented excitement and exposure."

It had been deemed worthy to compete with the Stanley Cup for attention, he said with a grin.

He hoped delegates would not "tear the city apart" in their zeal.

Turner Hits Power Deals

OTTAWA (CP) — John Turner angrily denounced "the power brokers of the Liberal party" Wednesday night and said the choice of a new Liberal leader should be left to the conscience of convention delegates.

The consumer affairs minister, at 38 the youngest candidate in the leadership race, referred to Finance Minister Sharp's withdrawal earlier in the day in favor of Justice Minister Trudeau and the decision of Newfoundland's Premier Joey Smallwood to back Mr. Trudeau.

Storm Rips U.S. Areas

CHICAGO (AP) — A monster storm punched its way through the U.S. mid-continent today after raking the middle Mississippi Valley with death-dealing tornadoes and burying parts of the Great Plains in a blizzard.

Twelve persons were killed and scores were injured Wednesday night in a rash of tornadoes which churned out of the storm system and ripped hardest at Arkansas and Tennessee.

THERE'S A LIBERAL PARTY JUST ABOUT EVERYWHERE

Legs Winning in a Walk in Convention Madness

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Convention madness engulfs the capital today with all the vigor of a Roman orgy.

It's enough to blow your mind, man.

It's all a labyrinth of color, noise, food, drink and a dizzying collection of female legs.

There are long slim legs, short plump legs, nobbly legs, all busily marching along in the greatest collection of miniskirts this side of London.

You can't have a modern political convention, or even an old-fashioned one, without a goodly selection of pretty girls and current styles have combined to make the next three days in Ottawa a feast for the manly eye.

It is also a feast for the empty tum, the parched throat and the creative imagination.

Tonight in particular delegates won't know which way to turn.

For a start some 8,000 Liberals will gather at the sparkling new Civic Centre for a fond and emotional farewell to Prime Minister Pearson.

Not all details are known as the party will spring the event simultaneously on national television starting at 8 p.m.

But there will be folk groups, fireworks and of course the Ca-na-da man, Bobby Gimby and his band.

Mr. Pearson himself has star billing as the only featured speaker at the event which will be the last occasion on which he formally addresses a Liberal gathering as Prime Minister.

When the do is over the delegates will have to go at breakneck speed to take in the late night entertainment provided by the candidates.

One of the most intriguing is Health Minister Allen MacEachen's Hawaiian splash party at the posh new Skyline Hotel.

A poolside reception is definitely a new addition to the Canadian political convention scene and it is only to be hoped that some over-zealous participant does not go down for the third time in the midst of the frolic. Mr. MacEachen cannot afford to lose a single one.

—On a more formal note Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner is throwing a mammoth dance in the stately old Chateau Laurier, some 2,000 people may turn up to be entertained by French-Canadian Chanteuse Danielle Dorice.

He Likes Our Joyce To Be PM's Hostess

OTTAWA—Who would be the official hostess at the government functions if Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a prominent bachelor, were elected prime minister?

The justice minister, asked the question at a press conference Wednesday, didn't say a word. All he did was to point to the closest pretty girl, Times Ottawa Bureau reporter Joyce Fairbairn, who was sitting in the front row (and whose married name is Mrs. Michael Gillan).

The swinging candidate was then asked, if elected, would he give up his Mercedes?

"Do you mean the girl or the car?" he replied.

TROOPS REACH BESIEGED FORT

SAIGON (CP) — Advance elements of a big U.S. relief force drove through light North Vietnamese artillery and mortar fire today to within a half mile of the beseiged marine combat base at Khe Sanh.

With resistance continuing light, Soviet informants in London said the North Vietnamese were lifting the long seige of Khe Sanh as evidence of good intentions in preliminary peace talks.

However, about 80 rounds of artillery and mortar fire hit Khe Sanh and marines striking out from the base were reported engaging with the North Vietnamese in the hills to the west.

A U.S. spokesman said he expected some of the relief force to link up with the marines inside Khe Sanh by nightfall for the first break in the siege of the fortress, now in its 11th week.

BY VICTORIA UNION

Trudeau Queried On Shipyard Policy

A commitment on West Coast shipbuilding was requested of Pierre Elliott Trudeau today by a Victoria union.

"What is your position re today's announcement that all four new destroyers are to be built in Quebec yards?" he was asked by telegram. See story on Page 11.

The query came from Victoria Local 191, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers.

Business agent Neil Hindle said the telegram said the union is speaking for all Victoria shipbuilding trade unionists.

The announcement of the contracts, worth $110 million, was made this morning at Ottawa.

The favored leadership candidate who may be next prime minister, Mr. Trudeau was also asked to state his position on "future fair sharing of contracts," said Mr. Hindle.

The union has also asked leaders of the B.C. delegation to the leadership convention which started today to bring the depressed condition of B.C. shipyards before the delegates.

"We have requested the position of all leadership candidates on this matter," Mr. Hindle added.

"We singled out Mr. Trudeau because he comes from Quebec but he has spoken out for one Canada."

Mr. Hindle said replies to the telegram will be made public.

BOMBING CUTBACK VIOLATED?

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam claimed U.S. planes raided northwest North Vietnam today, but the U.S. defence department said it has no knowledge of any planes intruding into the area beyond the 20th parallel President Johnson put off limits.

North Vietnam's official news agency earlier claimed U.S. planes bombed a populated area northwest of Hanoi—far north of the line beyond which American planes are not to bomb during Johnson's current peace drive.

Assistant Defence Secretary Phil G. Goulding said in a brief statement the North Vietnamese allegation is being investigated.

'We have no present knowledge of any such United States attack since the president's speech Sunday night," Goulding said. "Nonetheless, an immediate investigation has been ordered."

INADVERTENT?

This did not rule out the possibility that some inadvertent or accidental bombing damage may have occurred over the North.

And the chance of an inadvertent strike on North Vietnamese territory near Laos—where U.S. planes are still allowed to bomb—created concern the administration's move toward peace talks might be torpedoed.

Hanoi's official Vietnam news agency (VNA), monitored in Tokyo, said U.S. planes made three raids and dropped more than 50 bombs on a populated area 30 miles west of the capital of Lai Chau province, northwest of Hanoi. The dispatch made no mention of casualties.

war was regarded in Washington as a great breakthrough toward eventually ending the conflict.

Johnson announced in a brief late-afternoon television-radio appearance Wednesday that "we will establish contact with representatives of North Vietnam."

"Consultations with the government of South Vietnam and our other allies are now taking place," Johnson added.

A dangerous element, officials said privately, is the possibility of a split between the U.S. and South Vietnamese governments over how far and how fast to go in the search for peace.

South Korean President Park Chung Hee, whose troops are fighting alongside U.S. forces in South Vietnam, apparently will be the only foreign chief of state taking part in the weekend strategy conference in Honolulu.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu was not scheduled to take part in the Pacific meetings.

Magistrate Ostler remanded Tufford to April 11 for presentence report.

In another corner of the hotel, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin has laid on folk dancing by the famed Leux Follets of Quebec and Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau will be on hand in another room with the husband-and-wife folk singer team Ian and Sylvia.

Former trade minister Robert Winters has a discotheque set up and Eric Kierans has a choir.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp was planning beer, cider, pretzels and dancing but it is not certain if this will take place now that he has withdrawn from the race.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer will host a large reception at the Chateau and hospitality rooms for all candidates will be wide open throughout at least four hotels.

During the convention the ladies have not been forgotten and on Friday they can choose between several luncheons and receptions.

Fashion Show

Mr. MacEachen supporters will be serving high tea at a fashion show, Mr. Trudeau's sister and sister-in-law are holding a question and answer period at the National Library, Mr. Hellyer is giving a luncheon, Mrs. Paul Martin is having a lunch and fashion show and Mrs. Joe Greene will take over the parliamentary restaurant.

Although Mr. MacEachen is far from being a front runner in the race, he has come up with some of the most imaginative ideas.

One, which marks a first for North American conventions, is his own closed circuit television network which will operate through the rooms of four downtown hotels.

At a cost of close to $10,000 "AJM-TV" will produce live, filmed and video-taped segments of the convention plus local, national and international news broadcasts.

With a production crew of 35, it originally was to be the baby of the National Liberal Federation. However, they gave up when difficulties mounted about dividing television time fairly among all candidates.

Apart from these touches the hotels and convention centre is throbbing to the chanting and singing of the young supporters and a near-deafening collection of bands—jazz, brass and pipes.

And everywhere is the riot of color provided by the costumes associated with the various candidates—bright orange for Trudeau, gold for Turner, mauve for Martin, blue for Kierans, green for Winters, yellow and blue for MacEachen, and the pervasive red and white of the swarms of Hellyer cheer-leaders.

Whether it all does any good when the delegate heads for the voting booth is incalculable.

But it is loud and lively fun—an experience for the old to remember and one which may prompt the young to go ahead and involve themselves in the ever-fascinating process of politics.

Saturn Brought Back In Troubled Test Run

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) —The third stage of the Saturn V super-rocket failed to restart in space today after two second-stage engines quit earlier in a troubled flight that could delay the U.S. man-to-moon program.

Despite the premature shutdown of the second-stage engines, other engines took up the slack and the world's most powerful rocket shoved into orbit the satellite weighing 132 tons. The satellite consists of an unmanned, 28-ton Apollo VI moon ship, a dummy lunar landing capsule and the third stage.

The restart was attempted more than three hours into the flight after the satellite had circled the globe twice.

"We did not get a re-ignition," the mission control centre reported.

Controllers immediately ordered the Apollo VI separated from the third stage. This was done successfully. Then the space craft engine—instead of the dead third stage engine—was called upon to propel the craft to a point 13,832 miles in space.

From this height, the space craft will make a flaming dive back to the atmosphere at lunar return speed of nearly 25,000 miles an hour.

"If we had lost two engines like this on a lunar mission, we would not have conducted the mission. We would go to the alternate earth orbit mission," said Apollo program manager, Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips.

"We'll have to examine carefully the data for several days before we can make a decision on how serious the problem is and whether the next Saturn V is manned."

He said that astronauts could have safely achieved orbit on the flight.

'POLICY IN RUINS?'

LBJ SECRECY ANGERS AUSSIE

GORTON

. . . wasn't told

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia today was reported upset about the failure of the U.S. to take him into its confidence on bombing policy of North Vietnam.

Ian Fitchett, Sydney Morning Herald political correspondent, said the surprise announcement Sunday night by President Johnson to curtail bombing in Vietnam caused the Australian government "acute political embarrassment."

Gorton was only told of the U.S. decision about 18 hours before the president's Washington speech, Fitchett said.

He added that Gorton was not advised of Johnson's decision not to stand for another term.

Just last week, two senior cabinet ministers here, External Afairs Minister Paul Hasluck and Defence Minister Allen Fairhall, strongly supported continued bombing of North Vietnam.

POLICY 'IN RUINS'

This gave Labor Opposition Leader Gough Whitlam the chance in the House of Representatives to allege Tuesday that the government's policy on Vietnam was "in ruins."

The allegation was reported to have caused serious concern in the government which had no reply.

The federal cabinet has lodged no oficial complaint with the U.S on the short notice of the bombing restriction given to Australia.

But observers said the government appeared confident that the U.S embassy here would advise Washington that it was seriously embarrassed by the failure of Johnson to confer with Gorton well before his public announcement on the bombing.

Did de Gaulle Help It Along?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A hopeful mood has spread around the world in the wake of an apparent step toward peace in Vietnam.

In Paris, government officials said Hanoi had made a positive step towards peace and two newspapers speculated that France may have played a diplomatic role in bringing this about.

The conservative Le Figaro said President Charles de Gaulle's declaration at Wednesday's cabinet meeting that "President Johnson has taken a first step towards peace" and praising this "act of reason and political courage" gave the impression that he "knew something."

It pointed out that de Gaulle made his remarks several hours before the North Vietnamese announcement.

KNEW IN ADVANCE?

The pro-Gaullist Paris Jour said de Gaulle's remarks suggested he knew Hanoi's position in advance.

Pope Paul and UN Secretary-General U Thant, both of whom long have urged a peaceful settlement, expressed cautious optimism.

Vatican sources said the North Vietnamese offer seemed a sign of the serious desire for peace the Pope called for last December.

Britain, one of the co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference that ended the Indochina war between France and the Viet Minh, expressed readiness to help call an international conference to end the war.

SEE A STEP-UP

South Vietnamese officials today expressed surprise at the prompt response Hanoi made to President Johnson's peace initiative and warned this could only mean a stepping-up of the Communist war effort.

The officials said the Viet Cong and North Vietnam would have to increase their attacks in order to strengthen their hand at the negotiating table.

South Vietnamese diplomats saw Hanoi's readiness to talk with the Americans on ending the bombing as a move to sidestep the thorny quest of Viet Cong representation at any peace talks.

But they said South Vietnam's attitude was clear—the North Vietnamese delegation to any talks could include Viet Cong representatives in a "master-servant" relationship.

Leaders of two of the five allies fighting alongside South Vietnam and the United States commented favorably.

For Australia, Prime Minister John Gorton issued a statement welcoming the "seeds of hope" in Vietnam.

New Zealand Prime Minister Keith Holyoake said that the North Vietnamese announcement was "on the face of it encouraging."

In Tokyo, where Foreign Minister Takeo Miki described the Hanoi statement as a great step forward, the stock market surged forward today in the expectation that Japan could expect large orders for materials required in post-war rehabilitation.

South Korean leaders met at President Chung Hee Park's palace in Seoul today to discuss the situation but no statement was issued.

Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he hoped U.S.-North Vietnamese discussions "would lead to a cessation of war acts, and I would hope a ceasefire and a solution to the war."

"It's the first break—it's the only break—we've had in 3½ years," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

But Senators Charles H. Percy, Stuart S. Symington and Bourke B. Hickenlooper were among those urging caution until Hanoi's motives were clearer.

South Vietnam Gov't Welcomes Peace Moves

By BARRY KRAMER

SAIGON (AP — The government of South Vietnam said today it welcomes current moves to bring about peace talks between the United States and North Vietnam.

In its first official reaction to Hanoi's offer to meet U.S. representatives, President Nguyen Van Thieus government said it is consulting with the United States and other allies "regarding the contacts to be undertaken with North Vietnamese authorities for the purpose of exploring the possibilities for eventual negotiations to end the war.

This was in sharp contrast to a statement by a largely Roman Catholic bloc in the Vietnamese House of Representatives which charged that Hanoi's offer was "only a trick to get the United States to stop the bombing unconditionally.

ASKS BOMBS RESUME

The statement by 21 of the House's 135 members called for resumption of full-scale bombing and expressed opposition to the visit to the United States planned by President Thieu.

The government communique was issued after Thieu held a conference with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and then met with Bunker and the ambassadors of the five other nations with troops fighting alongside the South Vietnamese—South Korea, Australia, the Philippines, Thailand and New Zealand.

'GESTURE TO TEST LBJ SINCERITY'

LONDON (Reuters) — A North Vietnam representative in London today said Hanoi's offer of exploratory talks with the U.S. was a goodwill gesture to test President Johnson's sincerity.

Nguyen Van Sao, London correspondent of the North Vietnam news agency, was interviewed on BBC radio. The BBC said he telephoned their questions to Paris from where they were passed on to Hanoi.

The answers came back "with unusual speed," the BBC said.

A Seed of Peace

IT IS TOO EARLY YET TO SEE President Johnson's curtailment of the bombing of North Vietnam, and Hanoi's response to the gesture, as anything but a possible hope for peaceful settlement of the war. So much suspicion and animosity have grown up between the leaders in Washington and those in Hanoi that a sudden break in the situation doesn't seem to be in the cards.

The first thing to be noted about the Hanoi response is that there is as yet no mention of peace talks. What has been offered are talks on unconditional cessation of the bombardment of the North as a first step toward peace. If this is taken up by the United States—and indications are that it will be—the hard bargaining will begin. It is difficult to see how Mr. Johnson could trade anything less than a commitment by North Vietnam to stop all infiltration of troops and supplies into the South in return for the bombing halt. In some respects this would be a return to the San Antonio formula which Hanoi has refused to accept, but with the important distinction that the United States will have taken the initiative and put the pressure of world opinion on Hanoi to reciprocate. The North Vietnamese must also be aware that if they do not make a positive response within a reasonable time political realities in the United States will almost surely demand a frightening retribution.

There are three major elements which will make bargaining for peace extremely difficult—China, the Viet Cong, and the Saigon regime. It seems to be a reasonable assumption that the Soviet Union would be pleased to see and would help to negotiate a settlement which both the United States and North Vietnam could accept with honor. It is just as reasonable to suppose that this would not please Peking since it would strike at the roots of the Red Chinese policy of supporting "wars of national liberation" and would appear to give points to the Soviet Union in the ideological quarrel which has split the two leading Communist nations.

The Viet Cong and Saigon are factors in this struggle which will be very difficult to reconcile and yet there obviously can be no settlement in which they don't concur. It would be a mistake to assume that the National Liberation Front, of which the Viet Cong are the military arm, will simply cease to exist on orders from Hanoi, or that North Vietnam would abandon them to systematic destruction by Southern forces. And it would be unrealistic to expect the present regime in Saigon to accept the NLF in a coalition government. Both these forces will have to be neutralized in some way if there is to be peace in Vietnam.

It has often been pointed out that peace talks in Korea dragged on for two years after a cease-fire was arranged and that intermittent conflict is still going on. And yet, in many respects, settlement of the Vietnam war would appear to be even more difficult to arrange since its roots are deeply embedded in the South. While the outlook is more hopeful today than it has been for years, it is too optimistic to assume that peace is just around the corner in Vietnam.

Support from Mr. Sharp

DOES FINANCE MINISTER Sharp's firm endorsement of Justice Minister Trudeau as his candidate for leadership of the Liberal party, and Mr. Pearson's successor as prime minister, guarantee a Trudeau victory and take all the excitement out of the convention which opened in Ottawa today? A reasonable assessment would be that neither is a foregone conclusion, that while Mr. Sharp's championing of Mr. Trudeau should be of great help to the latter it won't by itself assure him first place.

Mr. Sharp's own hold on voting delegates is judged to have been very slim, almost marginal, prior to his withdrawal from the contest, so that what he has to pass on to Mr. Trudeau are his reputation for honesty, integrity and prudence, rather than a large bloc of supporters who will follow his lead. Mr. Trudeau's chance of success is still mainly going to rest on his own efforts to convince the delegates that he is the leader for whom the party, and the country, is looking.

Unless all the political experts are wrong there are many delegates who arrived in Ottawa either uncommitted or less than firmly committed to any single candidate. More than at any previous Liberal leadership convention, they came to look, to listen and be convinced. The platform speeches of the candidates tomorrow night are therefore of cardinal importance. No doubt there will be attempts to make "deals" but the willingness of delegates to vote as they are told by bloc managers is very much in question. If Mr. Trudeau handles himself well on the platform his chances of winning appear to be good. But the possibility of further surprises, possible withdrawals and switches of support, cannot be discounted nor can their effect on the final outcome.

Flaws in the School Bill

THE WEIGHT OF THE GOVernment majority can push amendments to the school act through the legislature, as the vote on Tuesday night disclosed. That procedure, however, will be less than satisfactory to the people directly concerned by some of the significant changes—the school trustees to whom are entrusted the task of running the school districts. They need more information from the minister, and it is not good enough for him to discount their capacities nor their sense of responsibility.

Members of the opposition have stated some of the objections school boards raise to certain terms of the bill. It vests exceptional power in the minister of education—power which, as Mr. Strachan puts it, allows him to make arbitrary decision that could reflect "not the needs of education but the political needs of the government."

The power is implicit in the control he assumes over the basic program for which the government provides its own contribution from revenue and fixes the mill rate to be assessed against municipal taxpayers and those in unorganized territory. If, for instance, the familiar conflict over expenditure for brains or backtop should arise, the minister could so tailor the basic program that education could be down-graded to finance highways.

Should a school board consider the basic program thoroughly inadequate, or wish to give its district more than the minimum, it could still spend up to 10 per cent more without approval from any source. But if the budget were to exceed that 10 per cent, then approval would be required from the taxpayers, the municipalities or the cabinet. The latter requirement is one of the new amendments.

The minister has every right to defend the policy of equalizing, as far as possible, the educational opportunities provided in different parts of the province. This is a philosophy his government inherited from its predecessor. But his explanations to date have not convinced the public that the equalization would not be a levelling down of the educational program to what some have called mediocrity.

FROM QUEBEC CITY

By STAN McDOWELL

The Bandwagon Drowns 'the Difference'

THE Liberal leadership candidates campaigned through Quebec echoing the words of one of her most famous sons — not Wilfrid Laurier, not Louis St. Laurent, but Maurice Duplessis — "Quebec is not a province like the others." They said it thoughtfully, as if they knew what it meant. But as the campaign ended the truth of the old chief's slogan was more than ever open to doubt.

McDowell

The shape of the campaign and the shape Quebec voters are expected to take on the first ballot Saturday show more similarities than differences between Quebec and the other provinces.

The latest surveys suggest that, once the undecided delegates have been heard from, Pierre Trudeau should be nearing 300 Quebec votes, Paul Martin should have about one half as much strength as Mr. Trudeau and Paul Hellyer about half as much as Mr. Martin. Robert Winters and John Turner are behind Mr. Hellyer, and then Eric Kierans.

Anxious to Back Winner

The desire to back a winner appears to account more than any constitutional debate for the shifts of support as the campaign neared its end. Paul Martin's chief gains in Quebec were made during the period in which his chances of winning looked best. When surveys began giving Mr. Trudeau the lead in the country as a whole his support in Quebec surged ahead again. And Mr. Hellyer picked up strength as it began to appear increasingly possible that he, rather than Mr. Martin, would be Mr. Trudeau's strongest rival.

No more than any other province is Quebec going in a bloc for one candidate. The Trudeau backing is strong — strong enough to prove that his constitutional views arouse no unanimous resistance among Quebec's population — but it has been built up, delegate by delegate. In most ridings support is divided.

And if the constitutional issue has had heavy discussion on the editorial pages — some for and others against Mr. Trudeau — it has taken second place at delegate's meetings to the conflicts and rivalries among groups within the party organization.

Some of the delegates who support Mr. Trudeau do not wholly share his constitutional views. And some who do share his views are supporting other candidates.

Government Policy

Rival candidates have been cramped in attacking Mr. Trudeau's constitutional policy because it has also been the government's policy. But to the three who have gone far enough in this direction to draw comment from Quebec editorial writers, only Mr. Martin has really significant support in Quebec. And his strength is drawn mainly from areas where the strength of the local Union Nationale machine, rather than any constitutional abstraction, is the chief concern of Liberal party workers.

Mr. Trudeau himself has been applauded, even on such occasions as a dinner meeting of a suburban Saint-Jean Baptiste Society, for saying that the standard of living of the people is much more important than constitutional questions.

Frictions produced by recent and rapid change in the organizational structure of the party in Quebec have had a measurable effect on the campaign.

The ascendency of the reform wing, clustered around Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, has irritated both the old guard and some party members who felt they were the leaders of the new guard before Mr. Marchand and Mr. Trudeau were elected in 1965.

Until then Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve had been the most publicized reformer — although the late Guy Favreau was a major, if publicly unrecognized, force in cleaning up the old organization.

Mr. Sauve was overshadowed by the arrival of Mr. Marchand, has since kept his distance from the Marchand group, and is now a supporter of Mr. Martin.

The heaviest concentration of old guard men is among Mr. Hellyer's Quebec support. One prominent old guarder, however, recently made a public declaration that he was not working for Mr. Hellyer. He said that those who said he was were merely trying to damage Mr. Hellyer's reputation.

The aura that hangs around Mr. Hellyer's Quebec team — is seen here as an obstacle to second choice support for him. Mr. Hellyer is personally popular among delegates. But some of them are unwilling to risk helping the old guard back to power.

These factional rivalries appear to be the chief source of charges of armtwisting made against Mr. Marchand. Mr. Marchand has vehemently denied the complaints which have, in fact, been made by accusers who insisted on remaining anonymous.

This reporter has been unable to find a single delegate who says he was pressured to support Mr. Trudeau. One case of pressure did turn up. But that was a delegate who had been for Mr. Trudeau but was persuaded into supporting another candidate. The delegate, a municipal alderman, was told he would get no suppport in the next civic election unless he changed his commitment.

Fear that Mr. Trudeau would be identified unfavorably in the public mind with Criminal Code reform on such issuse as abortion and homosexuality led some members of parliament early in the campaign to drop their support for him in favor of another candidate.

Fading Issues

This issue has appeared to weigh more heavily among MP's, who must think first of public opinion in their own riding, than it has on the delegates. Abortion, particularly, has had lengthy discussion in the newspapers. But as a political issue in this campaign its importance appears to have faded.

Economic development, particularly in backward regions, remains a major preoccupation among delegates.

The fact that Mr. Trudeau is a French Canadian, and that Mr. Martin is at least as much French as English, is not often mentioned. It is considered important that both men are perfectly bilingual. But few delegates say they favor either man as "one of our own." And Mr. Hellyer has gained support through his ability to speak a French that puts his listener at ease.

The greatest impact of the language issue has been on the effectiveness of a candidate whose French is not good enough to put his ideas across, or make himself or his listeners comfortable, but not bad enough to make him just drop it and say what he means in English as Robert Winters does.

Letters

Duty As Christians

Much comment has arisen, following the sermon by Rev. Bob Morris on Vietnam. "Keep politics out of the Church" has been the cry. But in support of Mr. Morris, let it be known that to speak boldly on behalf of those who suffer injustice and oppression, in any situation, is not "preaching politics," but is to remind us of our duty and privilege as citizens. Those who would claim to be Christian are to be constantly reminded of this. Our concern is for any in need, be they hungry, homeless, lonely, or the victims of war, racial prejudice, or members of minority groups.—Mrs. J. E. Smith, 2777 Kingswood.

No Job for UN

Mr. Lester Pearson's suggestion that now is the time for the United Nations to intervene in Vietnam is singularly inappropriate and shows that Mr. Pearson is entirely out of touch with Asian realities. Personalities as different as General Ky and Ho Chi Minh have stated that the real need is for the two Vietnams to be reunited and to end foreign domination, and these seem to be the common objectives of most Vietnamese. Each faction, of course, wants union on its own terms, but the Vietnamese should be left to fight out this essentially-civil war by themselves. They cannot do each other nearly as much harm as does the United States with its enormous fire-power.

As to the United Nations, it has completely discredited itself in Korea since the war there. More than 50,000 United States troops, in the guise of a United Nations force, have done everything in their power to keep the country divided, in spite of the presence of a so-called UN Commission for the Reunification and Rehabilitation of Korea. — Mrs. W. Burchill, 1525 Davie.

Just Lucky

It is a wonder there aren't more accidents than there are. People driving cars turn the corner when it says "Walk" for the pedestrians, who are liable to be knocked down any time.—A Safe Driver for 20 Years.

Insult to Human Dignity

After reading the new ruling by the provincial government, which makes unconventional dress a bar against welfare benefits, I felt both sadness and disgust. The bureaucrats would do well to realize, that we as a society are responsible for the hippy element, because this society created it. In my opinion the hippies are a symptom of a sick, dollar-oriented way of life. The very fact that education is equated with the ability to make money, and that an individual's worth is measured by his ability to make money for his employer is indicative of the sickness. As far as I am concerned the provincial governments ruling is an insult to human dignity.——David Fraser, 1205 Fernwood.

Give B.C. Back

I read with a great deal of interest an article by John Mika March 30—"Can Mr. Bennett survive all these things?" Mr. Mika must be an analyst with very high rating. His observations are realistic, leaving very little for readers' comments. However, there is still room for one more: It is time for the premier and his party to give British Columbia back to Canada.—Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Rd.

FROM WASHINGTON

By CHARLES BARTLETT

Left by LBJ on the Limb

TO assess the political influence which Lyndon Johnson will retain and to anticipate how he will use it in the months ahead it is important to examine closely what he has done to date. The reasonableness of his withdrawal in personal terms, is unchallenged. His last two years in the White House have been a searing ordeal which the campaign promised to cap. He faced the fight of his life to win four more years in a job which he has, it now appears, never enjoyed.

Bartlett

The dimension of Mr. Johnson's public service and the adversities which he encountered and the uncertainty of his health yield him every right to follow the example of Harry Truman, who declared his intention to withdraw at almost the same date in 1952.

But his residual political leverage will be diminished by the exposed and somewhat betrayed feeling of those who looked to him to contain the Democratic party's peace movement. He appears at first blush to be relinquishing the party to his critics.

The lofty purpose of reconciling the nation with which he adorned his decision has not completely obscured its personal inconsistency. By his fighting political stance, he persuaded almost everyone that he would see the battle through. A host of politicians, officials, and friends took positions for which they may now be penalized because he asked for their help.

There were some like Robert McNamara who sensed all along that Mr. Johnson would step aside if he could do it with honor and presumably with a clear prospect of being re-elected if he did run. But almost no one suspected that Mr. Johnson would walk away from a shambles.

Little Inspiration

Moreover the President's reluctance to meet Kennedy in head-on competition does not inspire the party regulars to believe that he will play a strong hand in organizing the party against Kennedy. His speech indicated in fact that he wants to go out as an elder statesman, beyond the vicissitudes of factional struggles.

If the President does determine to pick his successor, he will find it difficult to regather the reins of party leadership because he has not held them tightly, as Mr. Truman did. All the loyalties, contacts, and courtesies which bind the rank-and-file to their leader have been diffused by Mr. Johnson's detachment.

The President's influence may also be undercut by the Democrats' drift away from his position on Vietnam. The temptation will be increasingly strong to nominate a peace candidate on a peace platform and leave it to Richard Nixon to uphold the cause of containing Communism in Vietnam.

If the mood moves in this direction, the President might pull away from his party as it pulled away from him. He has made no secret of his great admiration for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and if the Republicans should nominate him as their best hope against Kennedy, Mr. Johnson would face a temptation to repudiate the insurgents who had snatched the party from his hands.

The Democrats are left with an intricate situation involving complex men and animosities. They promise that the road to the Chicago convention may still be a lively one.

From the Times, April 4, 1908:

Extensive development work will shortly be commenced at the Nootka marble quarries on the west coast. Echoes of U.S. History In Johnson's Decision

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University. Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University.)

Fisher

Almost one hundred years to the day from the opening of the impeachment trial of President Andrew Johnson, on March 30, 1868, presided over by Chief Justice Salmon Portland Chase, President Lyndon Johnson has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election as President of the United States.

It was almost 16 years to the day from the cryptic announcement of President Harry S. Truman, on March 30, 1952, "I shall not be a candidate for re-election."

Crowe

History never repeats itself precisely, but there are elements of both of these events, and of the failure of incumbent President Chester Arthur to secure re-nomination in 1884, in the developments of the past few days.

Andrew Johnson, Chester Arthur, Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson each became president upon the death of a president, and the term of office of each came to an end in very great tribulation in which the problems of the nation were being laid at the doorstep of the presidency.

The second two, Truman and Lyndon Johnson, did win one mandate on their own after moving up from the vice-presidency.

The assassination of Lincoln by John Wilkes Booth brought Andrew Johnson to the highest office in the land. The progressive deterioration of relations between Congress and the president as they sought by conflicting means to reweave the South into the fabric of the Union, ended with the president in the dock before the Senate, accused of a wide range of misdemeanors.

The verdict of history is that the misdemeanors, the offences against the Constitution, were on the part of Congress, and not of the president. Andrew Johnson's offence was a political and not a constitutional one. He wished to go in one direction while the Congress and the people wished to go in another.

Although he had been Lincoln's running mate in the 1864 wartime election, he was a Democrat and not a Republican. In the 1868 post-impeachment election, the acquitted Johnson was not considered as a candidate by either party.

As a minor footnote to history, he was elected to the Senate a few years later.

The assassination of Garfield by Charles J. Guiteau brought Chester Arthur to the presidency in 1881. The progressive deterioration of relations between the president and his party denied him renomination in 1884.

★ ★ ★

He had been one of the main dispensers of patronage in New York for the Republican Party. Although he had risen above his past while in the post of chief executive of the nation, like so many others, growing to the office there was little respect for Arthur as he was unable to adjust the presidency to an industrialized America.

Republican professionals turned to General Sherman who marched through them just as he had marched through Georgia.

General Sherman said to them: "I would account myself a fool, a madman, an ass, to embark anew, at 65 years of age, in a career that might at any moment become tempest-tossed by the perfidy, the defalcation, the dishonesty, or neglect of any one of 100,000 subordinates utterly unknown to the President of the United States, not to say the eternal worriment of a vast host of impecunious friends and old military subordinates."

★ ★ ★

So they ended up with another Arthur in James G. Blaine.

The death of Franklin D. Roosevelt brought Harry Truman to the White House. He secured a term for himself in his surprise defeat of Thomas E. Dewey in 1948. He had taken the nation through the last days of the war and into the cold war, and had made some of the most difficult decisions which any American president had ever been called upon to make.

But by 1952 he was bogged down in Korea and unable to provide effective leadership in a counter-offensive against the misanthropic, witch-hunting Senator Joseph McCarthy at home. The feeling was growing in America that it would take a new president, uncommitted to existing policies, to end the war in Korea, and to establish dignity and perspective at home.

When the move began to draft General Eisenhower as the Republican candidate, and there appeared to be widespread support for this, President Truman made his announcement not to run, and set to work to secure the Democratic nomination for Adlai Stevenson.

★ ★ ★

The assassination of John F. Kennedy by Lee Harvey Oswald put Lyndon Johnson into the presidency in 1963. The following year he was nominated for re-election and in a landslide victory defeated a man who was not acceptable to a large segment of the Republican Party he represented.

By 1968 President Johnson found himself in a position which was very similar to that which confronted President Truman in 1952.

In Vietnam he was mired down in an even more impossible war than Truman had been in Korea. Once again there was developing across the nation the belief that only a new president could cut through the web of policies and fallacies and extricate the Republic.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON
. . . great tribulation

At home the relations between white and black were worsening steadily, and an increasingly frightened people were looking toward a summer of violence. The McCarthy scare, in retrospect, seemed mild in comparison.

Just as the McCarthy erosion of American liberties fed upon the humiliating war in Asia, so the failure in 1968 to meet the problems of race and urban poverty was in large measure the result of another Asian war.

The hope was emerging, in the primaries of New Hampshire and in Wisconsin, and in California, that a new chief executive in the White House once again would see America out of old policies and impossible dilemmas.

It is a precise analogy to Truman and 1952, although the dangers to the Republic are infinitely greater and more complex.

★ ★ ★

But it is also similar to Arthur and 1884, with challenging forces arising within the President's own party, in Senators Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy. And it is a reflection of Andrew Johnson and 1868, in the widening gap in credibility, the growing chasm between the President and influential senators like Fulbright, the president-congressional gulf in foreign policy, defence, expenditures and taxation.

The end of the Johnson policies is now in sight. We have sufficient faith in the American system to believe that what motivated Lyndon Johnson will inspire him in his remaining months of office.

Humming Birds Return To Enliven Our Gardens

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Last week the first hummingbirds arrived from the south, well within the period in which they are normally expected. They soon discovered the blossoms of the red flowering currant, one of their favorite snack bars, and as long as the blooms produce nectar they are regular visitors every day.

Carl

First sign of their arrival is usually the buzzing sound of their flight and a sharp eye will pick out their tiny forms as they move from flower to flower in search of food.

In our area we have only the one kind that is commonly seen, the Rufous Hummingbird, but the two sexes are so unlike that an observer may be fooled into thinking several species are present. The more brilliant ones of course, are the males, respendent in reddish-brown upper parts, which accounts for the name rufous, topped off with a flaming red, iridescent throat. Females have a greenish back with rufous on the sides and at the base of the tail, and they lack the metallic gorget on the throat.

To add to the confusion the males are only present for a short time. After a period of courting followed by mating they literally buzz off and are seen no more in the breeding area for the rest of the season. Only the females remain to incubate the pair of eggs and to rear the young of the year which appear later.

To most persons hummingbirds have a special fascination because of their small size, jewel-like appearance and their spectacular flight. To the naturalist they have an additional appeal because of the ingenious ways these smallest of birds have solved certain mechanical and biological problems. Some recently developed techniques in their care and study, as reported in Walter Scheithauer's "Hummingbirds" (Thomas Y. Crowell Co. New York, 1967) have revealed or confirmed some surprising details.

Our particular hummer is one of the smallest, being less than one-tenth the size of a canary, yet it travels one of the longest routes on migration. Most of our birds appear to move from Southern California to British Columbia in the spring and to retrace the route in the fall but some may travel from Central America as far north as Alaska, a maximum distance of about 2,200 miles.

Straight away flight is swift. There are no figures for Rufous hummingbirds but species similar in size have been clocked at speeds between 29 and 47 miles per hour with wingbeats of about 32 strokes per second. The wingbeat of the Rufous is from 35 to 37 per second reaching an unbelievable 200 strokes per second during courtship display of the male.

The rapid wing beat, of course, produces the humming sound which is characteristic of these birds in flight. In one set of experiments the vibration set up by a hummingbird flying in an aviary loosened a large pane of glass tearing away screws and angle-iron that held it in place.

How such a mite of a bird can produce such large amounts of energy has been a nagging problem for years. Mr. Scheithauer has helped solve the riddle by measuring accurately the amount of food eaten by certain caged individuals. One species, a bit larger than a Rufous, consumed in a 16-hour day 73 per cent of its body weight in honey plus 677 fruit flies. To do this the bird drank 267 times, on an average of once every 3.6 minutes, and rested no longer than 10 minutes at a time. If one includes the water in which the honey was dissolved the total intake of food per day was over 8 times the weight of the bird.

Even with this incredibly large intake a hummingbird would have difficulty living through a long tropical night with no opportunity to feed. This problem is solved by an internal mechanism that permits the body temperature to drop to a low point; the bird falls into a deep energy-conserving sleep akin to hibernation until aroused by the heat of the sun the following morning.

For the next few weeks the zip of wings and scolding "chit, chit" call of rival males will liven up our spring gardens to be followed by the less strident buzz of their more sedate mates who remain to tend to domestic duties for most of the summer season.

Sharp's Blessing Means Trudeau Can't Be Stopped

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—Mitchell Sharp's dramatic declaration in favor of Pierre Trudeau means the justice minister is virtually unstoppable in his drive to claim the prime ministership of Canada.

The psychological impact of the Sharp switch greatly outweighs any actual transfer of delegates that may be involved. By aligning himself with Trudeau, Sharp has quieted the fears many Liberals felt about gambling on Trudeau as prime minister. With Sharp as his righthand man, Trudeau becomes a candidate blessed by the Liberal establishment, of which Mitchell Sharp has always been a charter member.

Newman

In terms of the convention itself, Sharp's move brings to Trudeau's aid a cadre of top-flight political workers, including his executive assistant, Michael McCabe, who'll supply some of the brains and muscle Trudeau must have to win.

Sharp's decision, taken to deliberately sabotage the anti-Trudeau axis being sponsored by Paul Martin and his supporters, was a rare act of political courage.

Unyielding

As he made his emotion-charged withdrawal announcement in Ottawa yesterday, Sharp's decent face was as tough and unyielding as the rubber in a handball.

There were no open tears among his supporters who jammed the room because Sharp has moved few Liberal hearts during his political career. Yet there was genuine regret that this upright and talented man had been deprived of the chance to seek the nation's top job, not because he lacked the qualifications, but because circumstances had conspired to rob him of the opportunity.

Here was a politician in whom every Canadian — not just every Liberal — could feel total confidence and now all his integrity would be placed in the service of another man.

Sharp made it clear that no deals had been offered to him nor had he asked for any. "I am backing Mr. Trudeau not because I think he's going to win, but because I want him to win," he said.

At the end of the conference, when a few colleagues gathered about him to express their condolences, Sharp shrugged his spare shoulders and smiled, as though these were the only responses a rational man could make to the incongruities of human existence.

Splitting Up

The fact that Sharp's delegates are now splitting up to back many different candidates proves how difficult it will be to put together any voting coalition to stop the justice minister from winning on Saturday.

A secret tally of delegates' second and third preferences, calculated by the computer the Trudeau group has rented for the convention, indicates that there is no clear pattern of optional support. In other words, when candidates at the low end of the first ballot on Saturday make their switches to the top contenders, they will not be able to commit their delegates any more than Sharp was yesterday.

There is no consensus among delegates about their second choices. Many of those who are committed feel so loyal to their first-ballot preference that they haven't thought through their ultimate votes and indeed won't even concede that it may be necessary to switch.

Only Two Blocs

No matter how many tentative deals are made on behalf of Paul Martin, Paul Hellyer, Robert Winters or John Turner, their delegates are not going to respond to regimented direction. This is less true of the regional voting blocks controlled by the power barons Joey Smallwood (who is supporting Trudeau) and Ross Thatcher (who favors Robert Winters). The only two candidates who control a block of delegates similar in kind to the unchanging support Davie Fulton showed at the Tory convention are Allan MacEachen, whose backing is of the tenacious favorite-son variety, and Eric Kierans, whose partisans feel such intense personal admiration for him that they'll probably go wherever he does.

The Paul Martin camp has been desperately trying to put together some kind of stop-Trudeau movement this week with little discenible success. Duncan Edmonds, the Martin campaign manager, approached the Sharp people yesterday but was unceremoniously rebuffed.

The weakening of Martin's support (he is now thought to be running third, behind Paul Hellyer) has been due to a psychological shift of mood within the Liberal hierarchy. Defeatism was rampant in the party in January when the race began. Many Liberals conceded that they would probably be beaten by the Conservatives in the next election and they seemed resigned to going into opposition with Paul Martin.

Now in the heat of the campaign, they feel that they can win the next election and Martin no longer looks like the natural inheritor of Liberal power.

Self-Generating

The enormous publicity given to Trudeau's high rate of delegate commitment is having a self-generating effect. While his people concede that it would be no more possible than for any of the other contenders for Trudeau to deliver his delegates to another candidate, his front-running position makes him a special case.

There are few political tricks more difficult than prying delegates loose from a man who looks as though he has the nomination virtually won. For a delegate to stick with a loser for ideological or personal reasons is an honorable decision. But few delegates can contemplate the possibility of going from a winner to a loser and for that reason, if no other, the Trudeau commitments will probably hold from ballot to ballot.

The Trudeau organization is taking advantage of the situation by gradually shifting its emphasis from the wooing of individual delegates to persuading the workers who surround each major candidate that Trudeau should be their only option after their own man has been lobbed off.

UN Trade Meeting 'Theatre of Absurd'

By BERNARD NOSSITER
The Washington Post

NEW DELHI — When the huge United Nations trade conference began two months ago, no realistic observer expected much from it. But the performance staged here, a kind of international theatre of the absurd, surpassed even the most pessimistic projections.

For eight weeks, 1,600 officials from 130 sovereign states have been wrangling with talmudic intensity over superbly irrelevant questions.

They have been debating whether a toothless proposal for foreign aid should urge the rich to give one per cent of their gross national product or one per cent of their net national income. They have been arguing whether nonexistent buffer stocks for nonexistent commodity agreements should be financed by private or public capital.

At best, this second United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), called to help narrow the gap between rich and poor, could have moved in only one limited area. It might have given some stimulus to a fresh notion, a rewriting or world trading rules to fix special cutrate tariffs for the products of the poor.

In the event, the poor countries preferred rhetoric for substance and the scheme of tariff preferences is now further from being realized than ever.

Less Concern

Why did the millions of words and the 55 tons of documents produce so little? There is a private consensus in all camps that one factor above all accounts for the dismal failure here: help for the developing southern hemisphere has become a decreasing concern of the rich, capitalist West and the comfortably placed, Communist East.

The West is much more absorbed with its own problems: monetary disorders; the quality of life in Rome, Paris or Detroit; and for the richest of the rich, the war in Vietnam. The East too is much more concerned with homely things: the demands of Communist consumers, the economic reforms they have inspired and the political turmoil that this has engendered in what used to be called a bloc.

In both camps, moreover, there is a growing cynicism about the developing nations and the conference here encouraged it. There is a suspicion that most of the new nations are run by reckless and incompetent leaders. (A French official points contemptuously at the Africans he has just manipulated and says, "Ils sont farceurs — they are jokers.")

Not Working

There is a disbelief that help from the rich will materially alter affairs in the south. Most of all, there is a Calvinistic conviction that the poor are not working hard enough to help themselves. (A Soviet friend remarks, "Forty years ago, we were as backward as some of them, but we worked and sacrificed; they do neither.")

Rationalization or no, the north feels less and less of a moral claim from the south. Just as important, the rivalry for allegiance among the poor has been diminished. Both the United States and the Soviet Union have put limits on the price they will pay for dubious allies and both are increasingly less concerned about competition from an internally torn China.

More than once at the conference here, American and Russian officials quietly met together to delete some offensive language from a resolution or block some parliamentary manoeuvre by the poor.

To be sure, there were other reasons for the failure at Delhi. UNCTAD is a clumsy body, badly designed to do serious work. Its members take positions only as members of groups — as Asians, Latin Americans, Africans, rich Westerners or near-rich Easterners.

Even worse, the three groups of poor do not adopt a line until all their members, from Malawi to Mexico, agree. This approach guarantees that the most intransigent nay-sayer will have its way and places a premium on the lowest common denominator of inaction.

Holding the conference in India did not improve the slim chance for useful results. Delegates saw on their arrival at Bombay the stunning luxury high-rise apartments built by tax-dodging speculators and the fetid hovels of squatters.

They wrestled daily with the slovenliness of Indian life. They experienced the national lack of fellow-feeling every time they rode in a car. They read each morning of clashes between Hindus and Moslems, of corrupt state governments collapsing, or violence from Kerala to Assam.

The second UNCTAD may well be a watershed in relations between north and south. It could mark the point at which the poor decided they had better rely on themselves for development and look for little from the rich.

During the conference, the West announced that it had finally agreed on more money for the World Bank's International Development Association (IDA). But this could also be the last substantial collaborative aid effort for a long time to come.

Individual Aid

The bitterness and frustration here will have its effects on individual aid programs too. The American embassy in New Delhi, a warm supporter of help to India, is deeply disturbed over the UNCTAD showing.

UNCTAD was created by the poor over the opposition of the rich to bring pressure on the wealthy. It will survive the debacle here — bureaucracies die hard — and there is even some chance that its techniques may be reformed.

But its ability to influence the policies of the more or less affluent north have been seriously compromised by the wordy and futile eight weeks in New Delhi.

Justice Minister Stays Cool As Bandwagon Picks Up Steam

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau arrived at the Liberal leadership convention Wednesday and screams of enthusiasm and mounting influential support following in his wake.

Through it all the 46-year-old bachelor remained a cool cat.

By his side, smiling broadly, was Mr. Trudeau's latest psychological boost from cabinet — ex-leadership candidate — Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp.

From the far reaches of Newfoundland Premier Joey Smallwood breezed in to pledge his province's 84 delegates to Mr. Trudeau—most on the first ballot and all of them on the second.

And in a more light-hearted vein the justice minister was engulfed in a stampede of banner-waving supporters ranging from babies to businessmen as he stepped from a private railway car to begin the last crucial steps toward Saturday's leadership vote.

With the convention not even officially opened Mr. Trudeau had already picked up some formidable pledges in a matter of hours.

Love Feast

By dinner time they numbered one highly respected candidate, three more cabinet ministers and one very bouncy premier plus whatever that implies in additional delegates.

Mr. Sharp's withdrawal from the race in favor of Mr. Trudeau remained the big story of the day and the two cabinet colleagues put on a political love feast for newsmen and delegates alike.

The finance minister brought with him Energy Minister Jean Luc Pepin, Revenue Minister Jean Chretien and Industry Minister Charles M. Drury to swell Mr. Trudeau's cabinet supporters to seven ministers, the largest of any candidate.

Already committed to him are Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, Treasury Board President Edgar Benson, and minister without portfolio Bryce Mackasey.

They were on hand to meet him at the railway station with optimistic predictions for an early Trudeau victory on Saturday.

Mr. Marchand said the justice minister would get 900 votes on the first ballot, pick up the support of Health Minister Allan MacEachen and go on to win on the second.

Mr. Benson said he was by nature a pessimist and felt victory would not come before the fourth.

Great Fun

Mr. Trudeau himself laughingly told newsmen he thought it would be "great fun" to take it on the first but had no serious forecasts other than an ultimate win.

Well over 200 supporters were on hand to cheer, scream and chant his name as he returned to Ottawa.

They waved banners, mostly made by a citizens' committee in a local church hall. The Trudeau headquarters are trying to stress "spontaneous demonstrations" and have urged the workers to make their own signs.

Some showed a certain ingenious imagination in their efforts, particularly the one which read "Roses are red, violets are green, if Trudeau were female, he'd be queen."

So far there is no official Trudeau slogan and all efforts are being made to emphasize "the man is the message."

The campaign material simply says "Pierre."

Mr. Trudeau emerged from his train to be promptly hit on the head by a camera.

Slight Figure

Grinning broadly he was carried along by the mob, his slight figure often hidden by a menacing crush of mobile cameras and electronic equipment.

With a car cavalcade trailing behind Mr. Trudeau headed straight for his Parliament Hill office and a private half-hour meeting with Mr. Sharp.

The finance minister had spoken to Mr. Trudeau by telephone Tuesday night to tell him of his plans to withdraw from the race.

He hailed the justice minister as a man of judgment and dedication who would command respect and support from all sides of the party and both major cultures in Canada.

For his part Mr. Trudeau was "delighted and moved."

Shows Courage

He said it took a man of great courage to make such a gesture and that Mr. Sharp's personal support meant much than delegate votes.

"I have the confidence of a man of great integrity whom I have admired for many years—probably many more years than he has admired me," Mr. Trudeau said.

He conceded that a man with the sober image of Mitchell Sharp might quell the doubts of delegates who were a trifle nervous about the controversial Trudeau image.

"Probably some delegates felt I was an unknown quantity and Mr. Sharp's addition to other important names supporting me will reassure them," he added.

"With Mr. Sharp's ability, experience and judgment perhaps they will think I am not that bad a risk."

Mr. Trudeau's meeting with the press was really more of a show of cabinet strength than a news conference.

All Welcome

He said all leadership candidates in the present cabinet would be welcome in one he might head.

He would make no comment on ex-trade minister Robert Winters, ex-privy council president Walter Gordon or Eric Kierans.

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Winters had resigned for reasons not completely clear, he said, and while he would be glad to talk to them it was premature to make any commitments whatever.

Mr. Trudeau's next big stop was at the Newfoundland caucus where Mr. Smallwood and his troops gave him a loud ovation.

The premier said he thought Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Winters were the only candidates who could win an election, and the Newfoundlanders would go for Trudeau.

A small number had obligations to support another candidate on the first ballot but would switch to the French-Canadian on the second, he said.

Overwhelmed

"God bless you and go ahead to victory," said the diminutive Smallwood.

"I am overwhelmed," said Mr. Trudeau. He then headed off into the night and the noisy receptions where the crucial delegate votes were waiting to be influenced.

Parliament Session Eyed Before Federal Election

From Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau said Wednesday he could not see the necessity of calling an early election if he wins the Liberal leadership.

There has been considerable speculation, particularly among opposition members of Parliament, that a Trudeau victory would bring on an election this year.

They reason that he would want to capitalize quickly on the saturation publicity of the convention and try to turn it into an electoral victory.

Prefacing his reply with the remark that he could not answer such a question, Mr. Trudeau said:

"I do not see the necessity for calling an early election."

"If I did perhap I'd keep it a secret," he added.

The justice minister said there was still much to be done in Parliament before a new Liberal leader could turn his thoughts to an election.

Lawyer Fights Fund For Fool

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver lawyer is attempting to foil Foikis the Fool.

Peter deVooght said Wednesday he will seek a writ of prohibition to stop the Canada Council from granting $3,500 to Joachim Foikis, Vancouver's town fool.

In a letter to the council, Mr. deVooght said, "May I say at once I take strong objections to the grant. It represents squandering of funds belonging to the citizens of this country."

He said the grant was completely inappropriate to the trust with which the council had been charged.

Winters Upset As Joey Shifts

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Robert Winters has expressed disappointment over Newfoundland Premier Smallwood's announcement Wednesday that he is supporting Justice Minister Trudeau for the Liberal leadership.

A spokesman for Mr. Winters said in an interview that the trade minister commented that he could not think of any leadership candidate who had done more for Newfoundland than himself.

The spokesman said Mr. Winters expressed the hope that, despite Mr. Smallwood urging delegates from his province to support Mr. Trudeau, many of them would use their own judgment and support the candidate of their choice.

FOUR SUPPORTING HELLYER

7 Ministers Back Pierre

OTTAWA (CP) — Withdrawal of Finance Minister Sharp from the Liberal leadership race Wednesday resulted in a realignment of cabinet support for the remaining major candidates.

The candidates, with announced supporters listed:

Justice Minister Trudeau (7)—Mr. Sharp, Manpower Minister Marchand, Treasury Board President Benson, Revenue Minister Chretien, Energy Minister Pepin, Industry Minister Drury and Bryce Mackasey, minister without portfolio.

Transport Minister Hellyer (4)—Defence Minister Cadieux, State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, Labor Minister Nicholson and Veterans Minister Teillet.

Trade Minister Winters (3)—Postmaster-General Cote, Works Minister McIlraith, Northern Development Minister Laing.

External Affairs Minister Martin (1)—Forestry Minister Sauve.

Agriculture Minister Greene, Health Minister MacEachen, Consumer Affairs Minister Turner and Eric Kierans, have as yet no declared cabinet support.

Hellyer Woos West With Rail Proposal

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Hellyer said Wednesday night he will push the CNR north to the Yukon if he becomes prime minister.

Speaking to the British Columbia delegation on the eve of the Liberal leadership convention, Mr. Hellyer said he is impressed by the possibilities of a railway line running north through the Rocky Mountain trench and thus opening up new areas of forest and mineral wealth.

He said the CNR has already indicated to him its willingness to undertake an aerial survey of the suggested route.

"There is no doubt in my mind about the feasibility of this from an economic standpoint," he said.

If he became prime minister as a result of the Liberal convention, he would get on with construction of the railway as soon as the survey was completed.

Hellyer 'Action Man'

MONTREAL (CP)—Le Devoir supports Paul Hellyer in the race for the federal Liberal party leadership.

In an editorial signed by publisher Claude Ryan, the independent daily says the logical choice is between Mr. Hellyer and Justice Minister Trudeau, "a superior man to Mr. Hellyer in the field of intellectual ability."

"However, Mr. Hellyer is a more accomplished man of action. He is a man of decision. He knows how to administer and to delegate authority."

$350 Fine

A man who wasn't there was fined $350 in central court Wednesday.

The Crown proceeded ex parte when Hugh McDonald of Queen Charlotte City failed to appear for his trial on a charge of impaired driving.

Court was told McDonald was observed driving in an erratic manner on Metchosin Road March 18.

Marijuana Terms Lifted First Time

Magistrates to Get Word After MLA Drug Probe

By JOHN MIKA

An effort should be made to deflect the full force of the law from falling on youths who are caught for the first time smoking marijuana as a prank or experiment, the legislature was told Wednesday.

The suggestion was made in a report by the special drug imperative" that a national conference of legal, sociological penalties which equate marijuana with heroin and other "hard" drugs.

The committee's report said marijuana was harmful but it using it or life imprisonment for implied the present maximum penalties of seven years for providing it to someone else were questionable.

It asked for immediate action which would allow crown prosecutors to suspend charges before a conviction is rendered by the court in cases where the evidence shows a youth was a first offender and was otherwise of good repute. But the case could be resumed if the youth broke the conditions of the (SC—Saanich and the Islands) said the proposal was made "to temper justice with mercy and as a stop-gap until a national investigation (of the drug problem) can be made."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner told reporters the suggestion was "an interesting and possibly a valuable one" and would be studied closely by his department.

He said he could instruct prosecutors to try out the suggestion to see if "they may prevail upon" magistrates to agree in individual cases.

The wording of the recommendation called for consideration of the feasibility of:

- "Where a person is charged with marijuana possession or use and evidence is such that, except for this charge, the accused is of good repute and this is a first offence, the prosecutor may ask for an adjournment of the proceedings.
- "If granted, such adjournment to be continued subject to good behavior for such period as is deemed suitable."

While appearing to question the penalties, the committee's report made it clear the MLAs felt marijuana was harmful and should be treated as such.

The committee's report, made after about a dozen meetings to hear police, clergy, school officials, sociologists and students, avoided any assessment of how widespread drug use is among B.C. youth.

"The opinions by witnesses varied so much you could drive a car between them all sideways," said Mr. Tisdalle. "So we tried another approach."

The other approach was to warn that so many kinds of drugs are used — from heroin to glue-sniffing— that it is foolish "to isolate and focus attention on one specific drug."

The report said persons concerned about the problem "seem somehow to have become side-tracked into placing the major emphasis on the 'drug of the day' when by far the greater problem is why young people, in particular, increasingly misuse drugs."

It recommended that a fund be set up to finance detailed research into the causes of the drug trend among youth which could supply reliable information to a Bureau of Drug Abuse Control for relaying to appropriate agencies and community organizations.

It also urged a comprehensive educational program and complimented the efforts of Greater Victoria and Vancouver school boards in this direction but emphasized that "the educational approach must be varied and geared to the age level.

"The committee would advise the beginning of the educational approach at an early age," the report said and added that community groups as well as schools must be thrown into the battle to contain the spreading use of drugs.

It said the department of education should compile a list of books, pamphlets, film clips and videotapes dealing with the problem and furnish these to school boards and community organizations that wish to help guide youths away from drugs.

The report added that it would be desirable to reconvene the committee at the next session and added that its members were willing to hold hearings throughout the year if the house wished.

Esquimalt Mock House Planned

Welfare and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will act as governor-general at a mock parliament to be conducted by officer candidates of the Fleet School Esquimalt.

The Mock Parliament will be held in the Old GGymnasium, CFB, Esquimalt, Monday at 9 a.m.

Prime minister of the parliament is William Fergusson. Other members are: Ernest Colwell, secretary of state for foreign affairs; Peter Dickinson, minister of trade and commerce; Kenneth Mayberry, minister of transport; Robert Thompson, minister of national defence;; Paul Phillips, minister of finance and receiver general of Canada; Andre Rioux, opposition leader and Jerry Flynn, minority leader.

The government intends to introduce a bill giving Canadians a Merchant Fleet. The opposition appears united in an effort to defeat it, unless government will permit several major amendments.

Senior students from local high schools have been invited to observe proceedings.

Deposit Bottles Eyed In Anti-Litter War

A backbencher Wednesday demanded firm government action to stop the "pollution of the countryside" with non-returnable soft drink bottles.

"We should ban the use of no returnable bottles in all public areas," Don Phillips (SC—Peace River South) told the legislature.

He said a serious problem has developed in rural areas and at resorts during the past year because so many soft drinks now are sold in bottles requiring no deposit.

Broken bottles have caused injuries to bathers and campers in resort areas as well as to cows in fields alongside highways, he said.

Introduction of the no-deposit bottles also has destroyed valuable tradition which saw children occupy some of their holiday time scouring the country to collect bottles to make themselves some pocket money while eliminating litter.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kiernan said later that he had met manufacturers and distributors of non-returnable bottles and they assured him of full support in any campaign to curb littering.

He said the bottles are just a part of a much-larger problem of littering and said the only answer to the problem is a change in people's attitude.

He said a solution will be easy when B.C. people become as concerned as the Japanese who won't even throw a cigarette butt on the ground.

AFTER-MIDNIGHT SESSION

Mood of MLAs Sour As Long Debate Tried

By JOHN MIKA and BRUCE YEMEN

The legislature adjourned in bitterness at 1 a.m. today after an abortive attempt to begin debate on the mammoth Workmen's Compensation bill.

"You're just filibustering and we want the people to know it," Premier Bennett cried as he moved adjournment only seconds after voting against an opposition move to adjourn.

"Bush-league premier," said Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard), touching off another in a series of exchanges across the floor.

The trouble developed at 12:40 a.m. after the House completed debate on estimates of Travel Industry Minister Ken Kiernan.

When the premier indicated that committee consideration of Bill 22 (Workmen's Compensation Act) was next on the agenda, NDP MLAs turned sour.

"This shows how little regard this government has for the working people of this province," said Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay).

"It's too late," opposition members protested.

The mood of the House shot downwards as Mr. Berger began elaborate debate on section one of the bill, the title.

After a long wrangle with committee chairman Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) involving Opposition Leader Strachan and Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds), Mr. Berger moved the committee rise.

The government defeated the move on division before the premier moved the same motion.

Earlier, eight hours of debate about mountain goat, Peace River moose and Kootenay squirrels occupied the legislature before MLAs approved the $5.8 million estimates of the recreation and conservation department.

The $2.1 million estimates of the travel industry department were passed within a half-hour later.

Both portfolios are held by Kiernan.

DEER THREAT

Concern that B.C. hunters will wipe out the deer population is unfounded, Mr. Kiernan told the MLAs.

The annual kill of deer elk and moose is about 10 per cent of the total and for good management it should be closer to 25 per cent for deer and 20 per cent for moose and elk, he said.

Estimates set the provincial deer population at 700,000 but there is reason to believe it may be 1,500,000, the minister said.

The estimate of 200,000 to 250,000 moose may be low by more than 100,000 he added.

Nonetheless, said the minister, he plans to keep a close eye on use of helicopters and other aircraft in hunting.

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) had complained that helicopters are taking hunters into prime areas that should serve as sanctuaries for animals.

The minister said he did not want to encourage animal density along main roads because of the highway accident problem.

PUBLIC ACCESS

Mr. Kiernan rejected the view that all revenue from hunting and fishing licences should be poured back into the sports.

A wider diestribution of the money into a varity of outdoor uses is necessary if you accept the idea that the outdoors belongs to all the people, he said.

The minister agreed that public access to riverbanks was a worthwhile goal and said his department had taken steps to ensure access in key areas.

Several MLAs on both the government and opposition side called for increased expenditures by the department.

Don Phillips (SC—South Peace) called for greater efforts to introduce youth to the outdoors through training programs in a variety of sports.

John Tisdalle (Saanich and the Islands) appealed for a marine park for Salt Spring Island and urged the minister to consider hunting licences containing photos of the holder to prevent hunters buying more than one licence.

Dean Smith (SC—Peace River North) said the government should require hunting novices take basic training in handling firearms before being allowed into the bush because too many "lunatics" use high-powered rifles in shooting at sounds without realizing they can kill someone a mile or two away.

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault drew vigorous applause from opposition and backbenchers with a statement that the legislature would be happy to approve a considerably expanded budget for the recreation department next session.

OVER-ALL BUDGET

He said there was keen public interest in recreation and it was disappointing to see this year's departmental estimate increase only 12 per cent when the over-all budget rose 17 per cent.

Mr. Perrault also said the government should prepare a plan to preserve the Boundary Bay waterfowl wintering grounds from damage by the Roberts Bank superport project because it was one of the most important migrating flyways in Canada.

"As many as 15,000 ducks use that area at the peak period and that's a lot of ducks," he said.

It Was a Night of Beans, Beans, Beans

By ED GOULD

GANGES — Gourmets from Boston, Mass., to Boston Bar for years have extolled the baked bean "as a wonderful fruit" and the good burghers of Beaver Point have taken note.

Each year they mop, dust, fumigate and beautify the interior of little-used Beaver Point Community Hall for the social event of the south Island area: The Big Bean Supper and Lions' Bingo Binge.

More than 300 Islanders braved dusty, pot-holed Beaver Point Road to work their way through a veritable mountain of beans, cole slaw and pie.

The ladies of the community association shredded enough cabbage to cause alarm on the sauerkraut market and baked 10 or 12 varieties of pies and buns; enough to fill any spaces unfilled by beans.

Dress this year, as always, was optional. It ranged from low to haute couture (mink stoles to gum boots).

Although advertised dinner time was 6:30, bean lovers began arriving an hour earlier.

The crowd paid $215 for supper plus a chance at a food hamper. Perhaps afraid the hamper also contained beans (in the tin this time) committee member Andy Stevens said 10 draw tickets were called before Ray Hill of Ganges claimed the basket.

After dining, the bean-fed visitors sat on wooden benches around the room to watch the late-comers eat.

By the time the feeding area began to grow quiet, beans of a more durable variety began to appear on bingo cards and the second phase was under way.

But not before some children had partially dismantled the public address system and stolen several balls from the bingo machine.

The big night over, CARE richer by an unspecified amount from the Lions Club, the Islanders returned home, creating Beaver Point's only traffic jam of the year.

Meanwhile, those visitors who didn't win a bingo prize went home from the bean supper content in the knowledge that at least they would have something to think about until bean night next year.

School Gets Stable Rezoning

NORTH COWICHAN — Neighbors' complaints about the breeding of flies, mice and rats failed to sway North Cowichan council Wednesday and Queen Margaret's School will be able to go ahead with improving their riding facilities.

Council agreed to rezone the riding stables section of the private school property from residential multi-family dwelling to rural restricted.

School governor Gerald Wellburn told the council hearing that "riding is a part of QMS and "all we are asking is to improve existing facilities."

"Otherwise we will be forced to continue to run them as at present."

Reeve Donald Morton replied to a question that he seriously doubted if the land was suitable for housing development. It was a low pocket of land and subject to flooding.

IMPROVE SITUATION

Coun. George Whittaker said council has no power to change the existing use of the land and therefore allowing the rezoning could only improve the situation from the point of view of the neighbors.

One of the objectors, Mrs. Anton Yurkin, Kinch Avenue, said the present situation could not go on indefinitely or the health authorities would be forced to step in.

Headmistress Miss Margaret Glide said there was a misunderstanding among the neighbors. The school has no plan to expand its riding facilities or to enter any commercial venture.

Miss Glide gave her word there would be no more than 30 horses kept at QMS, and no public meets.

Community Centre, Pool No Closer to Vote Stage

NORTH COWICHAN — A swimming pool and community centre bylaw came no nearer as the result of a joint meeting of North Cowichan and Duncan councils Wednesday evening.

Earlier in the day the municipal council approved in principle the joint recreation commissions' recommendation of preparing an $800,000 bylaw.

But the municipality made it clear this was subject to full discussion with city council.

At the closed joint meeting, city representatives pointed out their council has not yet debated the recommendation of the joint commissions.

It will be on the agenda of the regular meeting Monday.

In the afternoon, Coun. Dennis Hogan told municipal council the $800,000 would cover the cost of a swimming pool, community centre building, improved playing fields and an additional eight acres of land.

He said, "It will never be cheaper to build than now. Even though some taxpayers will find it a burden on top of water and sewer taxes the price of recreation will not come down by deferring it."

Mr. Hogan said neither the south end of the municipality nor the city of Duncan has any indoor recreational facilities at present.

In an oblique reference to the ice arena in the north end of the municipality he said, "There's a lot of pride in the south and people are reluctant to see one area go ahead and not be given the chance to proceed likewise."

Reeve Donald Morton said cost-sharing would have to be based on assessment.

He said, "If we move in the wrong direction too quickly a bylaw could be defeated. If we go cautiously we can certainly get a pool and community centre."

Coun. Gerry Smith said he agreed with approving the bylaw plan in principle but to go further without consultation with the city would be like holding a club over Duncan council's head.

Reeve Morton said adoption in principle would leave the municipal council open to persuasion to another point of view.

Coun. George Whittaker said, "I really believe that $800,000 is going to be too rich for our voters' blood all at one go."

COWICHAN HOME BURNED

COWICHAN STATION — A Wednesday fire burned the 50-year-old farmhouse of John Wade on Hillbank Road.

Mr. Wade, his wife and five-year-old son Perry were away on a shopping expedition when the fire broke out. Daughter Sherri, 7, was at school.

The alarm was raised by three Victoria fishermen who saw the fire from the Trans-Canada Highway.

Misdirections cost Cowichan Bay volunteer fire department time in getting to the scene and there was little they could do either to save the house or any of the family's belongings.

Retiring Postmaster Honored at Fulford

FULFORD — A community potluck supper was held here for retiring postmaster Percy Jones.

Residents of Fulford and surrounding area presented Mr. Jones with gifts of a pen stand, wallet and watercolor painting by local artist Alfred Temmel.

Council to Buy Vimy Hall Land

NORTH COWICHAN— Municipal council Wednesday agreed to buy five acres of land adjoining Vimy Hall on Gibbins Road.

Coun. Dennis Hogan said the price was $525 an acre and the Vimy Community Association has undertaken to develop the land for recreational use.

He said the area is quickly building up residentially and the land is needed.

Plans include a riding ring for the Vimy Riding Club.

FISHERMAN PRESUMED DROWNED

NANAIMO — A fisherman who disappeared in the raging waters of the Nanaimo River Wednesday has been identified as 20-year-old Kwack Sing Wong, of this city.

The youth, seen in the water about 8 a.m. as the river swept him past another fisherman, is presumed drowned.

Nanaimo RCMP said this morning they are almost certain his body is trapped in a hole in rocks at the bottom of the river. They failed to find the body in a five-hour search of the river bottom Wednesday.

BODY TRAPPED

An RCMP official said Wong's body is probably trapped in a cave-like hole worn out by the current, and held fast by the swift water.

The water was too swift to send a diver down, he said. Sticks thrown in the river were swept under and did not reappear as RCMP attempted to gauge the strength and direction of the current.

Barney Grusbecki of Duncan was fishing in the river when he saw the body being carried along by the current.

He tried to save the man but was unsuccessful and notified RCMP.

RCMP estimated it would be at least a month before the current was weak enough to send a diver down to recover the body.

AT NEW YORK airlines displayed strength. Most Canadian and U.S. gold mining stocks slumped again, Homestake and McIntyre Porcupine slipping about 1½ each. Most aerospace defence stocks were soft. Steels rallied.

Prices on the American stock exchange were irregularly higher in slackened trading.

AT MONTREAL prices edged up fractionally in most sectors of the market.

Ford Plants Shut Down By Strike

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Co. of Canada's Oakville, Windsor and St. Thomas plants were shut down today as workers continued a wildcat strike that started in Oakville Wednesday.

Pickets were at the gates of the three plants which represent the major part of Ford's Canadian operation.

The wildcat strike involves 5,646 workers at the company's Oakville plant, 4,177 in Windsor and 1,033 in St. Thomas.

The strike started when day-shift workers in Oakville walked off the job Wednesday afternoon to protest the postponement of a strike deadline from 10:30 a.m. today to 10:30 a.m. Monday.

It spread Wednesday night to the Windsor workers who set up picket lines at the end of the night shift. The St. Thomas workers joined the strike today when they walked off the job minutes after the day shift started at 7 a.m.

Earlier reports today said the Oakville workers returned to work but a company spokesman said only 100 non-union probationary employees entered the plant today.

Ford has a car and truck assembly plant at Oakville, a car assembly plant at St. Thomas, and a foundry, engine plant and transmission and chassis plant in Windsor.

REMAIN ON JOB

In Niagara Falls, Ont., 230 workers at the company's glass fabricating plant remained on their jobs, as did 491 employees in the company's parts depots across Canada.

George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW, said in a statement today's strike deadline was rescheduled because the union wanted to include its national director in negotiations and there was not enough time to deal with all the disputes issues before the 10:30 a.m. deadline today.

He said the unauthorized walkout by all the plant's UAW members in Oakville was caused partly by the action of the company in notifying the workers of the strike postponement before union officials could explain the reasons for the delay.

LaFarge Cement Profits Show Gain of 15%

VANCOUVER (CP) — LaFarge Cement of North America Ltd. reported Tuesday that net profits of the company and its subsidiaries in 1967 increased 15 per cent to $1,687,653.

Consolidated sales also rose 15 per cent, reaching $19,360,471.

James Sinclair, chairman of LaFarge, said in his report to shareholders that part of the additional profit is due to the extra production of its suburban Richmond cement plant, the capacity of which was doubled to 3,500,000 barrels.

Mr. Sinclair said that because capacity is greater than present B.C. market potential, export markets have been sought. These markets have been found and long-term contracts starting in 1969 ensure the plant will work at close to capacity in the years ahead.

"Prospects for 1968 are good and should be even better in 1969 when the export contracts begin," the president sid.

Brazilian Power Profits Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Brazilian Light and Power Co. Ltd. had net earnings of $51,600,000 or $2.95 a share in 1967, compared with $36,400,000 or $2.10 in the previous year.

In announcing the results, the company said a full account of the year's operations will be given in the annual report to be mailed to shareholders in about a month.

Portland Aids Housing Squeeze

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Middle aged and older people no longer able to augment or increase their incomes would welcome a Portland, Ore., scheme to provide high quality, low cost housing.

Reference was made Wednesday to the disturbing effect on Greater Victoria's pensioners and others who have been buffeted every few months for at least four years by rising rents.

Kent

As much as $15 a month for apartments and rental houses has been tacked on to rates in the last 12 months. Those who can afford it pay; most look for cheaper accommodation.

In the near future Victoria will undertake its first low rent housing program, in conjunction with urban renewal. Saanich is undertaking a scheme of its own.

These steps are the first positive efforts in the public sphere to look after people for whom the burden of keeping a roof overhead is becoming painful.

★ ★ ★

Saanich apparently wishes to avoid creating a ghetto of older people, and plans to house couples in upgraded private dwellings scattered about the community.

The Victoria plan, though vague, would appear to concentrate mainly on families which are still employed, rather than pensioners, and the type of housing could be more like apartments, garden courts or row developments.

Well, courtesy of a concerned Victoria rental agent, here is what the city of Portland is doing for its pensioners and small income families: high-rise apartments and park-like subdivisions.

For the older people, Portland bought 2½ acres of land in a high-tax, downtown area. The Housing Authority of Portland—a public body—has just erected the second tower of apartments called Hollywood East, to house 300 persons. It cost $3.2 million.

Depending on the income of its tenants, rent varies from $25 to $75 per month, including private baths, kitchen facilities, whirlpool bath and recreation amenities such as a card room.

★ ★ ★

Because they are living in a busy environment, occupants feel they are still an active part of the community, rather than pushed off to one side with the risk of being ignored, the agent said.

The subdivision, laid out carefully in a treed surrounding, has houses supplied with all major appliances, and like the apartments, rents are scaled according to tenant's ability to pay.

Somehow the Portland plan has emerged without being branded an intrusion on private housing business. Many other American cities are embarked on similar schemes and in eastern Canada and Vancouver there are further variations.

A planning expert said the lines of authority and administration of American renewal-housing schemes are so different from those in Canada they cannot be fairly compared.

But technical aspects of U.S. developments may be quite useful in drawing up Canadian plans.

If it will help bring rent escalation under control for poorer people, there's no time like now for action.

★ ★ ★

Influx of more money in the market place is given as a reason for General Motors Acceptance Corp. lowering of short term note interest rates.

For 30-59 days the 7⅛ per cent rate is lowered immediately to 6⅞ per cent. The former 7¼ per cent rate covering 60-365 days has been dropped in favor of three rates.

These run at 7 per cent for 60-89 days; 7⅛ per cent for 90-179 days, and 7¼ per cent for 180-365 days.

U.K. Gold Reserves Suffer Drop

LONDON (AP) — Britain's reserves of gold and foreign currency fell by £20,000,000 during March, the treasury has announced, almost entirely due to the panic gold rush.

The decline, the first monthly loss this year, brought the reserves to £1,134,000,000.

The treasury announcement was greeted with incredulity by market observers for the loss had been expected to be much higher. Treasury officials explained that some of the outflow during the two-week gold rush at the start of the month had been recouped after closure of the London bullion market March 14.

The March decline followed a £31,000,000 increase in January and February.

The pound is worth about $2.60 Canadian.

Outlook Improving

LONDON (CP) — The Bowater Paper Corporation Ltd. says its 1967 newsprint operations in Canada were disappointing, but suggests the outlook is improving.

Sir Christopher Chancellor, corporation chairman, referred in his annula report to difficulties experienced both at Corner Brook, Nfld., and Liverpool, N.S.

Corner Brook was hit by a power shortage caused by low rainfall, adding about £1,000,000 to production costs early last year. Later, demand for newsprint declined, causing oversupply both at Corner Brook and Liverpool. Both these plants come under the Canadian subsidiary, Bowaters Canadian Corp.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted today at $1.07⅞ for cheques, $1.07¾ for notes and $1.05¾ for silver. Sales were $1.08⅝ for cheques and $1.08¾ for notes.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was down 1/16 at $1.08⅛. Pound sterling was down 3/16 at $2.60⅛.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar was up 1/16 at 92 15/32 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was down 5/64 at $2.40 37/64.

COAL PARLEY DUE SHORTLY IN TOKYO

TOKYO (Reuters) — Negotiations will start here soon for the conclusion of a long-term contract to supply the Japanese steel industry with a large amount of Canadian coking coal, the Nippon Kokan Kaisha said Wednesday.

Representatives of two coal mines—the Luscar Coal Co. of Canada and the Consolidation Coal Co. of the U.S. are scheduled to visit Japan late this week to finalize the deal, NKK said.

The two companies are developing the Luscar Coal Mines in Alberta to supply 1,000,000 tons of coal a year to Japan over a period of 10 years starting last 1969 or early 1970, NKK said.

Quebec Yards Will Build New Warships

OTTAWA (CP) — The total bill for four new Tribal-class destroyers, all to be built in Quebec shipyards, will be about $225,000,000.

The defence production department announced Wednesday night that the ships, to come off the ways in 1971 and 1972, will be built by Marine Industries Ltd., Sorel, Que., and Davie Shipbuilding Ltd., Lauzon, Que. Each yard will build two of the helicopter-carrying destroyers.

Marine Industries won contracts for the Iroquois and the Huron, both to be built at a combined firm price of $26,949,368. The Iroquois is due to be delivered to Maritime Command in June, 1971, the Huron in November of the same year.

Davie Shipbuilding won the contract for the Athabaskan and Algonquin with a combined target price of $27,577,558 for both ships and a ceiling of $30,326,112. The contractor stands to collect a bonus if actual costs are below the target and to pay a penalty if they run over the ceiling.

The Athabaskan is to be completed in June, 1972, and the Algonquin the following September.

MAY COST MORE

The shipyard bids do not include costs for the gas turbine engines which will power the ships, other machinery, the weapons systems and communications equipment.

Completely fitted out, the ships are expected to have run up a total bill of $225,000,000 or better.

Any design changes decided on while the ships are under construction, for example, might mean extra work which could run the cost higher than the yard bids. Extra work due to such changes would be carried out by the yards at hourly rates agreed to in the contracts.

The new ships are taking names made famous by former Royal Canadian Navy destroyers.

Described as "well in advance of any ship of their type in the world," the destroyers will carry missiles for defence against air attack, a five-inch gun for surface action, a special mortar for anti-submarine work, and two triple-barrel anti-submarine torpedo launchers.

Canada Resumes Trading in Gold

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government Wednesday lifted its request for a suspension of gold trading in Canada and announced that the mint will start selling gold in the free market.

Finance Minister Sharp said in a statement that orderly markets for gold have been re-established abroad and new policies on gold adopted by monetary authorities.

Canada, which suspended trading by banks and dealers after closure of the London gold market March 15, was removing the restrictions following Monday's re-opening of the London market.

The statement drew attention to remaining legal restraints on the purchase and ownership of gold in the United States and United Kingdom. Mr. Sharp hoped no Canadians would knowingly help contravene these laws.

Until members of the international gold pool set up a two-price system for gold on March 17, all gold bought by the mint from subsidized Canadian mines entered Canada's official exchange reserves.

ARE COMMITTED

Canada and other countries supporting the new system are committed to maintaining the gold in their reserves at its existing level. They will not add to their reserves or sell this gold to the private market.

If Canada is to continue subsidizing mines and requiring them to sell their production to the mint, the mint will have to sell refined gold in the open market or it will have no buyer.

The announcement said no change is contemplated in arrangements affecting the gold producers.

They may sell either to the mint or the free market, but if they want subsidization their sales must be to the mint, which will pay $35 U.S. an ounce.

Bullion Dealers Drop Price

LONDON (Reuters) — London bullion dealers knocked $1 an ounce off the price of gold when they met today for their first price fixing ceremony since the announcement of Vietnam peace talks.

The new rate is $36.30 U.S. an ounce. This is a full $1 lower than Wednesday's price and a drop of $1.30 since the London bullion market reopened Monday.

After the fixing, some dealers were quoting as low as $36.60 and market sources said a fair amount of bullion was being offered for sale.

Zurich knocked 50 cents off its gold price, which was quoted at between $37 and $37.50. Beirut was quoting $38, 20 cents lower than Wednesday.

On the London stock market the price of gold shares dropped and dealers had some difficulty in finding buyers. Most other shares prices rose, especially government securities.

The pound sterling's price on the foreign exchange market—$2.4064—was slightly higher than Wednesday night's closing.

Extend Deadline

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell said Monday Cemp Investments, Ltd., developers of the $75,000,000 Block 42 project, have agreed to extend the deadline for final go-ahead by at least two weeks. He said Cemp will not consider the middle of May as a final date on the downtown Vancouver project as long as the city continues to act in good faith.

Net Profits Jump 287%

VANCOUVER (CP) — Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. has reported a consolidated net profit for the year ended Dec. 31 of $462,132, a 287 per cent increase over the $119,400 for 1966.

The annual report said sales increased to $5,670,946 from $4,514,853 the previous year. Operating income reached $603,091 and was $230,262 in 1966.

President G. W. McPherson said a company modernization program should also result in a favorable 1968 report.

He said Okanagan operated 61 machines, six less than in 1966, but total hours flown increased to more than 34,000 in 1967 over 31,600 in 1966.

A Chartered Accountant plays the key role in financial planning

Trained to the highest professional standards and with knowledge and experience gained by delving into the financial heart of dozens of different companies, a Chartered Accountant in public practice can provide his clients with expert services in accounting, taxation, systems and procedures, operations research and data processing. He can set up an accounting system for a new business, revise an existing one, plan individual estates, interview and select management personnel, assist in obtaining finance, advise on needs for working capital, and analyse and interpret the vast flow of financial, economic, and fiscal data that map a company's growth and prosperity. Wherever you find a Chartered Accountant — whether acting independently as your adviser or auditor, or employed within your business — it will pay you to make full use of the skills he has to offer.

YEAR DELAY ASKED

Liberties Group Flays Labor Bill

The B.C. Civil Liberties Union says at least five sections of the Bill 33 labor legislation "will seriously jeopardize basic civil rights."

A statement by the organization, which has been sent to the provincial government, was read to 70 persons attending a meeting organized by the Victoria Labour Council Wednesday night.

The legislation, which only needs the formality of proclamation, should be delayed for one year for a close examination as was done with the Workmen's Compensation Act, it said.

The civil liberties group said the phrase "public interest" can be interpreted broadly to cover any labor dispute and that the prohibition of access to the courts, in Section 38, means the legality of cabinet and commission decisions cannot be challenged.

Also, under Section 51, "heavy" penalties are provided for offences including maximum fines of $1,000 for individuals and $10,000 for unions and companies plus $150 a day for every day the offence continues.

DISCRIMINATION

Other "objectionable" sections of Bill 33 included the failure to distinguish between essential and non-essential civil servants and discrimination against civil servants because of no collective bargaining rights..

It was "ironic" that some aspects of the bill go some distance towards meeting labor requests to improve labor-management relations.

"Other sections will damage rather than improve labor relations in B.C.," said the civil liberties union.

"Ultimately, the freedom to withdraw labor is the only effective way in which employed persons can try to improve their condition of life.

"It is this sanction which, in the final analysis, gives real power to labor in the collective bargaining process.

"This power is matched on the side of management by the employers' ownership or control of industry.

"The co-existence of these two power areas gives approximately equal status to employers and unions when they bargain with each other to determine wages and all other terms and conditions of work.

"Section 18 and 21 of Bill 33 would remove labor's ultimate sanction without any corresponding diminution of the employers' power.

"Assuming passage of these sections, equality could only be restored if the government, when preventing or terminating a strike, was obligated at the same time to confiscate the industry affected."

During the meeting, trade unionists used strong terms to describe Bill 33.

One person called it "black shirt legislation," another said "Premier Bennett is the dictator of the province of B.C." and a third referred to "a fascist man named Bennett."

ELECTION PLAN

Delegates unanimously approved a labor council resolution that they support a special B.C. Federation of Labour fund to fight Bill 33 and do everything possible to elect members of the legislature who will eliminate this kind of legislation.

Several delegates suggested a more militant course than political action, mentioning a general strike and protest marches.

Federation president E. T. Staley, who reviewed many aspects of Bill 33, said "if we don't change the government and change the act this legislation will spread across the country.

"The real crunch will come when one union is picked out and compulsory arbitration used. The only place you can get your rights back is at the ballot box. It is about time trade unionists got wise to that fact."

The federation proposed to collect money to educate trade unionists "about the difficulties and problems in this bill and to defeat the government in this province and that's a worthy objective."

BILL 33 PASSES HOUSE

Bill 33 was assured of inclusion in the statute books of the province at 12:40 a.m. today.

A division of 28 to 18 game third and final reading to the controversial labor legislation.

It will need royal assent and a government proclamation to put its provisions into force.

The vote was called by the government after MLAs had spent 8½ hours considering estimates. It passed on party lines with the NDP and Liberals voting against it.

The Socreds burst into applause and the opposition MLAs called out "Shame" as Speaker William Murray intoned the traditional words after the vote which transformed Bill 33 "An Act Respecting Collective Bargaining and Mediation."

Long Beach Park Plan Pushed

The federal government is "dragging its heels on establishment of Long Beach as a national park, the legislature was told Wednesday.

Dr. H. L. McDiarmid (SC—Alberni) expressed concern at slow negotiations to turn the beach on Vancouver Island's west coast into a national park. He read a newspaper editorial blaming federal Resources Minister Arthur Laing for the delay.

He said construction of a good road to the beach increases the urgency of moving now and warned "unless this property (adjacent to the beach is purchased very, very quickly, we in B.C. will be . . . out of luck."

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault drew a laugh when he leaped up and said, "I'm willing to go to Ottawa this weekend. . . ."

"Who will you vote for?" a voice cried, referring to the Liberal leadership convention.

Mr. Perrault said negotiations on the park plan had been "excellent" and attributed the small number of national parks in B.C. to the Social Credit government's habit of being "deeply suspicious" of all federal offers.

He said the long Beach plan should be kept out of the political arena.

Widow Gets $8,000 B.C. Grant

A grant of $8,000 will be paid to the widow of Tom Bate, MLA for Vancouver South, who died last September.

Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy introduced a government bill in the legislature providing for the grant, traditionally paid to widows of MLAs who die in office.

Another bill introduced by Resources Minister Ray Williston sets aside Doukhobor lands, containing the tomb of their spiritual leader at Brilliant in the West Kootenays, as a public park.

It grants the park containing the tomb of Peter Verigin to the Union of Spiritual Communities of Christ.

The bill requires that the Doukhobors hold the tomb and surrounding gardens in trust and continue their maintenance of the tomb, preserving the whole area as a public park.

Officers Named

Elected officers of the Victoria Scottish Country Dance Society for the 1968-69 season includes: Gerry Dunn, president; Jack Bailey, vice-president; Fran Clermont, secretary; Audrey Jones, treasurer; Robin Brown, program; Sylvia Boyko, Lynn Brown, Margaret Ring, social committee.

Replanting Drive Urged for Forests

The provincial government should spend $12.5 million over the coming five years for reforestation to catch up on the backlog of unproductive land, the legislative forestry committee said Wednesday.

It filed a report in the legislature commending the government's $579,000 increase in the current estimates raising the total for replanting timber land to $1.5 million.

However, the committee said it had to "point out that in order to catch up on the backlog of unproductive acres it will be necessary to increase this (expenditure) each year by the same amount for five years.

"The extra revenues and benefits to the economy in future years will more than warrant the expenditures."

In an obvious reference to last summer's Sproat Lake fire, blamed on highway construction crews, the committee also recommended that all forest users should be governed by forest service regulations "whether they be recreation, mining, B.C. Hydro, highways, the forest industry or any other, and have available during the fire season some emergency fire fighting equipment."

The report said there is a division of opinion within government and the forest industry about the merits of slash burning and it recommended a special study be undertaken to produce a report for next session.

IS FISHING BETTER SOUTH OF BORDER?

HAIG-BROWN
. . . tries Oregon

Fishing is getting so bad in B.C. that Roderick Haig-Brown has been going to Oregon to pursue the sport, the legislature was told Wednesday.

Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said the well-known naturalist and writer had agreed in a recent conversation with him that fishing in B.C. is on the decline.

He admitted going to Oregon and even to the Rocky Mountain states to fish, said Dr. Parkinson.

Speaking up for commercial fishermen, Dr. H. L. McDiarmid (SC—Alberni) called for a firm government commitment that the Fraser River would never be dammed.

He charged some NDP members with advocating dams on the Fraser and having no regard for the future of fishing.

"Not damming the Fraser was one of the best moves this government ever made," Dr. McDiarmid said.

Cribbens At the Movies

THE GRADUATE
Victoria Premiere
Fox Cinema

Long queues outside the Fox Cinema are commonplace this week and many of the enthusiasts are students from the University of Victoria.

What kind of film attracts students?

I would say it is a high, wide, handsome comedy-drama; sophisticated rather than sentimental, with a fair share of wit and some smartly-contrived situations, capably acted and put together.

Such a film is Mike Nichols' classic comedy The Graduate, adapted from a first novel by Charles Webb by screen writer Buck Henry and author Calder Willingham.

Today's youth is obviously wary of sentiment and, for that reason, many of the films which attracted us in the 30s and 40s, and are still enjoyed by senior (and intermediate) citizens on TV, may flop with a university audience.

The Graduate tells of the seduction of a 20-year-old innocent (Dustin Hoffman) by the sex-hungry wife of his father's friend. Bewitched, bothered and bewildered, Ben finally attends night classes in the magic art in a neighboring hotel room.

Immoral as it is, there is nothing sordid or unsavory in the presentation of the affair, and this is due to the ruthless yet honest-eyed approach of the temptress (Anne Bancroft) and the bug-eyed innocence of her lover. (He still calls her "Mrs. Robinson!")

Later her daughter (Katharine Ross) appears on the scene and transforms Ben out of a rather dopey-like character into a determined idealistic young man who pursues her through a California university and finally grabs her from the altar of marriage with another.

The tenuous theme is handled with a masterly touch by director Mike Nichols and the first-rate acting is matched by ingenious color photography.

CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS
Oak Bay Theatre

This 30-year-old film blows like a strong, clean wind through much of the murk which clouds our screens today.

It is still a splendid re-enactment of Rudyard Kipling's novel of a spoiled society brat who is taught the facts of life when he falls accidentally into the hands of rugged, honest fishermen off the coast of Maine.

Spencer Tracy is delightful as ever as the Portuguese fisherman whose wisdom is greater than his learning.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (Reuters) — The European Common Market commission, the community's top executive body, proposed Tuesday a two-phase program which could lead to full membership for Britain, Denmark, Norway and Ireland, market sources said. It submitted recommendations to the six-member states Tuesday calling for a preparatory membership agreement of limited duration.

BOSS OF KINGS DESCENDS . . . . . . TO HOARY OLD ALIBI

Jack Kent 'Disappoints' Clarence

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, sayd he is disappointed in Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Los Angeles Kings, for his claim that the Kings were "bilked" of a victory over the Oakland Seals Saturday.

"It is disappointing to find that a sportsman of Mr. Cooke's stature would descend to excusing his team's failure . . . by using that hoary old alibi 'we wuz robbed'," Campbell said in a statement Wednesday night.

He was replying to remarks made in Los Angeles Tuesday by Cooke, who said a referee's inexperience cost his club a first-place finish in the NHL's west division.

Saturday's game with the Seals ended in a 2-2- tie after referee Ron Wicks disallowed a third-period goal for the Kings on the grounds that a Los Angeles player was in the goal crease at the time the shot went in.

If the goal had been allowed, Los Angeles would have won the game 3-2. The additional point in the standings would have tied them in points with the top-place Philadelphia Flyers but would have given the Kings the division championship by virture of a greater number of wins.

"Mr. Cooke has stated that the referee erred in his call disallowing the goal," Campbell said. "This is his opinion. I have only the referee's version of the incident, which supports his decision.

"However I will be in Los Angeles on Saturday and I will review the game films myself and make my own assessment."

Campbell said that prior to the game with the Seals, Cooke complained about certain game officials and asked for their replacement in subsequent games, "a thing that just isn't done in the NHL."

"His complaints were investigated and they proved unfounded."

Campbell said Cooke "seems to have over looked the fact that his team lost 33 other games and tied another nine games over the regular schedule.

"That represents a possible 75 points, any one of which would have accomplished his objective. Instead he chooses to blame the team's failure to come first on a referee's judgment call in the final period of the season."

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

You say the telly-vision set is turned on?

Okay! Then pull up a chair, peel yourself a grape because we're fresh out of oranges, and enjoy the National Hockey League playoffs. Just remember the fearless one who told you that Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars will fight it out in the Stanley Cup final.

No expense was spared to bring you this choice tidbit. It required a magic potion poured carefully onto three freshly-made ice cubes, a psychedelic sports shirt to ward off the sun, and a ouija board once used by a hardrock miner who fruitlessly searched for gold in the Sooke Hills.

In other words, my guess is as good as yours and, anyhow, you've got about four weeks to forget mine.

★ ★ ★

Showing the same confidence as a Liquor Control Board inspector at a bartenders' convention, E.F. shows you how the Stanley Cup playdowns will shape up, (won-lost-tied records shown in parantheses):

Western Division

Philadelphia over St. Louis (7-1-2)

St. Louis, last time I looked, is still in Missouri. Despite their great second-half surge, St. Louis was able to beat Bud Poile's defensively-stout Flyers only once in 10 tries.

Philadelphia, now back home, finished first and the Flyers are the best bet to keep St. Louis blue. Try about 5 games.

Minnesota over Los Angeles (6-2-2)

Both clubs suffered from hot-and-cold goaltending throughout the regular season. Both coaches—Red Kelly of Los Angeles and Wren Blair of Minnesota—managed to wrest the best out of the talent made available to them. Blair does more than just open and close the player gates and, in a best-of-seven series, his extra coaching experience might give Minnesota the psychological edge it needs. The North Star to shine brightest after 6 games.

Minnesota over Philadelphia (3-6-1)

There's always one surprise in every playoff, and this would have to be it. Remember that only four points separated fourth-place Minnesota from first-place Philadelphia in the final callover. The North Stars suffered considerably in the injury department during the regular season, now feel healthier. If the surprise happens, it's gonna be quick. Like 5 games.

Eastern Division

New York over Chicago (4-3-3)

Happiness is a thing called playoffs, and money. Old friend Emile Francis may not need much of a psychological whip. Ed Giacomin proved to be the best goaltender in the second half and the $250 he won on the last day of the regular schedule put him in the right frame of mind. Rangers' unexpected second-place finish spread the joy around, thickly, and Emile's only concern is to stop Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita. If you do that, you stop Chicago, and Francis could be served well by a vastly-improved defence.

Always tough on home ice, Rangers could do the job in the surprisingly-quick time of 5 games.

Boston over Montreal (5-5-0)

I'm a Montreal fan from 'way back but you have to beware of the Bruins. Somehow, from somewhere, the wire services came up with the information that bookmakers have installed Canadiens as the solid, 13-to-5 favorites. In the interest of public service, that has to be reported. If you can get that kind of action in this town, then jump on 'em.

The Canadiens are best when they skate, but Boston does have a few body-checkers. If the Bruin belters introduce themselves early, platformate won't help. Nor Orr, who's back.

It figures to be a good series, and the 13-to-5 odds are a fallacy because Montreal is not two-and-a-half times better than Boston. In qualifying for the playoffs, the Bruins led the entire league in scoring with 259 goals. Of that total 132 were provided by five newcomers—Phil Esposito, Ken Hodge, Fred Stanfield, Johnny McKenzie, (all obtained through trades) and the rookie Derek Sanderson.

If Boston can win one of the first two games in Montreal, they'll do it in 6 games.

Boston over New York (6-2-2)

Happiness will have been scattered all around by the time this argument is presented. Everything else remaining equal, the tip-off will have to be the Bruins' domination during the 10 regular-season meetings. Trust television . . . and say 7 games.

★ ★ ★

Oh yes . . . the final! The sun still rises in the east, and even Wren Blair won't be able to do anything about that. The Bruins will take it all in 5 easy games.

CRICKET DRAW

English Players Bottle Targets

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (Reuters) — With their last pair at the wicket, England snatched a draw in the fifth cricket test against West Indies Wednesday after a pulsating sixth day's play.

England, needing 308 to win, was 206 for 9 at the close with Alan Knott unbeaten with 73 and Jeff Jones not out.

About 200 disappointed local fans hurled bricks, bottles and stones at some of the English players as they left the field. The only injury was a head scratch suffered by Tony Lock.

England thus won the series 1-0—West Indies' first series defeat since it lost 1-2 to Australia in 1960-61.

The last few minutes were played out in unbearable tension as West Indies strove to achieve the victory which would have enabled them to square the series.

After Colin Cowdrey (82) and Knott had taken England from 41 for 5 to 168 for 6 England seemed to be within easy reach of a draw. But three further wickets fell while the score rose to 206 and last man Jones joined Knott with five minutes still to play.

RICH PRO CONTRACT has been signed by Olympic and world figure skating champion Peggy Fleming. Signed Wednesday, contract will net Peggy approximately $500,000 over five years and also calls for dramatic roles.

Cup Struggles Are Old Hat For Canadiens

By Canadian Press

The men and boys start parting company tonight as the National Hockey League playoffs open on four fronts.

For two of the eight teams involved it will mean meeting in the Stanley Cup finals and at least a temporary decision regarding the superiority of the veteran Eastern and expansion Western divisions.

But the two biggest factors in the outcome probably will be experience and freedom from injury.

With this in mind, the best-of-seven final could well match Montreal Canadiens and Los Angeles Kings as representatives of the east and west respectively.

The Canadiens open their quarter-final series against Boston Bruins while Los Angeles is at home to Minnesota North Stars. In the other eastern quarter-final it is Chicago Black Hawks at New York against the Rangers while St. Louis Blues take on the Flyers in Philadelphia.

All series are best-of-seven affairs as are the semi-finals which match quarter-final winners in each division.

Tonight's Boston - Montreal game will be televised starting at 6:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Although the Canadiens still have defencemen Terry Harper and Ted Harris recovering from late-season injuries, with Harper still a doubtful starter, they are the most experienced playoff club of the eight.

They have missed the playoffs only once since the 1941-42 season, when they finished fifth in the standings in 1947-48, and have taken 12 Cups in the last 38 years.

Since coach Toe Blake took the reins prior to the 1955-56 season, the Canadiens have finished first in regular standings nine times and won the Stanley Cup seven times, including a record five straight from 1956 through 1960.

Only a small handful of their personnel will be going into their first NHL playoffs. It has been so long for Boston that only John Bucyk has ever had the experience as a Bruin—nine seasons ago when Boston last made the first division.

TERRY IS TOPS

The Los Angeles strength is in goal where Terry Sawchuk holds sway as the best among active contestants.

The man who last year got Toronto Maple Leafs through to the championship, Sawchuk has played in 95 playoff games and recorded 11 playoff shutouts.

If the Kings carry out their threat to dress coach Red Kelly for the playoffs, they will be adding the most experienced player in NHL history—with 164 playoff games to his credit—to their active roster.

As well as bringing up right-winger Mike Corbett from Vancouver Canucks of the Western League for the playoffs, the Kings Wednesday announced that Kelly was one of their 30 eligible players.

RANGERS HEALTHY

On the basis of freedom from injuries, New York Rangers have to take the early edge in the other eastern playoff while experience in goal gives St. Louis the nod in the second western playoff.

The Black Hawks, on the other hand, have a list of ill and injured that looks remarkably like a Vietnam battle report.

Scoring champion Stan Mikita is complaining of unspecified but distressing back pains, league-leading goal scorer Bobby Hull is recovering from a broken nose and still is bothered by an aching instep, regular goalie Denis Dejordy has a split finger on his catching hand, and that's just the start.

Defenceman Doug Jarrett had a tooth extracted Tuesday, centre Pit Martin has a sore ankle, rookie winger Bob Schmautz is recovering from a tonsilitis attack and defenceman Pat Stapleton is having trouble with his eyes.

Promotion Produces Triumph for Broncos

PENTICTON (CP) — A promotion to Penticton's number one line for Ed Hays paid off Wednesday night as he scored three goals to pace the Broncos to a 6-4 British Columbia Junior Hockey League playoff victory over Kamloops Rockets.

The win before 1,500 fans moved the Broncos into a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven final series that will decide who will meet Edmonton Movers in the B.C.-Alberta final. Fourth game will be played in Kamloops Friday.

Kamloops' goalie Wally Denault was peppered with 49 shots—including 21 in the third period—and stopped 43 of them. Doug Thompson handled 30 drives for the league champion Broncos.

The contest was markedly different from the series' second game Saturday in Kamloops when 23 penalties were doled out. Only six were called Wednesday night.

LIONS SIGN THREE

Williams, Williams . . . And a Williams

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League announced three player signings today and you can lump them all under one surname: Williams.

The three imports are Ralph, Richard and Malcolm Williams and they are not related.

Ralph Williams, 23, cousin of Lions halfback Leroy Sledge, is a 6-2, 235-pound defensive end and linebacker from Allen University in Columbia, South Carolina.

Richard Williams, 26, joins the Lions after four years of semi-pro ball in South Carolina. The 5-10, 190-pound prospect runs the 100-yard dash in 9.4 and is the brother of former world record sprint specialist Willie Williams.

Richard was selected to compete with the United States track team that toured Europe in 1960 but since then has concentrated mainly on football. He is listed as a safety.

Malcolm Williams, 25, and a 6-2, 245-pound guard and linebacker, earned Junior College All-American status at Santa Barbara Junior College in 1964 and later played for Parsons College.

Owners Drop Boycott Plan

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba horseowners Wednesday called off their planned boycott of the thoroughbred horse racing season scheduled to open May 17 at Assiniboia Downs track here.

The Manitoba Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association said it is "confident a satisfactory solution" will be found to settle a dispute with the provincial government over pari-mutuel taxes.

GORDIE HOWE TOP GUEST AT COWICHAN

NORTH COWICHAN—Gordie Howe is to be guest of honor at a sportsmen's dinner in the new Fuller's Lake ice arena July 6.

The Detroit Red Wings' hockey great will be helping Cowichan Minor Hockey Association raise funds to put 700 youngsters on skates in the arena when it opens for business in September.

Association chairman Carey Adams says John Ferguson of Montreal Canadiens, Andy Bathgate of Pittsburg Penguins and Andy Hebenton of Portland Buckaroos have also been invited.

Versatile Annis Heads Sports Celebrity List

Variety in his athletic achievements?

That's Annis Stukus.

Owning a reputation of never being at a loss for words?

That's also Annis.

Thus it was no surprise Wednesay when it was announced that Stukus had been obtained to put his words and athletic knowledge to work as guest speaker of the first annual sports celebrity dinner, co-sponsored by the Victoria Sports Council and the Kiwanis Club.

Scheduled at the Empress Hotel, the dinner will be held on April 16 and will also present several other visiting sports celebrities and honor top Victoria athletes of the past year.

Football was the game in which the man who has earned the label of "The Loquacious Lithuanian" made his first big splash. He was a standout player in the days of the single-wing Canadian game and made bigger headlines when he went to Edmonton to establish the Eskimos as a solid Western Conference club.

ANNIS STUKUS

Then Vancouver called and Annis crossed the Rockies to get the new B.C. Lions into the football swim in 1954, performing both as manager and coach.

After departing from the Lions, Stuke returned to Toronto for a career combining newspaper, television and radio jobs. Last year he moved back to the Pacific Coast to become general manager of the Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Featured with Stukus at the dinner will be winners of four awards to be given annually to city sports personalities—to the outstanding sports figure of the year, the outstanding male and female athletes of the year and the top team from April to April.

The five-man selection committee is scheduled to meet Friday to narrow the field of athletes down to three in each category.

All six finalists will be invited to the dinner, where the winners will be announced.

Tickets for the dinner are available at Memorial Arena, the Sports Centre, Price and Smith and Kiwanis Club members.

No-Hit Hurler Farmed Out As Bad News Hits Pitchers

By Associated Press

Dave Morehead, who once pitched a no-hitter for the Boston Red Sox, and Bill Rohr, who once almost did, will be doing their throwing in the minors this year.

The Red Sox optioned Morehead, who threw Boston's last no-hitter in 1965, to their Louisville farm team Wednesday. Rohr, who came within one out of hurling a hitless game against the Yankees in his first start last season, was released outright.

It was, in fact, a bad day for pitchers all around. The Cincinnati Reds optioned out 19-year-old Gary Nolan, 14-8 last year, to the minors because of arm trouble. And the New York Yankees sent Steve Barber to their Syracuse farm.

Also, the Red Sox optioned Darrell Brandon and the New York Mets gave Hal Reniff, a mainstay of the Yankees in better days, his outright release.

In exhibition action Wednesday, Detroit beat Houston 3-1, Washington edged Baltimore 3-2, Atlanta pounded the Yankees 7-1, Pittsburgh downed Cincinnati 4-3, Oakland crushed Boston 9-2, Cleveland outslugged Lo Angeles 10-8.

Also the Chicago Cubs outlasted San Francisco 7-6 in 11 innings, California beat its Seattle farm club 2-1 and Philadelphia nipped St. Louis 5-4.

The Braves beat the Yankees on six runs in the fourth inning.

Royals' Roster Cut for Opener

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Royals of the North American Professional Soccer League have released three players to reduce their roster to 20 in preparation for their league opener Sunday.

Dropped were halfback Esgardo Marini, 22; forward Miklos Todor, 30, and forward Vladimir Pavkovic, 24.

Everybody knew it, but now it's official.

Stan Mikita, the centre-ice slicker of Chicago Black Hawks has won his fourth National Hockey League scoring title in five seasons and the goaltending pair of Lorne Worsley and Rogatien Vachon has given Montreal Canadiens the Vezina Trophy for the 18th time in the 42-year history of the award.

Official regular season statistics released by the league show six clubs with players receiving monetary rewards from the NHL for the second half season and final winners in the two individual races. All are from the established East Division.

Mikita, who finished the 74-game schedule with 87 points, had 40 goals for the first time in his nine-season career. He picks up $1,000 and the Art Ross Trophy as scoring champion plus another $250 he received as runner-up to team-mate Bobby Hull in the first-half scoring race.

Phil Esposito, the rangy centre Boston Bruins picked up from Chicago in the off season, failed in a last-week attempt to catch Mikita. However, Esposito finished second with 84 points to pick up $500 as over-all runner-up to Mikita.

SECOND-HALF LEADER

Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers was the second-half leader with 46 points, including 22 goals and wins $500. Ratelle had a season total of 78 points on 32 goals and 46 assists, to finish fourth over-all.

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, completing his 22nd season in the league, finished third in the individual standings. He had 82 points and tied Ratelle in points for the second half. However, the New Yorker had one goal more and Howe had to settle for $250.

Worsley had the best personal average among the goaltenders with 1.98 and combined with Vachon to win the $1,000 as Vezina Trophy winners. The Montrealers combined average was 2.26.

MISSED SECOND PLACE

However, the pair failed to take the second-half prize of $250 which went to Ed Giacomin of New York. Giacomin, the shutout leader with eight, allowed 80 goals in the second half, one fewer than the Montreal pair.

Toronto combination of Johnny Bower and Bruce Gamble slipped into the over-all runner-up position in the goal-tender's race on the final weekend to win the $500 award. The Bower-Gamble duo beat out youngsters Doug Favell and Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers by three goals.

Bower's personal 2.25 average was the second best in the league. Combined with Gamble's respectable 2.31 mark, it gave the pair a combined 2.38 average against Philadelphia's 2.42.

Alberta Tops Island Rink In Key Clash

CALGARY — Bill McIntosh of Campbell River dropped the key game of the Canadian Firefighters Curling Championships, to lose his share of the lead when defending champion Ron Munro of Red Deer beat him 10-8.

The win pushed Alberta into sole possession of first, with a 5-1 record and one draw left and dropped McIntosh into a second-place tie at 4-2, with Saskatchewan and Northern Ontario.

Manitoba and Southern Ontario both with 3-3 records; New Brunswick at 1-5 and Quebec at 0-6, all dropped out of contention.

The B.C. rink stayed even with Alberta by scoring a 14-1 win over New Brunswick while Sakatchewan sank back, losing 7-8 to Manitoba in Wednesday morning's draw.

Gulls Crushed In First Game

PORTLAND (AP)—Art Jones blasted home one goal and assisted on two others Wednesday night as Portland Buckaroos downed San Diego Gulls 4-0 in the opening game of their best-of-seven Western Hockey League semifinal series.

Portland fired 22 shots at the San Diego nets and dominated the game. Jones opened the scoring at the 4:42 mark of the first period and the league champion Bucks never looked back.

Play slackened during the second period with only eight shots on goal by the two clubs, then Jones set up linemate Cliff Schmautz with two goals in a row in the last half of the third.

Bill Saunders ended the scoring with a power play goal with 13 seconds left in the game. It was the only goal that Jones, the league's top scorer during regular season play with 87 points, didn't get in on.

It was a poor outing for the Gulls, who got only 13 shots on the Portland goal. A total of 5,020 fans watched the Bucks take a 1-0 lead in the semi-finals on the strength of the win.

Cepeda Strikes Out In Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Orlando Cepeda, onetime star first baseman for San Francisco Giants and now with St. Louis Cardinals, lost on appeal Wednesday his effort to collect $1,000,000 damages from Look magazine.

The U.S. Court of Appeal, in a three-judge decision, upheld a jury verdict that Cepeda was not libelled by an article written in 1963 by Timothy Cohane, then sports editor of Look.

Cepeda's lawyer appealed the U.S. District Court jury verdict of Nov. 2, 1967, challenging the jury instructions of Judge Stanley A. Weigel that it must be determined whether the article showed malice or was guilty of irresponsible reporting.

In the article, Cepeda was portrayed as not a team player.

Mayor to Bare Arm At Special Clinic

Mayor Hugh Stephen will be one of the first to bare his arm when the Red Cross holds its "Mayor's and Reeves' Day" blood donor clinic April 16.

Not only will he be first in line to donate but he will be offering a pint of the best for the first time.

Agreeing to give his blessing to the special clinic Wednesday, Mayor Stephen said he would do all in his power to help a worthwhile cause.

He said he hoped that other municipal leaders from the core municipalities of Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich would join him at the clinic.

Times of the clinic during the one-day stand to obtain blood from city hall are 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Major Robert Hogarth, local blood drive chairman, asked the mayor to participate but stressed that as always the clinic would accept all donors.

"We are always short of blood, always in need," he told the mayor. "We feel that if you and the other municipal leaders will show the way we can have a tremendously successful clinic."

Gorge Meets Wests In Price Cup Clash

One of the two unbeaten clubs in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division playoff will have its three-game winning skein snapped and take a longer road toward the Price Cup final.

In the winners' bracket, Victoria West and Gorge battle it out in Heywood Avenue Park. The winner must wait around for the final while the beaten club is re-routed into the losers' bracket for a semi-final game.

University Vikings and Canadian Scottish meet in Central Park while Hourigans Kickers and Tally-Ho match strength at Rose Street in the losers' scramble. Clubs that fall in the latter two matches are eliminated.

In the league's second division, Dodds Cup playoff action continues with London Boxing Club facing University Norsemen at Topaz Park.

All games Sunday at 2 p.m.

Esks Sign Tucker

EDMONTON (UPI)—Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference have signed Phil Tucker, 22-year-old, 232-pound guard from Texas Tech who was a conferenceall-star last season.

Crews Improve Retaining Walls

Esquimalt public works crews are working this week on front lawns and retaining walls of several houses lining the southern approach to the Tillicum-Gorge bridge.

Municipal engineer William Gerry reports the work is the result of the widening of approaches when the new bridge was open last year.

The work had to await the end of the winter rains.

Hoop Finals Open Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — San Francisco Warriors and Los Angeles Lakers will open their Western Division final on Friday night in Los Angeles, it was announced Wednesday by the National Basketball Association.

Warriors scored the only upset of NBA quarter-final play on Tuesday night by scoring an 111-106 win to take the best-of-seven series from St. Louis Hawks, 4-2.

Philadelphia 76ers, who eliminated New York Knockerbockers in six games, and Boston Celtics, who scored a 4-2 win over Detroit Pistons in the other Eastern Division semi-final, also start their divisional final on Friday night—in Philadelphia.

EX-CLERGYMAN IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Ombudsman 'Confirmed' in Job

FLEMINGTON

FREDERICTON (CP) — The ombudsman's office is an unlikely post for a United Church minister, but then New Brunswick's defender of public rights is not exactly a stereotyped clergyman.

Dr. William Thomas Ross Flemington, president of Mount Allison University for 17 years, former director of education for Ottawa's external aid office and overseas for Canada's armed forces during the Second World War, is a roly-poly 70, and physically spry.

Sworn in Oct. 11 just after his office was created, he has been handling an average of one complaint daily. However, this week the New Brunswick legislature formally confirmed him in his job, almost six months after he began work.

His powers are wide-ranging, permitting him to demand and receive files from any government department and administer oaths to conduct public inquiries.

Dr. Flemington's basic procedure under the Ombudsman Act of New Brunswick is to accept written complaints—he will take them verbally, but requires letters for the record—and then investigate.

Canada's second ombudsman —Alberta has the first—Dr. Flemington, works with one bilingual secretary and a legal adviser. He feels the creation of the ombudsman's office was opportune in New Brunswick.

Speaking of the growth of most governments, including New Brunswick, he said:

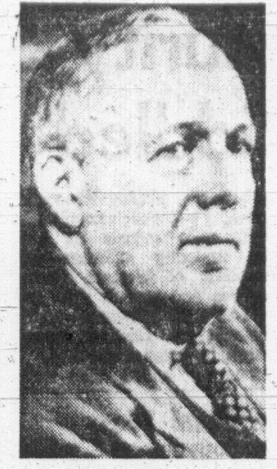
"For the past half-century, there has been a growing feeling that the democratic process and the law are unable to deal with all the grievances of citizens against government.

"The welfare state concept is being generally accepted but it has multiplied the opportunities for individual grievances. I suppose the ombudsman results from the tremendous growth of governments which have no time for the individual."

Woman Charged

A 22-year-old woman was charged in central court Wednesday with possession of marijuana.

Carolyn Bensinger, 1050 Southgate, was remanded without plea to Friday to obtain advice of counsel. Bail was set at $500.



EDITOR EMERITUS of the London, Ont., Free Press and one of Canada's most prominent journalists, Arthur R. Ford died Wednesday at 87. Prime Minister Pearson said "Canada has lost one of its most distinguished citizens."

Indian Policy Hearings Open in B.C. Next Month

OTTAWA (CP) — Consultations with Indian bands on proposed sweeping changes in the Indian Act get under way May 16 in Terrace, B.C.

By the fall, officials of the Indian affairs department hope to have heard from spokesmen representing all 558 bands across the nation on the changes aimed at giving Indians more opportunities to manage their own affairs.

Robert Battle, assistant deputy minister of Indian affairs, will head the government delegation at the 19 regional meetings.

The agenda for the most part will be 34 suggestions made by the National Advisory Council of Indians as to how the Indian Act should be revised.

Spokesmen chosen by the bands will be asked their opinions on the suggestion and asked also any other changes they would like to see made.

To prepare Indians for the meetings, the department last month sent out a booklet entitled Choosing a Path which outlines the questions to be discussed.

LISTS EXAMPLES

Sample questions:

- Should the Indian Act permit delegation of authority so band councils can make more decisions?
- Should Indians and the band be able to pledge all property other than real estate as security for loans with the lender being able to seize the pledged property if the debt is not paid?
- Should band councils be able to enter into short-term leases on their own authority? How long a term?
- Should individual bands be able to select the kind of local government which suits it so each community can manage its own affairs to the degree each band wishes?

Allies Vow To Keep Fighting

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — The seven allies in the Vietnam war today vowed to keep fighting until a peace is attained in which Hanoi respects South Vietnam's "democratic and constitutional rights."

In a statement issued after a one-day meeting the allied countries' foreign ministers also ruled out a coalition government in South Vietnam as "unacceptable."

The statement, whose signers included U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, appeared to be written to allay fears among America's Asian allies that the U.S. might be weakening in its determination to see the war through.

It said any negotiations with the Communists must assure the people of South Vietnam "the right to determine their own future through democratic and constitutional processes without either external interference or terrorist pressure."

It said the foreign ministers "expressed the determination of their governments to continue and where possible to increase their efforts to meet the requirements of the struggle until peace was attained."

Pair Guilty Of Theft

A 16-year-old youth pleaded guilty in central court Tuesday to taking $145 from a Government Street store Monday.

Earlier in the day, Danny Allen, 18, of 1266 Downham, pleaded guilty to the same charge.

Police said the pair took the money while clerks in Sidney Reynolds Chinaware, 801 Government, were distracted.

Both were remanded to April 9 for pre-sentence report.

PEDERSON
. . . seen by thousands

Films Probe Undersea Wonders

In the history of man the 20th century may well be remembered as much for exploration of the oceans as for conquest of space.

Two films probing the wonders underwater will be shown in the Oak Bay junior secondary auditorium Friday and Saturday nights as part of the World Around Us series.

Friday night noted oceanographer and photographer Harry Pederson will narrate his movie Village Beneath the Sea. Saturday night he will show The Bahamas . . . From Top to Bottom.

Mr. Pederson's film footage has been seen by hundreds of thousands in motion pictures such as Rachel Carson's The Sea Around Us; Hunters of the Deep; Twenty Thousands Leagues Under the Sea and Mysteries of the Deep.

The World Around Us series of illustrated lectures is sponsored by the evening division of the Greater Victoria school board.

The Pederson movies begin at 8 both nights. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Saigon Security Slips As City 'Riddled' by Cong

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's capital is not the bastion of an embattled nation. It is an open city.

The Viet Cong are at the gates—and within. Viet Cong guerrillas lie hidden in the bush and rice paddies just beyond the city limits in all directions. Thousands are in the city itself, undistinguishable among the 3,000,000 inhabitants.

Security precautions are haphazard.

To anyone familiar with the bloody urban terrorism that disrupted such cities as Algiers and Aden, the lack of security is hard to believe.

Only two months after the Viet Cong almost overran the city, U.S. soldiers nonchalantly stroll unarmed through the streets or ride bunched together on trucks without a single weapon to protect them.

Vietnamese sentries relax on chairs behind crumbling sandbag barriers, sipping lemonade or reading paperback novels.

Vietnamese guards at any camp zealously examine the credentials of Western correspondents and consult their superiors by telephone—while truckloads of civilians drive through the gates unchecked.

Trucks loaded high with vegetables grown in the countryside roll unmolested into the city, past idle checkpoints theoretically intended to stop Viet Cong infiltration.

A heavy layer of red dust shows that no one has disturbed the loads since they left distant farms, many in areas where the Viet Cong are active. A ton of arms or a dozen guerrilla fighters could be concealed on a truck.

Officials admit the city is riddled with Viet Cong cells.

During the Tet offensive, when half the city lay virtually at Viet Cong mercy, Communist officials appeared on the streets as if from nowhere, identified by red armbands. When the attack faded away, the officials went back underground. The Viet Cong infrastructure, barely grazed, is ready for the next dress rehearsal.

Castellani Sues

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rene Castellani, serving a life sentence for murdering his wife, has launched a damage action against the city for injuries suffered by his daughter when struck by a police car. He is suing on behalf of Jeannine, 13, thrown 90 feet when hit by the police car last Oct. 7. The car was chasing a traffic violator.

BOMBS RIP 2 HOTELS AT SAN JUAN BEACH

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)—Explosions apparently caused by terrorists ripped two luxury beach hotels crowded with American tourists, police said today. Fires near the city destroyed six other businesses.

Puerto Rico's Criminal Investigation Corps said the bombs exploded late Wednesday at the La Concha and Condado Beach hotels and caused about $5,000 damage at each hotel. There were no reports of injuries.

AFTER 20 YEARS

Masaryk Death Probe Starts

MASARYK
. . . murder, suicide?

PRAGUE (AP) — The first witnesses were heard today in what authorities have promised will be a speedy investigation into the 1948 death of Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakia's first post-war foreign minister.

The body of Masaryk, son of Czechoslovakia's founding president, was found in the courtyard of the foreign ministry less than three weeks after the Communists took over in March, 1948. The Stalinist regime said he jumped, but many Czechs have charged he was murdered, tion.

Attorney-General Frantisek Zabransky announced the new investigation after philosopher Ivan Svitak wrote Zabransky asking him to establish whether Masaryk "was the first victim on the road to totalitarian dictatorship."

The investigation has touched off a new flood of rumors. One said the man who made Masaryk's death mask confided to his wife that he saw a puncture mark from a hypodermic needle near his right ear.

Authorities reported, meanwhile, they still have no firm motive for the alleged suicide of Supreme Court Vice-President Dr. Jozef Brestansky, who had been assigned to review the bloody Stalinist purge trials of the early 1950s.

An autopsy report released by police Wednesday night said the 43-year-old justice hanged himself March 28, the day he had disappeared. The report also said the blood alcohol content showed he had drunk a bottle of red wine before he died.

Philosopher Svitak said of Masaryk's death "there is a well-founded assumption" he was murdered. He added that the new liberal leadership which has replaced the Stalinist regime of Antonin Novatny must clear up the case "so that thousands of citizens may have faith that the talk about rehabilitation of Stalinist victims is not a trap."

STILL DIFFERENCES

Church Union Blueprint Set

LONDON (CP) — A final blueprint for union of the Church of England and Britain's Methodist church in the 1970s is published today, despite remaining differences about communion wine, divorce and the status of clergy.

The final report of the Anglican-Methodist unity commission proposes two-stage union beginning in 1970 with a series of "services of reconciliation."

The first stage would establish intercommunion — mutual recognition of each church's rites and ministries. The second stage, which might be reached by 1980, would be organic union as one church with a name yet to be decided.

The final plan includes some intentionally-ambiguous compromises on the mechanics of achieving union.

USE OWN WINES

A "particularly difficult" issue involves communion wine, because Anglican law calls for fermented grape juice while the Methodists insist it must be non-alcoholic. The commission postpones resolution of the problem, agreeing that each church could continue to use its own type of wine in the initial stages.

Also postponed is settlement of different attitudes towards remarriage of a divorced person. The Church of England holds a divorced person cannot be remarried if the original partner is alive. Methodist ministers treat each case on its merits.

Each church would maintain present practice pending final agreement, although interim arrangements would involve a curious anomaly.

A divorced Anglican could be remarried by a Methodist minister—and thus remain in communion with his own church—as long as the new partner was Methodist. If the proposed new partner were anything but Methodist, the marriage could not be solemnized legally.

ACCEPT BISHOPS

One of the chief sticking points has deen overcome by the projected Methodist acceptance of the episcopate, the Anglican-style system of church government through a hierarchy of bishops.

However, the form of service and words to be used to make the ministers of each church valid in the other's eyes remains touchy. Ministers would be called "presbyters," rather than the Anglican "priests."

In the proposed "reconciliation services," the Anglican bishop's laying on of hands in recognition of Methodist ministers as presbyters is taken by some as a reflection on the validity of the Methodist ministry. However, Methodist leaders would also lay hands on Anglican bishops and welcome them into the Methodist fellowship.

FROM THE MINISTRY

Bishops would be appointed from the Methodist ministry, at first by the Methodist conference and afterwards consecrated by Anglican. Methodist presbyters after 1970 would be episcopally ordained in accordance with Anglican law.

In the union, the Methodists would take on the Anglican status of an established church—the state church—even though the Methodists would nominate their bishops while Anglican bishops are nominated officially by the monarch.

The commission report will be considered by assemblies of both churches between now and July, 1969. If approved, the first-stage union would be arranged the following year.

Arthur Mayse

Until the leaderships convention sweeps to its crescendo in Saturday's balloting, I intend to spend every spare minute watching television.

My fiercely partisan wife (Trudeau from the start) will be close by. So will our dog, even though I'm not sure he understands the issues clearly.

We want to hear the wails of the stricken, and watch the black political blood flow.

Like the second Louis-Schmelling fight—a heavyweight joust that younger readers won't remember—the voting may end in a first-round knockout. I hope not, since the chances are that we won't have another event of this sort for many a year.

An American nominating convention has always been a wonderful extravaganza of oratory, cheesecake, circus hats and spine-tingling drama, and we in Canada have nothing that quite matches the sonorous roll-call of the states.

Last year, however, the warring Tories fashioned a new mould for the once-mousy Canadian political convention, and I look for the Grit effort to be just short of titanic.

I suppose there's still a remote chance that other candidates may follow the example of Mitchell Sharp, a finance minister whose hopes were blasted by a simple mistake in arithmetic. But even if the fantastic came to pass and only the four top contestants stuck around for the vote, it would still be a show worth watching.

★

It's easy to forget for a moment that what the country's into isn't a general election; and heaven knows we have had elections that roused less coast-to-coast interest.

We can be sure, though, that those poll-pestered VIPs, the delegates, are well aware that they make their choice under the shadow of a pending election.

So, even though the convention is a Liberal private party, those who do the choosing cannot be entirely independent of public preferences. A hard-nosed choice that went against the public grain could throw Canada to the Conservatives.

In theory, the man best suited to lead us during this stage of our emergence should be the best man, not necessarily the most popular. Whether he will be (and I am thinking here of top-rated candidate Trudeau) only time and the inevitable crises of government can demonstrate.

Mr. Sharp with his nutcracker jaws and benign 'I know what's best for you' calm, was a pretty good man. Perhaps significantly, many of those who favor Pierre Elliott Trudeau also liked Mitchell Sharp.

I hope the best man wins, though not certain just who he may be. Discounting the influence of a probable early election, I suspect that the liberal-minded among the Liberal delegates will support Mr. Trudeau, while those of conservative tendency will spend their first-round ballots elsewhere.

★

In the heat of a convention now launched and running, changes of mind can be expected. Still, approve him or not, I think we are going to find ourselves trying the consequence with Mr. Trudeau on the next leg of our Canadian journey.

The opening day ceremonies are now over, along with the policy workshops in which delegates questioned candidates under the headings, "Our Country, Our Life, and Our Economy." Departing Prime Minister Pearson's farewell address (5 to 6:30 p.m.) winds up today's CBC coverage.

On Friday, the candidates will make their pitches, with 25 minutes allotted to each, from 3 to 9 p.m. Pacific Standard Time.

Then comes Saturday, the tense one that tells the story.

The balloting is scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m., and sometime before 4:30 p.m., the winner will make his acceptance speech.

His name? A lot of us think we know . . . but until the ballots are in and counted, who can be sure?

The only certainty is that he will be taking on the toughest job in the country.

ROBERT TORRANCE
. . . started as messenger

'An Era Ends In Government Service'

He started as a messenger boy with the B.C. department of lands and worked his way up to be deputy minister.

Such a man was Robert Torrance, who died suddenly Wednesday at the age of 58. He was found dead at his home at 120 King George Terrace, apparently from a heart seizure. He had been at work the previous day.

"He was the last of an era in government service," Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today; "a prime example of a man who learned the job on the job and achieved maximum efficiency."

Mr. Williston added that Mr. Torrance had "a most outstanding knowledge of Crown land administration in British Columbia.

"We shall miss him a great deal."

Born in Nanaimo, Mr. Torrance started as a messenger with the lands department when he was 17. On Aug. 2, 1967, he took over as deputy minister at a salary of $19,000 a year.

VARIOUS POSITIONS

From 1927 on, he held various clerical positions and made his first break-through in 1945 when he was appointed assistant chief clerk.

Four years later, in 1949, he became assistant superintendent of lands. In 1954 he was named an assistant to the deputy minister and in 1958 he became assistant deputy minister himself.

In 1959 Mr. Torrance was one of the first graduates of the University of British Columbia's executive development training plan. And in 1962 he graduated from the Banff School of Advanced Management.

SURVIVORS

Mr. Torrance lost his wife in 1966. He is survived by a son, Tom, in Victoria; two sisters, Mrs. J. Jarvie, Victoria, and Mrs. J. Machray, Vancouver, and several nieces and nephews.

Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley of Fairfield United Church will conduct funeral services in McCall Brothers' chapel Saturday at 3:15 p.m. Interment will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Car Driver 'Grounded' Two Years

A man was fined a total of $650 in central court today on two charges resulting from a traffic accident March 27.

Police said Ronald Kiefert, 28, of 1323 Sussex caused a four-car collision at Esquimalt Road and Catherine Street which sent four persons to hospital.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said witnesses observed Kiefert's car pass another on the right and slam into the rear of a car stopped at Catherine for a red light.

The second car was pushed into a third, and the two slid into the intersection where they were hit by a fourth.

TWO CARS DEMOLISHED

Damage totalled $4,500 and two of the cars were considered demolished, Mr. Birkett said.

Magistrate Ostler fined Kiefert $250 for criminal negligence and $400 for impaired driving. His driver's licence was suspended two years.

Gregory Coshen, of Vancouver, was fined $375 after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Court was told he was observed driving in an erratic manner on the Sooke Road Wednesday afternoon.

Faulty Oil Heater Costs Resident $35

A fire caused by an improperly installed oil heater cost a man $35 in central court today.

John Carlow, 1243 Colville, was fined after Esquimalt fire officer Jim Owens testified a fire in a building at the rear of Carlow's property was caused by the heater.

COUNCIL WOULD GET FACTS . . . . . . AND PROPOSED MILL RATE

City May Streamline Budget-Cutting Sessions

By JIM HUME

Sweeping changes in the way Victoria city handles its annual budget will be proposed during the next nine months.

The changes, to be recommended to council by Mayor Hugh Stephen in time for the 1969 budget sessions, would eliminate the tedious budget-cutting sessions in the form of an annual spring rite.

Mayor Stephen said he made his decision to review the entire budget-cutting operation after discussions with city manager Dennis Young and city treasurer James Bramley.

Both city officials feel that the present method, in use for many years, could and should be streamlined to meet modern needs.

AFTER 10 DAYS

Left unsaid by all three, but obviously uppermost in their minds, is the fact that after 10 days of detailed budget-trimming this year council members have only been able to slice a meagre $483,044 from the more than $17 million preliminary budget.

Under the existing system each department head at city hall prepares the estimates for his own department and then faces a city council committee to justify his proposals.

Nobody has ever accused a department head of padding his budget with items he expects to be cut in order to leave the committee sympathetic to projects he wants to ease through.

But city council members have admitted that they often have the uneasy feeling that they have been placed in unenviable positions by adroit preliminary presentations.

If council accepts the mayor's recommendations, future budgets will be prepared by the department head, the chairman of respective committees, the city treasurer and the city manager.

MORE EFFICIENT

"It would seem to me to be a more efficient way of preparing the budget, a better and more meaningful way," the mayor said.

Mr. Young said the new system would not remove any powers from council members but would instead present them with facts, figures and advice readiy understood.

"Instead of going through several weeks of budget-cutting the department head, the committee chairman and myself would present to full council a preliminary budget already trimmed," Mr. Young said.

"At the same time we would be able to tell council what mill rate was required to sustain the budget recommended and why the various projects were essential.

"Council would then decide whether or not it would accept that mill rate and which order of priority revenue should be spent.

Mr. Young said it was becoming increasingly obvious that the complexity of operating the modern city required some positive changes in approach.

"The aldermen of this city work hard at their jobs," Mr. Young said. "But they just do not have the time to involve themselves in the detailed operations of the various departments. As a result they have to accept the best possible technical advice available to them.

"We want to give them the advice of a team rather than the advice of one department head."

Mr. Young said he and Mr. Bramley hoped to have their recommendations ready for study by Mayor Stephen before the end of his year and that he was hopeful that council would approve the new move.

IN ONE WEEK

"If the recommendations are accepted I would hope that next year one full week can be set aside for budget discussions, say the last week in April. At that time council would be able to receive the full budget picture, the mill rate, the amount of revenue required to run the city and would therefore find it considerably easier to make their decisions," Mr. Young added.

Mayor Stephen agreed that change was essential.

"As we work now we prepare the budget in a vacuum," he said. "We must in future prepare it in the context of the resources of the city.

"If council accepts the recommendations it will mean that committee chairmen will play a far more meaningful role in the running of the city's business.

"With the department head they will actually prepare the budget in co-operation with the city manager and eventually bring it to council well equipped and prepared to argue for the various priorities.

In the meantime the prospects are that any tax increases will be of a minor nature and that there is a good possibilty that the tax-line can be held.

The value of the mill for school purposes has been set at $140,000 and for general purposes at $124,000.

Last year the general purpose mill was valued at $120,000 and the school mill slightly higher.

Whether the line can be held or not depends greatly on the decision of the provincial government on the school mill increase.

Last year it jumped an unprecedented 4.8 mills.

This year, so Minister of Education Leslie Peterson says, it should not increase more than two mills, a jump which would leave Victoria to find an additional $280,000.

"If it stays at two mills or less we should be in good shape," said Mr. Bramley. "But . . ."

The final word is expected from the government on April 15.

'High Rent Cuts Diet Of Aged'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Rent increases of from $10 to $20 a month on rooms and apartments are putting many of Victoria's senior citizens on a starvation diet.

"A number of our members are cutting down on food to meet recent sharp increases in rent," says Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director of Victoria Silver Threads Centre.

"This is a menace to health and we are doing our best to find them cheaper accommodation. In many cases this means moving out of inadequate accommodation into something worse."

Mrs. Horne said directors of the centre will set up a special committee to investigate the problem of increased rents.

The Victoria centre now has 3,120 members, of whom about 75 per cent are living in rooms and apartments.

Recently the Victoria centre initiated a telephone reassurance service—daily phone calls to elderly men and women living alone.

More than 50 younger men and women have volunteered to make the daily calls. Senior citizens wishing to be contacted should call 388-4268.

Superport Talks Set For Monday

High-level federal and provincial technical and administrative representatives will meet Monday to discuss development of the Roberts Bank superport.

Howard Mann, chairman of the national harbors board, and John Southworth, executive secretary of the provincial harbors board, will head their own teams of experts and consultants at the meeting, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today.

The meeting will take place in Ladner with Delta Reeve Dugald Morrison also attending. The meeting was organized at his request.

It will be the first meeting at the technical level since both government began taking steps to build separate ports at the same site.

TALKED AT CHRISTMAS

Last contacts between the governments about the superport took place before Christmas when Transport Minister Hellyer and Mr. Bonner met in Ottawa to discuss possibilities of joint development.

The Ladner meeting likely will "catalogue the questions and answers" regarding some of the physical problems in developing the port and may explore further means of achieving a joint development, Mr. Bonner indicated.

Oil Rig Near Charlottes

A 400-mile tow to relocate the semi-submersible offshore drilling platform under contract to Shell Canada is more than half over.

The vessel, under tow by 3,500 h.p. Gulf Joan, another tug and her two tender ships, left Barkley Sound four days ago after spending 10 months drilling four wildcat wells 12-20 miles off Vancouver Island's west coast Long Beach.

RARE COMBINATION of speed and seaworthiness in a troller is claimed by Philbrook's yard near Sidney in this new $50,000, fibreglass hull by Pelagic Pacific. Forty-foot length and 11-foot beam is designed with only four foot draught. Owner Matti Laukkanen of 1955 Townley hopes to cruise at 16 knots with 275 h.p. diesel while carrying 600 gallons of fuel, 250 gallons of water (in tanks sweetened with beeswax) and up to 20,000 pounds of fish—if the seas are generous. There are three control stations and all modern detection gear. Fast in and fast out capability will give him more time at the fishing grounds.

TOW TUG ARRIVES

Last of Frigates Bound for Japan

By ALAN WHITE

Two of the last naval frigates on the West Coast—one of them a pioneer weather ship on Station Papa—will be hauled off to Japan for scrap Friday.

The Japanese tug Toko Maru arrived in Victoria at noon to tow the Beacon Hill and St. Catharines from their resting places in Esquimalt Harbor.

A shipping office spokesman said this morning the tug, owned by Mitsui Shipping of Osaka, Japan, will leave sometime Friday with the two frigates.

The two vessels were sold recently through Crown Assets Disposal Corporation to N. W. Kennedy Shipping of Vancouver, the spokesman said.

RETIRED LAST FALL

Beacon Hill—HMCS until she was decommissioned last September—was the last frigate of the Pacific Maritime Command.

Built during the Second World War at Yarrows, Ltd., for the Royal Canadian Navy, she served up until the time she was taken out of service.

She is 301 feet in length and weighs 1,570 tons.

St. Catharines—bearing the name and unique spelling of the Victoria-like Ontario city near Niagara Falls—is a sister ship to Beacon Hill.

She was built at Yarrows in 1943 and served with the RCN until the late 1940s.

Then she was sailed around from the east coast with HMCS Stonetown to become a department of transport weather ship.

Rebuilt and strengthened to withstand weeks of standing fast in the Pacific 900 miles off the coast of Vancouver Island, she became one of the first ships to serve on weather Station Papa (first known as Station Peter).

WEATHERED CRITICISM

St. Catharines withstood the mountainous seas of the weather station and severe criticism of crew members who thought she was unsafe from 1950 until April of 1967.

Then she was replaced by the new Canadian Coast Guard Ship Vancouver.

Much of her electronic gear and weather-monitoring equipment was removed for installation on her replacement vessel.

The ship's wheel and bell were sent to the city of St. Catharines for installation in a museum there, a DOT official said.

Her sister frigate on the weather station, Stonetown, was taken out of commission several months ago and has been recommended for similar sale as surplus, he said.

Lottery for Us? Don't Bet on It!

'Montreal Experiment Will Be Short-Lived'

By PETE LOUDON

Civic and government leaders here are against following the lead of Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau in planning a tax lottery.

"Lotteries are still illegal," said Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

"It will be a short-lived experiment," said Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen.

"The B.C. Municipal Act does not permit it," said Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis.

"It wouldn't work for building hospitals here," said George Masters, secretary of Royal Jubilee Development Society.

$28 MILLION

The Drapeau plan was unveiled Wednesday. Mayor Drapeau, who maintains his scheme is not a lottery, plans to raise $28 million annually by inviting Canadians to pay a voluntary $2 tax to his city each month.

The "taxpayer" would then be qualified for a monthly draw for $150,000 in cash prizes ranging from $100,000 to $100, payable when winners correctly answer a skill-testing question — "an easy one."

Here are detailed reactions recorded in Victoria this morning:

Mr. Bonner said lotteries are illegal in Canada and the amendments to the law, which now are before Parliament, "are likely to undergo quite a debate."

He conceded that Mayor Drapeau's plan to combine a draw with skill questions might make it legal but a moral question remains, should service to the Canadian public properly be financed by a lottery?

NOT SUCCESSFUL

Mr. Bonner said experiments with a state lottery in New Hampshire have not been successful. He pointed out that a huge amount of money must be raised to make such a scheme effective.

In Ireland, where a lottery, the Irish Sweepstake, is famous, only six hospitals are aided by the world-wide lottery.

And Ireland is not a wealthy country and hospital services are geared accordingly, he added.

Mayor Stephen said he personally does not think a lottery is a proper way to meet government expenditures, although it might be suited to charities.

In Britain experiments have been made with draws for U.K. bonds, "but I don't think it lasted." He didn't think the scheme would be applicable to Victoria although it might be all right in Montreal.

Montreal, he said, has "got into a jackpot" and is so overspent the city is in grave trouble. But Victoria has one of the lowest borrowing records in Canada and one of the lowest municipal per capita debts.

He doubted that many Victorians would agree to pay taxes to Montreal.

SHARE THE POT

"It will just share up the gambling pot instead of it all going to the Irish. Those who buy chances will do it for a year or two and then turn to another form of gambling and where will Mayor Drapeau be then?"

Reeve Curtis said it might be excellent for Montreal but it's not permitted in B.C. under the Municipal Act. He conceded that Canada appears to be moving toward lotteries.

"Mayor Drapeau has shown leadership in other areas and it could be he is doing the same here."

Mr. Masters said he thought Victoria would have to sell tickets all over the world to make a lottery successful.

He recalled that he had researched the idea several years ago when Victoria's Royal Jubilee was building a new $500,000 wing.

"We would have had to sell $150 worth of tickets to every family in Victoria" in order to pay for the project and prizes.

Ald. C. M. Parrott of Victoria was the only person contacted who would say "it's worth looking into." But personally, despite the fact "75 per cent of people buy sweepstakes" he did not think a lottery was a desirable way of raising civic revenues.

New Foolproof Bottle Ends Polish Problems

By PENNY SAVER

Does drippy nail-polish get you down? It has got me down before now — on my knees cleaning it off the floor and out of carpets! It's not that I am naturally sloppy or anything like that, but about a week ago our friendly little pup decided to leap up to see me while I was doing my nails. Only one bottle in the whole area was open—the nail-polish bottle and only one bottle hit the floor. Poor pooch was covered in gooey pink nail-polish and had to stand still for many minutes while I worked it out of his hair. But poor Penny had to work it out of the carpet long after the dog had made his escape. My manicure was ruined, not to mention the carpet which was utterly devoid of pattern by the time I was through.

Jayne has a better idea — with a bit of help from one of the manufacturers. She has just introduced me to a new way of packaging nail-polish. It is a bottle with an automatic dispenser. The brush slips back into a plastic well on the top of the bottle. When the lid is removed Jayne just turns the bottle upside-down and the brush appears. The well keeps feeding the brush just the right amount of polish for a good, even application. The advantages are clear. It doesn't drip. Jayne never ends up with a big glob of nail-polish that oozes all over her nail. She never runs out of polish just before a nail is finished either. The cap, she has noticed, doesn't stick as much and of course the bottle never sits alone and unprotected. Unfrosted colors in this packaging are $1.19 and include colorless, natural and a pink shade. Frosted natural, white, pink and "nude" colors are $1.29 a bottle. Since this fool-proof bottle is sure to be a hit, more shades will undoubtedly follow.

Beauty Much More Than Skin Deep

I'm getting bombarded with beauty advice ever since I adopted my new look. The latest came from my sister. "It looks wonderful, Penny, but you must keep it up from within." By this she meant I should use a night cream to keep my skin moist and smooth. She had me try some of the kind she uses and I must admit it is the lightest, most delightful cream I have tried yet. The texture of this cream is as light as can be and it soaks right into the skin without feeling greasy. The manufacturer says it holds moisture and continues to rise to the surface as the skin dries out. I can't swear to what is happening under my skin but I am quite pleased with the results. A $7.50 jar lasts about six months. The larger size is $12.50.

"Penny, come and see what I have found. I haven't seen one for years." My mother called me over to see an insulated teapot, just like the one that she had years ago. This six-cup ceramic pot has a dripless spout and comes in a plain, dark brown. An aluminum cover lined with felt slips over all but the spout and the handle, keeping the tea warm as can be. Since Mother's first insulated pot was broken both she and I have looked for another. She found this one the other day priced at $3.95.

If you would like to know where I found these items, please call me at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Madman' Husband

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a madman. If I fix him breakfast maybe he'll eat it, and maybe he'll throw it at me. If I don't fix him breakfast, he runs down the street, cursing a blue streak. He gets raving mad over nothing and throws the patio furniture 100 feet over the fence. Then he runs out of the house and hides in alleys.

Don't tell me to call the local authorities. I did and they said. "He sounds sick. Bring him in sometime."

And don't tell me to take him to a psychiatrist. He's too heavy to carry and too big to push. And have you ever tried driving a car with a man who is trying to jump out? You steer with one hand and hold onto his belt with the other and pray he won't jump out into the traffic when another car is near.

Abby, this is the fourth time I have written to you and have drawn three blanks, but you are supposed to give advice, so I am going to keep on writing until I get it. I suppose I could just kill myself to get away from this cursing man, but I have no such intentions. For God's sakes, Abby, help me! I am tired of hunting for a crazy husband in the alleys with a flashlight at 2 a.m.

MARGARET

DEAR MARGARET: Your letter gives no last name and no address, so the only "help" I can give you is to urge you to call either your family physician or your local police department. If you don't want to do that, identify yourself, and I will have your case investigated at once and keep it confidential.

SEW SIMPLE

Tailor Trix Winner

Mrs. Paul Groerich, St. Louis, Mo., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"I have found this a helpful tip to my scouts, both boy and girl. The badge sash always would slip down over the shoulder. I sewed a hook on the top seam of the badge sash at the neckline, then made a thread loop on the blouse or shirt of the uniform at the neckline. This type of loop allows for easier laundering and the badge sash is always in place."

Dear Eunice Farmer:

Being an amateur seamstress, I have had no experience with bonded crepe. My daughter has selected bonded crepe for her bridesmaid's dresses. The style is simple, A-line, with an inverted back pleat in the skirt.

Now I am concerned about the fabric since everyone has a different opinion about the effect I will have from bonded fabric. Would you help us make a decision?

Mrs. W. E. F.

Dear Mrs. W. E. F.:

Since you have described the style of the dresses as A-line, I would say the bonded crepe would work very well. If your dresses were draped, you would want the soft, lovely effect that only crepe can give. This could be your clue to many fabrics.

It isn't so much the fabric as the style of the garment for which it will be used. I always try to suggest a pattern and the fabric at the same time and not try to make any selection with a closed mind.

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I have very sloping shoulders and have to slant the pattern at the shoulder seam and take out a corresponding amount at the lower armhole. Should the sleeve notches be lowered an equal amount to match with the back and front of the garment?

Mrs. D. C.

Dear Mrs. D. C.:

Yes. If you change the notches on one part of your pattern, you must make a corresponding change on the other or the two will not match perfectly. I think you will find my booklet "Your Pattern and You" very helpful in pattern changes. You may obtain your copy by sending your request and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope plus 25 cents, Address to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Male Reader Writes Of His Youthfulness at 86

I just have to share this wonderful letter with my readers! It is from one of the men who read my column. Here it is.

Josephine,

What do you mean when you say "age"? My typewriter and I are a little worn out but we are still active.

Lowman

I am past 86 years old. I was born after President Garfield was assassinated. Arthur became president, and my parents named me after President Arthur, expecting that I might become president some day.

I haven't much hope left for that, because I don't know whether I am on my way to the White House or the grave yard. But it would be a great honor.

I do not believe that this reader need worry about the graveyard, and you won't either if you read on.

I arise in the morning at 6 a.m. and fix my breakfast and mop the floors. On Sunday mornings I get up at 6 a.m. and go to the radio station for three broadcasts, from 7:30 to 9 a.m. Then I go on to my church where I am a lay speaker assistant and men's Bible class teacher. I get home about 12:30 p.m. I hold a meeting for those in the jail each Monday.

Outside of that, I am a retired railroader and minister. So if you want to know how to live longer—early to bed, early to rise—stay on your knees till you hear from the skies.

It is a great help if one is blessed with a wonderful constitution and has some long-lived ancestors. However, there is no doubt that eager interests, respect for health habits, investing in work you feel is worthwhile, being of service, a belief in something bigger than oneself and a sense of humor have magic and rejuvenating qualities.

And, don't forget the stars! They are always there even if you cannot always see them. Keep looking for them, and suddenly, your life will be brighter and the stars will be brilliant, that is, if you keep looking up instead of down.

This letter gave me a lift and I hope it will give you one, too.

Many women feel they are old after they reach the age of 40. This need not be so. Learn how to enjoy youth after the age of 40 in my free leaflet, "Watchwords of Science for Youth After 40." Mrs. L. S. Asks Canadian Carpet Clinic
"How often do you recommend that my carpet and rugs should be cleaned?"

A
"WE USED TO RECOMMEND at least once a year, but today due to new fibres and very light colors in carpets and rugs, you may find it necessary to clean them more often—but in some cases less often. Rugs and carpets should be cleaned as soon as soil or dinginess begins to show, particularly in traffic areas. Delaying good professional care may result in harmful permanent damage to the fibres."

Introducing Entrance Floor Polish

Quite modestly, it's the best, clear, self-polishing, detergent-resistant floor wax—bar none!

How do we know? It took 2 million steps to prove it. People stepped on it in high heels, low heels, brogues and workboots . . . still Entrance kept its shine, resisted scuffing and marking. We tested Entrance Floor Polish commercially for one year before offering it to you. We proved it on office floors, lobbies and entrances to hardheaded businessmen. It was a tough test but Entrance came through looking great. One coat will give a higher gloss to your floor than any other wax and for better protection you can apply additional coats immediately. Entrance costs a little more than ordinary floor polishes but you'll use less of it, less often.

Next time you buy floor wax, make it Entrance. It's a better floor polish than any you've used before . . . bar none!

So, make your first step onto Entrance.

Wild Clothes Take Back Seat To Quietly Elegant Fashions

Proof that clothes are still made for people was presented by Toojays, Wednesday, when they showed attractive, elegant and very wearable fashions at the Century Inn.

Afternoon and evening shows, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society featured "fashions representing a day in the lives of eight active women. Fashions," said commentator Miss Rosanne Barrett, "that you can wear from early morning and through to the cocktail hour with quiet elegance and good taste."

The nearest thing to flower-child-fashions was a gorgeous flowered hat with daisies growing out in all directions. But of mini-skirts there were none, and psychedelia was left to a few examples of brightly colored hats and bags worn with classic dresses.

Miss Barrett was applauded when she commented about hem-lines:

"Skirts should end where a woman feels they are right, for the sake of her legs and her own well-being."

This theory was carried out throughout the show, proving that fashion for anyone over 21 doesn't have to be dowdy to be appropriate.

Models showed at-home clothes, including a dainty blue peignoir for a quiet cup of morning coffee, and a patio robe of many colors for an informal summer luncheon.

For a luncheon date in town there was a choice of classic navy dress and hat, or citrus green dress with psychedelic hat and bag. For morning meetings, Toojays suggest a belted suit of hand-woven Irish tweed in shades of tan and brown.

For dressier occasions, there was a navy tunic dress worn under a white coat, or a dress and jacket ensemble of antique gold and turquoise. For travelling, uncrushable Crimplene was shown in another dress and jacket ensemble.

For the theatre, a classic sleeveless dress was worn with a gold lame coat, long gold gloves and gold shoes.

Accessories were emphasized, and fabulous hats, gloves and jewelry showed their importance in the total look.

Mrs. N. B. Fatt, president of the WA, received guests, assisted by first vice-president, Mrs. George Steele. Mrs. Hugh Stephen opened the tea. Other head table guests were Mrs. Evan Jones, president of the board; Mrs. E. C. Carson, honorary first vice-president; Mrs. A. J. Bowering, past president; Mrs. A. B. Williams, and Mrs. J. Barraclough of Toojays.

Members of the auxiliary acting as models were Mrs. Fatt, Mrs. L. J. Moore, Mrs. J. Talboom and Miss Alice Ullock. Models from Toojays were Mrs. Roland Meunier, Mrs. Barbara Davidson, Mrs. Gwen Wilson and Miss Helen Gray. Miss Jean Boyd was fashion co-ordinator.

Mrs. Richard Egan and Mrs. Evan Jones were in charge of tickets. Proceeds amounted to $530.

SKATES WOULD HAVE HELPED

Presidents of women's auxiliaries not only have to be versatile . . . they also have to be healthy. At Wednesday's CARS fashion show and tea in the Century Inn, president, Mrs. N. B. Fatt, proved the point. Switching roles like a chameleon, Mrs. Fatt welcomed guests at the door, then introduced Mrs. Hugh Stephen, who officially opened the event, then, passing up tea, mounted the runway and did her stint as one of the models. She managed her triple role without blinking an eye.

The former Quebec cabinet minister told a news conference most of the money will come from his own pocket. A "minimal" amount was donated by close friends. None came from companies.

SHARP SECOND

Pierre Made Most News

QUEBEC (CP) — A survey by four Laval University political scientists students shows Pierre Elliott Trudeau received more attention in newspaper stories, editorials, cartoons and photographs between Jan. 1 and March 20 than any other candidate for the Liberal party leadership.

Sixteen major Canadian newspapers, covering each province, were checked by the students during that period.

The survey showed Mr. Trudeau received 26 per cent of leadership publicity, Mitchell Sharp 16.1 per cent and Paul Martin 11.8.

The others followed in this order: Eric Kierans 9.3; Paul Hellyer 9.2; Robert Winters 8.5; Allan MacEachen and John Turner 6.9; Joe Greene 4.6.

The newspapers surveyed were: Vancouver Sun, Edmonton Journal, Regina Leader-Post, Winnipeg Free Press, Toronto Star, Toronto Globe and Mail, Montreal La Presse, Quebec Le Soleil, Saint John Telegraph-Journal, Halifax Chronicle-Herald, Charlottetown Patriot and St. John's Telegram.

Lionel Forks Up Hotel Bill

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hotel owner Frank Bernard said Wednesday Lionel LaFramboise, a Liberal leadership candidate, paid his bill Tuesday night.

Bernard, owner of the Georgian Towers Hotel, said he received a wired money order for $85.10 four days late. It arrived 48 hours after LaFramboise of Elliot Lake, Ont., was charged with fraud over non-payment of the bill.

"I will gladly drop the charge now the bill has been paid," Bernard said, "But under the law it is out of my hands. Once a charge has been made it is up to the prosecutor's office to decide what to do next."

The prosecutor's office would make no comment other than to say the charge remained outstanding.

He now is in Ottawa to take part in the convention opening there today. He told reporters earlier the charge was either a misunderstanding or an attempt to blacken his name.

He said an agent, who he did not identify, was supposed to have checked him out of the hotel when he had to leave hurriedly after a mixup in his travel plans.

Car Hits Boy, Leg Broken

Kevin Dovell, 539 Dunedin, suffered a broken leg and head injuries when he darted in front of a car in the 500 block Dunedin.

Police said the car involved was driven by Ignac Kolenko, 1790 Bay Street.

DELEGATES RAISE HELLYER, TURNER BANNERS

B.C. Makes Big Noise in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The British Columbia delegation to the federal Liberal leadership convention caused more noise than any other upon arrival at Ottawa Uplands Airport Wednesday.

Unlike other delegations, the West Coast people arrived with a little bazazz of their own. The first two people off the plane unfurled a banner supporting Consumer Affairs Minister Turner. The next two unfurled a banner supporting Transport Minister Hellyer.

Virtually every person disembarking from the charter flight was wearing a hat, ribbons or buttons naming a candidate of their choice.

Their appearance further enlivened proceedings within the airport terminal building which had been jumping all day with well organized demonstrations, sing songs, brass and Dixieland bands.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDEN

Keep Notes on Plants

By HILDA BEASTALL

Everything in the garden is growing bountifully during these spring days, and many exciting moments occur as treasures of other years are discovered coming through the rich damp soil.

Each year I find excitement in looking over the cutting bed. Here, dozens of cuttings were planted out during last summer and early fall while days were still warm. They had previously been rooted in a coldframe and they are ready to be planted into permanent places.

Hilda

There are helianthemum (the Sun-rose), aubrietia, veronica, iberis (perennial candytuft), dwarf phloxes, viola, all grown into sizeable little plants from cuttings taken one to two inches long.

Each year when setting out these fine little plants, I am fired anew with enthusiasm for taking cuttings of each plant as the right time comes. A notebook is essential, so that one knows in advance which plants to watch each week for suitable cutting material.

A shallow coldframe is a great help if a quantity is involved, but for small numbers a three-inch-deep flat or a few four-inch clay pots can be used. Half-fill the container with a mixture of sand and screened compost, and top off to the brim with another mix of sand and peatmoss or the new seaforest.

Press down gently with a flat block of wood. Insert the short cuttings into the medium, and after thoroughly moistening the whole box and its contents, arrange a tent of plastic over it to keep in the moisture, but with sufficient airspace to prevent mildew.

A sunny window will be warm enough, and if necessary a temporary shade can be erected against hot sun.

A small potfull of cuttings can be covered with a glass sealer or a plastic bag until rooted.

Under a jar, ventilation once daily will be needed, and perhaps spraying with tepid water will be required in a flat if the weather is really hot.

From April on, rooting of these easy plants will take about 10 to 14 days.

ANTEATERS NEW FAVORITE FOR EXOTIC PET LOVERS

By KARIN MOSER

MONTREAL (CP) — Bow-legged, furry little animals with long snouts may soon be trudging along Montreal streets on leaches if the demand for anteaters continues to climb.

Not only are these 20-inch-long toothless pets replacing dogs and cats as gifts for children, but small boa constrictors are delighting the sons of Montreal's more courageous mothers.

Alex MacLouren, president of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says the only place for exotic animals and reptiles is in the zoo.

But William Mooyman, assistant manager and self-proclaimed animal expert at the midtown Pascal hardware store, does not agree.

"Actually," explained Mr. Mooyman, "anteaters, constrictors, honey bears and skunks are really easy to care for and twice as easy to love."

An anteater consumes only one-quarter of a pound of minced meat or hamburger daily.

"And talk about being toilet-trained," said Mr. Mooyman. "He just doesn't have to go! Once a week you find a tiny hard deposit somewhere, but there is absolutely no fuss or bother."

Mr. MacLaurin says home-owners are not equipped to deal with unusual animals and "it's just plain cruelty to the pets."

Mr. Mooyman says all potential customers are carefully screened and their living quarters taken into consideration before a pet is sold.

LOVE EXTENDS LIFE

"We have turned down customers who wanted to buy pets because we felt their residence was not suitable for a specific type of animal.

"Most pets acclimatize quickly when they have adequate space to move about in and the love and attention they receive often increases their life span by as much as five years."

Skunks, which sell for about $40 and live on a diet of minced meat and fruit cocktail, have been de-scented and made a favorite pet for little girls.

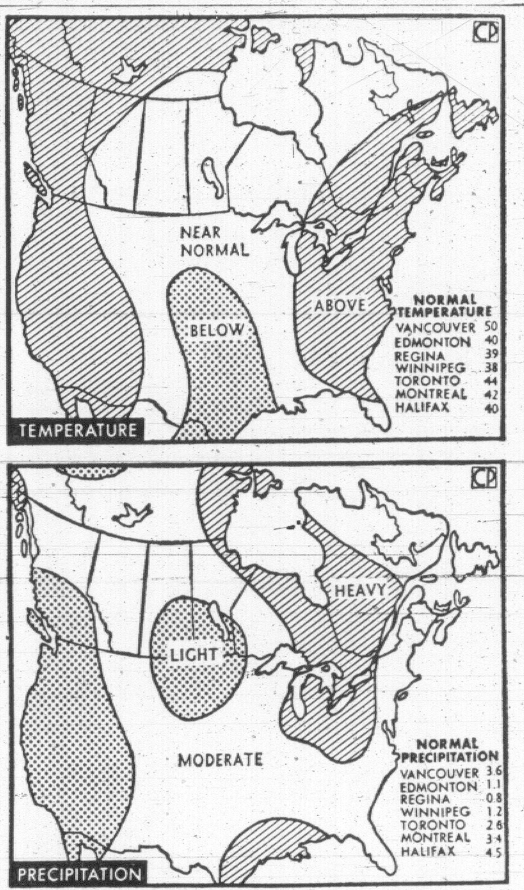
"Boys prefer boas but girls really latch on to skunks and monkeys."

The anteater costs about $50.

Referring to a statement in which Mr. MacLaurin said squirrels and skunks are prone to rabies and could catch the disease in the country, Mr. Mooyman said all animals brought into Canada have been inoculated for rabies and a variety of other possible diseases rendering them safe.

"Animals would never be let into the country without the proper certificates," he said. "Each new pet-owner receives a record of his pet along with the proper certificates proving inoculation."

Each customer who buys an animal is told that some varieties can be kept only for a certain period of time before they grow too large and must be handed over to a zoo.



DRY AND WARM is the long-range forecast for the Vancouver Island region in a 30-day outlook prepared by the United States weather bureau. The Great Lakes district can expect above-average rainfall, the forecast indicates. (CP Newsmap.)

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Richard Dorin, age 14, of Redwood City, California, for his question:

What basic features distinguish plants from animals?

Biologists have identified more than a million living organisms and it is doubtful that they have discoverd half of them. They have classified them in two major groups—the Plant Kingdom and the Animal Kingdom. This classification was established generations ago when scientists approached the study of nature with brash and rather cocksure convictions. Modern scientists have learned that nature's profound wisdom is too flexible to be fitted into simple, set rules devised by the human mind. They know enough to allow for loopholes in nature's schemes, to expect bridges between their hard and fast classifications. They know enough to be baffled. When they are wise, the keep their minds open like students, eager to learn from nature, the greatest of all teachers.

All this leads to the topic in today's question. It is true that we can divide most of the known species of life into plants and animals. But nature herself may not abide by this man-made system. Let's keep in mind that our classifications were devised for human convenience and that the wisdom and diversity of nature are, at present, beyond the full grasp of the human mind. We can note a number of basic features found in most animals. But biologists of the future may require a midway kingdom for many of the single-celled protist organisms.

Both Need Oxygen

Anybody can note different fundamental feaures in an elm and an elk and nobody assumes that the crow is related to the crocus. The elm and the crocus are permanently rooted in the ground. The elk and the crow can, and indeed they must, move freely around. Motion appears to be a basic difference. But plants bow to the wing and move as they slowly grow. They also scatter seeds, moving their offspring to new locations. What's more, the adult sponge, which is an animal, remains fixed to one spot like a rooted plant. The biggest plants grow large and live longer than any animal. But this rule does not apply to small plants. What's more, certain one-celled plants and animals both may be immortal.

In the matter of supporting themselves, making a living, the differences are quite marked. Most, but not all plants contain green chlorophyll to use sunlight for making basic food from air and water. Their roots absorb other nourishment from chemicals dissolved in ground water. Unlike most animals, they cannot hunt and devour chunks of whole food. But all animals must digest their food, separate and liquify its nutrients. The living cells of both plants and animals must be served a liquid diet and both need oxygen to perform their wondrous chemical activities.

It seems that not one of these distinctions is a hard and fast rule. But nevertheless they are useful guidelines for distinguishing most plants from most animals. And, strange to say, as we probe each different feature, it leads us to ponder a dozen similarities. A wise student regards the exceptions to the general rules as challenges to explore the overlapping, the interdependence and the living web of relationships in the planetary scheme of nature. Directly or indirectly, every life form needs all the others and all of them need the resources of the earth.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Connie Wilhelm, age 13, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, for her question:

Are people who see U.F.O.'s crazy?

Goodness, no. U.F.O. stands for Unidentified Flying Object. It could be any plane or jet, missile or balloon that a ground observer cannot identify. It could be an unfamiliar bird or falling meteorite. A very few specialists can identify most of our aircraft. But the average citizen most likely would likely fail to identify half of them correctly. Naturally, of course, the average citizen is not crazy. He merely is uninformed in the classification of skycraft.

This, says Andy, is not the answer you wanted. But it may, let's hope, put your mind at rest about unknown objects that you may chance to see zooming through the skies. You are not crazy at all — even if you choose to call these Unidentified Flying Objects flying saucers. A lot of these objects are unidentified even by our top experts. Those so-called flying saucers may not be objects from other worlds. But it is certain that nobody in his right mind can, at this time, say that they are or are not.

INQUEST INTO JETLINER CRASH AT VANCOUVER

Lack of Airport Landing Aids Stressed by Expert

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP)—The crash of a Canadian Pacific Airlines jetliner that killed two men Feb. 7 might not have happened if three landing aids had been installed at Vancouver International Airport, an inquest jury was told Wednesday night.

The testimony came from Heinrich Schimler of Vancouver, a flying instructor for Pacific Western Airlines who has had experience with Boeing 707 aircraft, the same type of plane that crashed.

Killed in the mishap when the big jet slewed off the runway into two buildings and a number of smaller aircraft were purser Martinus Verhoes, 33, of Vancouver and Elmer Nedcalfe, 44, a transport department employee.

The plane was landing in a fog after a flight from Honolulu when it entered a fog bank that shut off the crew's view of landing lights.

Mr. Schimler told the jury he believed the airport had only one runway visual range, an electronic device which tells the pilot how much visibility he has, operating on one runway.

The chartered PA jet landed on a runway that did not have this system.

Mr. Schimler identified the second device that was lacking as a system of colored lights on the ground that indicate to the pilot that his approach is a normal one.

Another aid he said could have prevented the crash was a string of lights down the centre of the runway to guide the pilot.

Asked if he would have gone down to 400 feet to have a look at ground weather conditions, as pilot Arthur Burkholter did, rather than fly to an alternate field, Mr. Schimler said that weather reports from control towers do not always give accurate pictures of conditions at different ends of a runway.

"I would have gone down to 400 feet to have a look for myself," he said.

R. J. Sowden, fire chief in this municipality south of Vancouver, said he found the purser's body two hours after the plane crashed during its landing attempt.

The body was found on wreckage of a ramp vehicle in a building the plane had hit.

"Two hours seems to be a long time to have somebody missing," said Coroner R. C. Talmey. "I would have thought the pilot would have been responsible for searching for his crew."

When asked how he thought Mr. Verhoes came out of the aircraft Chief Sowden said: "I assume he came out from the first class passenger section which had been ripped open."

He said the body of Mr. Nedcalfe was found shortly after he arrived on the scene.

Two passengers testified the aircraft bounced twice on landing, the tires had blown out "and we were rolling down the runway on the rims."

Stewardess Annette Towle said she was sitting near Mr. Verhoes during the landing.

"He stood up and said to me that he thought that there had been an engine fire," she said. "He went away and then everything went black for me."

The inquest will continue May 1. Coroner's counsel W. T. Lane said there would be another 10 witnesses to call.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Expert South's bid of seven no-trump was an overbid and he knew it, but he also had great confidence in his ability to play the dummy. When he looked at dummy he counted 12 top tricks. The grand slam would be a cinch if hearts broke. Otherwise he needed some sort of squeeze for his 13th trick.

Opening lead—♦ 3

He ran off three more diamond tricks to start proceedings. East discarded the four of spades, West, the four of hearts. Dummy's last diamond was played next. East had a problem here but let the 10 of spades go while West dropped the five of hearts.

South's three discards had been the jack and two other clubs. South decided that East was holding five hearts and would keep on holding them. Therefore, if he played the king of spades and continued with the ace, East would be down to one black card and it surely would be a club. Sure enough East followed the first spade but dropped a club on the second.

Now South ran off his top hearts. On the fourth heart West had the choice of holding two black queens or letting the queen of spades go. Since dummy was back of him with the ace and one club and the nine of spades, it didn't matter. Either play was death.

"Nice squeeze," said East. "Too bad my partner didn't open a club and break it up."

"I'd have made it anyway," said South.

"How about a spade lead?", asked West.

"No difference," replied South. "The grand slam was unbeatable the way the cards lay."

South was right. You readers may enjoy working out both lines of play before tomorrow's article, in which we will give them. Don't be upset if you don't see them. Neither line of play is evident.

CHINA HOLDS USSR SHIP

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union today demanded the release of a Russian tanker allegedly damaged and detained in a Chinese port with a cargo bound for North Vietnam.

The Kremlin said that by acting against the ship, the Komsomolets Ukrainy, Peking had demonstrated its intention to disrupt aid to North Vietnam.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the tanker was detained March 27 in Port Wampu in a "rude violation of international law."

. . . TRUDEAU RUNAWAY

Sharp also delivered most of his organization, and Trudeau-Sharp buttons are being worn side-by-side by many delegates and supporters.

The finance minister said he gave his support without condition to Trudeau, but there's no doubt that he will be a key Trudeau adviser if the justice minister makes it to the top.

The move was a hard blow for the opposition, although some of the camps made claims—many of them correct—of Sharp delegates that had switched to them.

With Sharp went three ministers to the Trudeau cause — Industry Minister Bud Drury, Energy Minister Jean-Luc Pepin and Revenue Minister Jean Chretien.

Already in his camp were Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, Minister Without Portfolio Bryce Mackaskey and Treasury Board President Ed Benson.

Tough Decision for Minister

The reaction of the other candidates to Sharp's withdrawal ranged from congratulations for his courage to anger.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer voiced his regrets.

"I realize just how tough and courageous such a decision was for him, but making such decisions in a statesmanlike manner is not new to Mitchell Sharp," Hellyer added.

Hellyer also is showing strength and popularity, and many feel he is the only man that a last-minute alliance might drum-up to beat Trudeau.

There was anger from Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner.

He came out with an angry statement about "back-room" deals and claimed establishment "power-brokers" were trying to run the show.

It came as a surprise to many to hear Trudeau alleged to be a choice of the establishment.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin contented himself with a statement that he saw a wide-open convention with no deals being made.

But whether it's called a deal or an alliance, there are—as at any other political convention—talks and negotiations on the quiet about what will happen as the ballot starts knocking off contenders.

Martin Support Dwindling?

Martin also claimed he was well on his way to victory—but there are mounting reports that the 64-year-old external affairs minister is slipping.

But he's a cagey, veteran campaigner who has shaken more delegates' hands than any other contestant, and no one is counting him out.

However, it's noticeable that Martin is not generating much excitement.

The word from the Robert Winters headquarters it that the former trade minister is picking up some strength that had been lined up behind Sharp—and the reports are probably true, but there's no over-all sign of any great swing to the "Mr. Big Business' of the contest.

Trudeau Wednesday night told a cheering crowd of about 3,000 packed into a suburban night club in Aylmer—in Quebec just across the Ottawa River from the capital—that he hoped more people would be joining him.

There have been statements from the others still in the race—Health Minister Allan MacEachen, former Quebec provincial minister Eric Kierans, and Agriculture Minister Joe Greene—that they have no intention of withdrawing before the voting starts in favor of Trudeau.

But there are indications that all three, with emphasis on MacEachen and Greene, will support Trudeau.

Most of the delegates were in their seats in Ottawa's spanking new civic centre for today's opening ceremony, with Vancouver Senator John Nichol, president of the Liberal Federation (but due to stand down this weekend), in the chair.

Press Helps to Fill Hall

Almost all the eligible 2,481 delegates and about 700 alternates were expected to register before Saturday's voting.

The convention story will be covered by 1,200 representatives of press, radio and television and there will be about 2,800 invited guests.

Nominations for the leadership were to be announced later today. Eight major candidates and two fringe entries have received the necessary 50 signatures for nomination so far. The two so-called minor candidates are Rev. Lloyd Henderson, 50, of Portagle La Prairie and Ernest Zuendel, 29, of Montreal.

Under convention rules, all candidates with less than 50 votes on a ballot are automatically out—or the low man goes if all receive more than 50 votes.

Voting starts about 10 a.m. Saturday although the organizers have not exactly pinned this down.

Later today, all the candidates will make three half-hour appearances before work-shop session at which they will field questions from delegates on the pressing questions of the day—from national unity to foreign affairs, urban sprawl and pollution.

It's safe to assume that all the supporters have planted questions carefully-tailored for their own man, and embarrassing ones planted for the opposition.

Farewell to Prime Minister

Tonight it's the big farewell ceremonies for Prime Minister Pearson — who continues to give no hints as to who he supports, although his silence also is meaningful.

There will be his key-note speech, entertainment, and a wind-up fireworks display.

It promises to be a touching moment before about 10,000 jammed into the centre — a blaze of red as the color scheme, with a stylized superimposed white maple leaf.

And the audience will fry under the searing lights for colored TV that have been installed.

It's all costing a bundle, and by the amount of liquor and entertainment being provided by the leading contenders, it's easy to believe that their total costs will top $200,000.

Kierans told a press conference Wednesday that he will spend about $100,000 — and the highly-organized campaigns of Hellyer, Martin, Turner and Trudeau are costing more than that.

Bombing Cessation 'Must Be Complete'

By J.-F. LE MAUFF
AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

HANOI (AFP) — The official North Vietnamese press insisted today that cessation of bombing must be "definitive, complete and unconditional for the whole of the north" of Vietnam.

At the same time, the Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan described the Hanoi government's posture as "an attitude of goodwill and a serious attitude."

Nhan Dan was reporting the government statement, issued Wednesday, in which Hanoi proposed open contacts with Washington to prepare a full bombing halt "so that talks may start."

The statement, which set out the official view of the war at some length, was broadcast Wednesday night in Vietnamese, English and French.

GIVES FIRST NEWS

In today's article, Nhan Dan provided the public with its first news of the speech last Sunday in which President Johnson announced a partial bombing halt. It emphasizeed that raiding had continued up to within several dozen miles of the capital.

The article said: "The limited bombing which Johnson has just decided on does not meet the legitimate demands of the Vietnamese people. We demand of the Americans a definitive, complete and unconditional cessation of bombings and other acts of war for the whole of the North of our country."

Man Ordered To Pay Damage Done to Car

A Vancouver man was fined $75 and assessed $35 damage in central court today after he pleaded guilty to wilfu damage and causing a disturbance.

Police said Gary Sall, 29, snapped the turning indicator lever and jammed the transmission lever of a car parked on North Park Street Wednesday night.

He was arrested after police received a complaint of a man sleeping in another car a block away.

Magistrate Ostler fined Sall $50 for the damage, $25 for causing a disturbance, and ordered Sall to pay $35 to the owner of the damaged car.

CAPT. R. H. CHICKEN
. . . drops anchor

NAVY CAPTAIN

'Honey-Do' Club Gets New Member

After 30 years in the navy and a climb from petty officer to four-ringer, Capt. Robert H. Chicken has retired.

Chief of staff (Technical Services) Pacific Maritime Command since 1967, he's now on retirement leave.

Born in England 55 years ago he started out in 1937 with a stint in the British Territorial Army. But he didn't like it. And his previous work had been with diesels and gun mounting at Vickers Armstrong Ltd. at Newcastle. So he switched to the navy and a PO's rating in the engine room.

He was in anti-mine work in the North Sea in First World War, sailing in 'sweepers out of Portsmouth. In Second World War he sailed in the Mediterranean and was based at Port Said and in England as gun mounting overseer.

He transferred to Royal Canadian Navy in 1946 serving afloat and ashore and holding senior posts at Ottawa, Quebec and Esquimalt.

Capt. Chicken will concentrate on a small holding at 494 Goldstream and maintains he has now joined the "Honey-Do Club."

"You know how it is when a man's home most of the time. It's 'Honey do this' and 'Honey do that.' "

Post Offices Closing Down In Boondocks

OTTAWA (CP) — Rural post offices are being closed down by the hundreds across Canada both as an economy measure and as a means of giving better service.

Village and rural residents who once picked up their mail at private homes where such post offices are located now are served by couriers who not only bring the mail to the door but also sell stamps, pick up parcels and in general act almost as one-man post offices.

The post office department said Tuesday it has closed down 706 rural offices since September. 1965. Another 500 or so will sell their last stamp within the next few years.

The program has made the most headway in Quebec where 171 post offices have been closed. Ontario is next with 133.

Other closings to date: Newfoundland 31, Nova Scotia 82, New Brunswick 49, Prince Edward Island 9, Manitoba 37, Saskatchewan 73, Alberta 66, British Columbia 52, Northwest Territories 1, Yukon 2.

GRADED BY REVENUE

Most offices being closed are called revenue-producing post offices by Ottawa headquarters because they are graded and the postmasters' salaries dependent upon the money they take in.

Revenue is computed by the number of stamps sold. In many cases this amounted to only a few dollars worth yearly.

In all cases, the postmaster's salary is at least $100 more than the revenue produced by his office.

Postal officials say that not all rural offices will be closed since service is a key factor. But it now is policy not to open new offices in areas with less than 30 families.

Postmasters in such areas are appointed by authority of the minister.

The change from postmasters to couriers wipes out a big field for political patronage. Couriers are named after public tenders are called.

Two Minors Guilty Of Public Drinking

Two persons pleaded guilty in central court Wednesday to consuming liquor in a car parked at a Colwood drive-in restaurant Feb. 25.

Sharon Powell, 20, of Campbell River, was fined $50.

Larry Marcotte, 20, of 2804 Rodney, was remanded to April 10 for pre-sentence report after prosecutor Peter Birkett said the accused has three previous convictions under the liquor act.

'Bargain Bikes' Just Rumor And No More

Customs authorities have deflated rumors that cheap war-asset motorcycles will soon be available in Victoria.

A spokesman for Canadian customs in Victoria said "Second-hand motor vehicles, as these would be classed, are prohibited if manufactured prior to the year in which import is sought.

"There is no way in which these bikes could enter the country legally."

The most widely circulated rumour is that of about 100 crated surplus Harley Davidson 1200 cc. motorcyles soon to be brought into Victoria and distrubufed for about $50 apiece.

A secondary story is that the Canadian Army is releasing the bikes.

R. J. Shanks, of Brooklands Ltd., said "We've been hearing these rumors for about a month now."

"We get four or five calls a day on it."

Dealers in Victoria say they have checked with Harley Davidson representatives in Vancouver as well as the Canadian Army and neither party knows anything about it.

Pledges Made Not to Launch New Offensive

LONDON (AP)—Soviet informats said today they expect preliminary Vietnam peace talks to begin in Moscow next week.

They said the North Vietnamese already have assured the United States privately they will launch no major offensive if all American bombing attacks are halted.

The sources, who cannot be identified by name, said Hanoi already has begun lifting the siege of Khe Sanh as a sign of its intentions.

None of these statements could be confirmed in official Western circles.

The officials cautioned, however, against expecting an early end to the peace negotiations. They said they expected them to go for months.

Other sources recalled that 12,000 more Americans were killed in Korea while the truce talks were going on.

The Russian informants said Moscow was not consulted by Hanoi before Wednesday's conditional acceptance of President Johnson's call for peace talks.

They said that in view of Peking's present relatively low influence in the North Vietnamese capital, they did not believe the Chinese were consulted either.

"What you Americans seem to find hard to realize is that North Vietnam is a sovereign nation," one Russian said.

Expected to Start Next Week

They said they expected the preliminary talks to get under way "very quickly—probably next week."

They said they believed the only possible sites for such talks were Moscow, Geneva or Paris and that the Soviet capital has the best chance of being chosen.

Moscow is the only capital in the world with American, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomatic representatives. Paris has a diplomatic mission from Hanoi but no official representative of the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The Soviet informants said they believed a major stumbling block, once real peace negotiations get under way, will be an American commitment to withdraw from South Vietnam.

They said this is a prime issue in Hanoi's eyes and the North Vietnamese want a definite agreement that U.S. withdrawal will start the moment a peace pact is signed and will be completed within a fixed time.

The Russians did not believe Washington would easily give such an undertaking in view of the Manila agreement between the United States and its Vietnam allies that withdrawal would not begin until six months after the end of Viet Cong resistance.

The sources said they expected preliminary talks to be fairly short.

They said Moscow "has certain knowledge Hanoi has privately assured Washington that after a complete halt in bombing and other attacks on North Vietnam, the Communist forces —both Viet Cong and North Vietnamese—will refrain from launching any major offensive until conclusion or breakdown of peace negotiations.

Reds Pull Back from Khe Sanh

They said a partial evacuation of forces besieging the U.S. marines at Khe Sanh already has begun and Communist forces were putting up little more than token resistance to a U.S.-South Vietnamese rescue drive up Highway 9 toward the base.

The informants said Hanoi was ready for private or public talks in accord with Washington's views both in the preliminary and the peace conference stages.

They said the North Vietnamese preferred direct negotiations between Hanoi and Washington but were willing to consider any other participant in the peace negotiations that the United States might propose.

The Soviet Union has not yet followed up a British bid for joint action to set Vietnam peacekeeping machinery in motion, qualified sources reported.

The two countries, as cochairman of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina, were urged by President Johnson Sunday night to reconvene the conference.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart called in Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky Monday and Prime Minister Wilson sent a direct message to Soviet Premier Alevei N. Kosygin.

Informed sources said there had been no Soviet response.

'GREAT SIGNIFICANCE' IN HANOI PEACE MOVE

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Moscow radio today said the importance of Hanoi's decision to meet U.S. representatives to discuss a complete halt to bombing of North Vietnam could not be overestimated.

Reporting Hanoi's response to President Johnson's partial bombing halt, the radio said: "The significance of this step, undertaken with positive peace intentions, is difficult to over-estimate. It creates real prerquisites for the liquidation of tension in Southeast Asia."

Tass news agency reported all Russian newspapers carried the Hanoi announcement today, at the same time noting that American bombing raids were continuing over North Vietnam.

Johnson Flying To Hawaii Meet

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has agreed to direct contacts on peace between North Vietnamese and U.S. representatives and leave for Hawaii late tonight to discuss peace and war prospects with top American officials from Saigon.

Johnson will meet with former president Dwight D. Eisenhower at March Air Force Base, Calif., Friday morning on the way to Honolulu.

Washington is understood to have sent a message to Hanoi informing the government of President Ho Chi Minh of U.S. readiness to meet the initial contacts on peace talks.

The first purpose, in the U.S. view, would be to set a time and place for actual talks on scaling down the war and eventually negotiating a settlement.

SITUATION SURPRISES

The situation has developed with such speed, since Johnson ordered a partial halt in the bombing of North Vietnam Sunday night, that even surprised U.S. government leaders are not sure what will happen next.

They voiced cautious optimism about peace prospects but appeared by no means certain the United States and North Vietnam can actually reach an agreement soon.

However the Washington-Hanoi agreement to talk after years of continuously expanding

Trudeau Runaway Looms at Ottawa

TEN ON FIRST BALLOT

OTTAWA (CP)—Ten men formally qualified today for the Liberal leadership race. The winner will be chosen Saturday by majority vote.

Only two of the six so-called fringe candidates managed to raise the necessary 50 signatures of voting delegates to be eligible for a place at Saturday's ballots.

They were Rev. Lloyd Henderson, 60, former mayor of Portage la Prairie, Man., and Ernest Zuendel, 29, a Montreal commercial artist.

The eight major candidates in order of filing nominations are:

Agriculture Minister Greene
Former trade minister Winters,
Former Quebec health minister Kierans,
Consumer Affairs Minister Turner,
External Affairs Minister Martin,
Health Minister MacEachen,
Justice Minister Trudeau.
Transport Minister Hellyer.

The last Liberal leadership convention in 1958 had three candidates. Lester Pearson easily defeated Mr. Martin and Mr. Henderson on the first ballot.

Three Ballots New Forecast

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Pierre Elliott Trudeau is threatening to run away with the Liberal leadership race.

Everywhere you go in this rocking convention city the big name is Trudeau.

The convention opened officially today, but many are saying that the only question is "when" and not "if" the justice minister will win in Saturday's voting.

Some predictions are Trudeau could take it in three.

Among the thousands of rumors buzzing in the halls and streets is of a proposed "stop Trudeau" alliance among the other main contenders.

The three alleged to be in the stop-Trudeau alliance are External Affairs Minister Martin, Transport Minister Hellyer and former trade minister Winters.

Spokesmen for the three denied any deals had been made but conceded there had been discussions of "various eventualities."

Supporters of Mitchell Sharp said the finance minister gave his support to Mr. Trudeau early to thwart any effort to gang up on the justice minister.

Events since the beginning of the week, and particularly in the last 48 hours, have given the Trudeau campaign the boosts needed to get a bandwagon rolling.

Excitement Follows One Man

The enthusiasm and excitement that Trudeau is creating—you can tell where he is by the jammed, shouting mob around him—is comparable to the early front-running of Robert Stanfield at the Tory convention last fall.

These are the factors:

Three major polls published at the beginning of the week showed him well in front of all the others.

Finance Minister Sharp dramatically announced Wednesday that he was throwing his organizattion behind the justice minister.

Premier Joey Smallwood arrived in Ottawa late Wednesday and promptly announced almost all of Newfoundland's 84 delegates will go for Trudeau—and Smallwood is a man who can deliver.

He has the full backing of seven other cabinet ministers, more than any other candidate.

Sharp's Move Significant

But the biggest boost was unquestionably the move of Sharp.

The polls showed him with only about 150 delegates, although his organization claimed this was low, and it is doubtful how many of these will automatically follow to Trudeau.

But the significant factor was Sharp's considerable prestige and reputation, and his blunt statement that Trudeau was the best man for the job next to himself.

Trudeau crystalized the situation best at a later press conference when he was asked about doubts of some delegates about his relatively unknown qualities.

He answered, referring to the finance minister: "If a man of his judgment, experience and ability can support me, I am not that bad a risk."

'My Last Hurrah,' Says PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today welcomed delegates who will pick his successor at what he called "the greatest political convention ever held in Canada."

The opening plenary session of the three-day leadership convention heard briefly from the prime minister, who also was to make a major farewell speech tonight.

He said this is "my last hurrah."

It would be a convention of "unprecedented size, unprecedented excitement and exposure."

It had been deemed worthy to compete with the Stanley Cup for attention, he said with a grin.

He hoped delegates would not "tear the city apart" in their zeal.

Turner Hits Power Deals

OTTAWA (CP) — John Turner angrily denounced "the power brokers of the Liberal party" Wednesday night and said the choice of a new Liberal leader should be left to the conscience of convention delegates.

The consumer affairs minister, at 38 the youngest candidate in the leadership race, referred to Finance Minister Sharp's withdrawal earlier in the day in favor of Justice Minister Trudeau and the decision of Newfoundland's Premier Joey Smallwood to back Mr. Trudeau.

Storm Rips U.S. Areas

CHICAGO (AP) — A monster storm punched its way through the U.S. mid-continent today after raking the middle Mississippi Valley with death-dealing tornadoes and burying parts of the Great Plains in a blizzard.

Twelve persons were killed and scores were injured Wednesday night in a rash of tornadoes which churned out of the storm system and ripped hardest at Arkansas and Tennessee.

THERE'S A LIBERAL PARTY JUST ABOUT EVERYWHERE

Legs Winning in a Walk in Convention Madness

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Convention madness engulfs the capital today with all the vigor of a Roman orgy.

It's enough to blow your mind, man.

It's all a labyrinth of color, noise, food, drink and a dizzying collection of female legs.

There are long slim legs, short plump legs, nobbly legs, all busily marching along in the greatest collection of miniskirts this side of London.

You can't have a modern political convention, or even an old-fashioned one, without a goodly selection of pretty girls and current styles have combined to make the next three days in Ottawa a feast for the manly eye.

It is also a feast for the empty tum, the parched throat and the creative imagination.

Tonight in particular delegates won't know which way to turn.

For a start some 8,000 Liberals will gather at the sparkling new Civic Centre for a fond and emotional farewell to Prime Minister Pearson.

Not all details are known as the party will spring the event simultaneously on national television starting at 8 p.m.

But there will be folk groups, fireworks and of course the Ca-na-da man, Bobby Gimby and his band.

Mr. Pearson himself has star billing as the only featured speaker at the event which will be the last occasion on which he formally addresses a Liberal gathering as Prime Minister.

When the do is over the delegates will have to go at breakneck speed to take in the late night entertainment provided by the candidates.

One of the most intriguing is Health Minister Allen MacEachen's Hawaiian splash party at the posh new Skyline Hotel.

A poolside reception is definitely a new addition to the Canadian political convention scene and it is only to be hoped that some over-zealous participant does not go down for the third time in the midst of the frolic. Mr. MacEachen cannot afford to lose a single one.

On a more formal note Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner is throwing a mammoth dance in the stately old Chateau Laurier. some 2,000 people may turn up to be entertained by French-Canadian Chanteuse Danielle Dorice.

Some of them convention hijinks seem a bit unconventional.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau—put them initials together and it kinda reflects his spot in the political scene, don't it?

Mr. Pearson's call fer unity at that convention is like orderin' yr chickens to line up fer a picture.

He Likes Our Joyce To Be PM's Hostess

OTTAWA—Who would be the official hostess at the government functions if Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a prominent bachelor, were elected prime minister?

The justice minister, asked the question at a press conference Wednesday, didn't say a word. All he did was to point to the closest pretty girl, Times Ottawa Bureau reporter Joyce Fairbairn, who was sitting in the front row (and whose married name is Mrs. Michael Gillan).

The swinging candidate was then asked, if elected, would he give up his Mercedes?

"Do you mean the girl or the car?" he replied.

Ford Plants Shut Down By Strike

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Co. of Canada's Oakville, Windsor and St. Thomas plants were shut down today as workers continued a wildcat strike that started in Oakville Wednesday.

Pickets were at the gates of the three plants which represent the major part of Ford's Canadian operation.

The wildcat strike involves 5,646 workers at the company's Oakville plant, 4,177 in Windsor and 1,033 in St. Thomas.

The strike started when dayshift workers in Oakville walked off the job Wednesday afternoon to protest the postponement of a strike deadline from 10:30 a.m. today to 10:30 a.m. Monday.

It spread Wednesday night to the Windsor workers who set up picket lines at the end of the night shift. The St. Thomas workers joined the strike today when they walked off the job minutes after the day shift started at 7 a.m.

Earlier reports today said the Oakville workers returned to work but a company spokesman said only 100 non-union probationary employees entered the plant today.

Ford has a car and truck assembly plant at Oakville, a car assembly plant at St. Thomas, and a foundry, engine plant and transmission and chassis plant in Windsor.

REMAIN ON JOB

In Niagara Falls, Ont., 230 workers at the company's glass fabricating plant remained on their jobs, as did 491 employees in the company's parts depots across Canada.

George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW, said in a statement today's strike deadline was rescheduled because the union wanted to include its national director in negotiations and there was not enough time to deal with all the disputes issues before the 10:30 a.m. deadline today.

He said the unauthorized walkout by all the plant's UAW members in Oakville was caused partly by the action of the company in notifying the workers of the strike postponement before union officials could explain the reasons for the delay.

LaFarge Cement Profits Show Gain of 15%

VANCOUVER (CP) — LaFarge Cement of North America Ltd. reported Tuesday that net profits of the company and its subsidiaries in 1967 increased 15 per cent to $1,687,653.

Consolidated sales also rose 15 per cent, reaching $19,360,471.

James Sinclair, chairman of LaFarge, said in his report to shareholders that part of the additional profit is due to the extra production of its suburban Richmond cement plant, the capacity of which was doubled to 3,500,000 barrels.

Mr. Sinclair said that because capacity is greater than present B.C. market potential, export markets have been sought. These markets have been found and long-term contracts starting in 1969 ensure the plant will work at close to capacity in the years ahead.

"Prospects for 1968 are good and should be even better in 1969 when the export contracts begin," the president sid.

Brazilian Power Profits Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Brazilian Light and Power Co. Ltd. had net earnings of $51,600,000 or $2.95 a share in 1967, compared with $36,400,000 or $2.10 in the previous year.

In announcing the results, the company said a full account of the year's operations will be given in the annual report to be mailed to shareholders in about a month.

COUNCIL WOULD GET FACTS . . . AND PROPOSED MILL RATE

City May Streamline Budget-Cutting Sessions

By JIM HUME

Sweeping changes in the way Victoria city handles its annual budget will be proposed during the next nine months.

The changes, to be recommended to council by Mayor Hugh Stephen in time for the 1969 budget sessions, would eliminate the tedious budget-cutting sessions in the form of an annual spring rite.

Mayor Stephen said he made his decision to review the entire budget-cutting operation after discussions with city manager Dennis Young and city treasurer James Bramley.

Both city officials feel that the present method, in use for many years, could and should be streamlined to meet modern needs.

AFTER 10 DAYS

Left unsaid by all three, but obviously uppermost in their minds, is the fact that after 10 days of detailed budget-trimming this year council members have only been able to slice a meagre $483,044 from the more than $17 million preliminary budget.

Under the existing system each department head at city hall prepares the estimates for his own department and then faces a city counci committee to justify his proposals.

Nobody has ever accused a department head of padding his budget with items he expects to be cut in order to leave the committee sympathetic to projects he wants to ease through.

But city council members have admitted that they often have the uneasy feeling that they have been placed in unenviable positions by adroit preliminary presentations.

If council accepts the mayor's recommendations, future budgets will be prepared by the department head, the chairman of respective committees, the city treasurer and the city manager.

MORE EFFICIENT

"It would seem to me to be a more efficient way of preparing the budget, a better and more meaningful way," the mayor said.

Mr. Young said the new system would not remove any powers from council members but would instead present them with facts, figures and advice readiy understood.

"Instead of going through several weeks of budget-cutting the department head, the committee chairman and myself would present to full council a preliminary budget already trimmed," Mr. Young said.

"At the same time we would be able to tell council what mill rate was required to sustain the budget recommended and why the various projects were essential.

"Council would then decide whether or not it would accept that mill rate and which order of priority revenue should be spent.

Mr. Young said it was becoming increasingly obvious that the complexity of operating the modern city required some positive changes in approach.

"The aldermen of this city work hard at their jobs," Mr. Young said. "But they just do not have the time to involve themselves in the detailed operations of the various departments. As a result they have to accept the best possible technical advice available to them.

"We want to give them the advice of a team rather than the advice of one department head."

Mr. Young said he and Mr. Bramley hoped to have their recommendations ready for study by Mayor Stephen before the end of his year and that he was hopeful that council would approve the new move.

IN ONE WEEK

"If the recommendations are accepted I would hope tha next year one full week can be set aside for budget discussions, say the last wewek in April. At that time council would be able to receive the full budget picture, the mill rate, the amount of revenue required to run the city and would therefore find it considerably easier to make their decisions," Mr. Young added.

Mayor Stephen agreed that change was essential.

"As we work now we prepare the budget in a vacuum," he said. "We must in future prepare it in the context of the resources of the city.

"If council accepts the recommendations it will mean that committee chairmen will play a far more meaningful role in the running of the city's business.

"With the department head they will actually prepare the budget in co-operation with the city manager and eventually bring it to council well equipped and prepared to argue for the various priorities.

In the meantime the prospects are that any tax increases will be of a minor nature and that there is a good possilibilty that the tax-line can be held.

The value of the mill for school purposes has been set at $140,000 and for general purposes at $124,000.

Last year the general purpose mill was valued at $120,000 and the school mill slightly higher.

Whether the line can be held or not depends greatly on the decision of the provincial government on the school mill increase.

Last year it jumped an unprecedented 4.8 mills.

This year, so Minister of Education Leslie Peterson says, it should not increase more than two mills, a jump which would leave Victoria to find an additional $280,000.

"If it stays at two mills or less we should be in good shape," said Mr. Bramley. "But . . ."

The final word is expected from the government on April 15.

Arthur Mayse

Until the leadership's convention sweeps to its crescendo in Saturday's balloting, I intend to spend every spare minute watching television.

My fiercely partisan wife (Trudeau from the start) will be close by. So will our dog, even though I'm not sure he understands the issues clearly.

We want to hear the wails of the stricken, and watch the black political blood flow.

Like the second Louis-Schmelling fight—a heavyweight joust that younger readers won't remember—the voting may end in a first-round knockout. I hope not, since the chances are that we won't have another event of this sort for many a year.

An American nominating convention has always been a wonderful extravaganza of oratory, cheesecake, circus hats and spine-tingling drama, and we in Canada have nothing that quite matches the sonorous roll-call of the states.

Last year, however, the warring Tories fashioned a new mould for the once-mousy Canadian political convention, and I look for the Grit effort to be just short of titanic.

I suppose there's still a remote chance that other candidates may follow the example of Mitchell Sharp, a finance minister whose hopes were blasted by a simple mistake in arithmetic. But even if the fantastic came to pass and only the four top contestants stuck around for the vote, it would still be a show worth watching.

★

It's easy to forget for a moment that what the country's into isn't a general election; and heaven knows we have had elections that roused less coast-to-coast interest.

We can be sure, though, that those poll-pestered VIPs, the delegates, are well aware that they make their choice under the shadow of a pending election.

So, even though the convention is a Liberal private party, those who do the choosing cannot be entirely independent of public preferences. A hard-nosed choice that went against the public grain could throw Canada to the Conservatives.

In theory, the man best suited to lead us during this stage of our emergence should be the best man, not necessarily the most popular. Whether he will be (and I am thinking here of top-rated candidate Trudeau) only time and the inevitable crises of government can demonstrate.

Mr. Sharp with his nutcracker jaws and benign "I know what's best for you" calm, was a pretty good man. Perhaps significantly, many of those who favor Pierre Elliott Trudeau also liked Mitchell Sharp.

I hope the best man wins, though not certain just who he may be. Discounting the influence of a probable early election, I suspect that the liberal-minded among the Liberal delegates will support Mr. Trudeau, while those of conservative tendency will spend their first-round ballots elsewhere.

★

In the heat of a convention now launched and running, changes of mind can be expected. Still, approve him or not, I think we are going to find ourselves trying the consequence with Mr. Trudeau on the next leg of our Canadian journey.

The opening day ceremonies are now over, along with the policy workshops in which delegates questioned candidates under the headings, "Our Country, Our Life, and Our Economy." Departing Prime Minister Pearson's farewell address (5 to 6:30 p.m.) winds up today's CBC coverage.

On Friday, the candidates will make their pitches, with 25 minutes allotted to each, from 3 to 9 p.m. Pacific Standard Time.

Then comes Saturday, the tense one that tells the story.

The balloting is scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m., and sometime before 4:30 p.m., the winner will make his acceptance speech.

His name? A lot of us think we know . . . but until the ballots are in and counted, who can be sure?

The only certainty is that he will be taking on the toughest job in the country.

ROBERT TORRANCE
. . . started as messenger

'An Era Ends In Government Service'

He started as a messenger boy with the B.C. department of lands and worked his way up to be deputy minister.

Such a man was Robert Torrance, who died suddenly Wednesday at the age of 58. He was found dead at his home at 120 King George Terrace, apparently from a heart seizure. He had been at work the previous day.

"He was the last of an era in government service," Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today; "a prime example of a man who learned the job on the job and achieved maximum efficiency."

Mr. Williston added that Mr. Torrance had "a most outstanding knowledge of Crown land administration in British Columbia."

"We shall miss him a great deal."

Born in Nanaimo, Mr. Torrance started as a messenger with the lands department when he was 17. On Aug. 2, 1967, he took over as deputy minister at a salary of $19,000 a year.

VARIOUS POSITIONS

From 1927 on, he held various clerical positions and made his first break-through in 1945 when he was appointed assistant chief clerk.

Four years later, in 1949, he became assistant superintendent of lands. In 1954 he was named an assistant to the deputy minister and in 1958 he became assistant deputy minister himself.

In 1959 Mr. Torrance was one of the first graduating class at the University of British Columbia's executive development training plan. And in 1962 he graduated from the Banff School of Advanced Management.

SURVIVORS

Mr. Torrance lost his wife in 1966. He is survived by a son, Tom, in Victoria; two sisters, Mrs. J. Jarvie, Victoria, and Mrs. J. Machray, Vancouver, and several nieces and nephews.

Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley of Fairfield United Church will conduct funeral services in McCall Brothers' chapel Saturday at 3:15 p.m. Interment will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Car Driver 'Grounded' Two Years

A man was fined a total of $650 in central court today on two charges resulting from a traffic accident March 27.

Police said Ronald Kiefert, 28, of 1323 Sussex caused a four-car collision at Esquimalt Road and Catherine Street which sent four persons to hospital.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said witnesses observed Kiefert's car pass another on the right and slam into the rear of a car stopped at Catherine for a red light.

The second car was pushed into a third, and the two slid into the intersection where they were hit by a fourth.

TWO CARS DEMOLISHED

Damage totalled $4,500 and two of the cars were considered demolished, Mr. Birkett said.

Magistrate Ostler fined Kiefert $250 for criminal negligence and $400 for impaired driving. His driver's licence was suspended two years.

Gregory Coshen, of Vancouver, was fined $375 after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Court was told he was observed driving in an erratic manner on the Sooke Road Wednesday afternoon.

Faulty Oil Heater Costs Resident $35

A fire caused by an improperly installed oil heater cost a man $35 in central court today.

John Carlow, 1243 Colville, was fined after Esquimalt fire officer Jim Owens testified a fire in a building at the rear of Carlow's property was caused by the heater.

'High Rent Cuts Diet Of Aged'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Rent increases of from $10 to $20 a month on rooms and apartments are putting many of Victoria's senior citizens on a starvation diet.

"A number of our members are cutting down on food to meet recent sharp increases in rent," says Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director of Victoria Silver Threads Centre.

"This is a menace to health and we are doing our best to find them cheaper accommodation. In many cases this means moving out of inadequate accommodation into something worse."

Mrs. Horne said directors of the centre will set up a special committee to investigate the problem of increased rents.

The Victoria centre now has 3,120 members, of whom about 75 per cent are living in rooms and apartments.

Recently the Victoria centre initiated a telephone reassurance service—daily phone calls to elderly men and women living alone.

More than 50 younger men and women have volunteered to make the daily calls. Senior citizens wishing to be contacted should call 388-4268.

Superport Talks Set For Monday

High-level federal and provincial technical and administrative representatives will meet Monday to discuss development of the Roberts Bank superport.

Howard Mann, chairman of the national harbors board, and John Southworth, executive secretary of the provincial harbors board, will head their own teams of experts and consultants at the meeting, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today.

The meeting will take place in Ladner with Delta Reeve Dugald Morrison also attending. The meeting was organized at his request.

It will be the first meeting at the technical level since both government began taking steps to build separate ports at the same site.

TALKED AT CHRISTMAS

Last contacts between the governments about the superport took place before Christmas when Transport Minister Hellyer and Mr. Bonner met in Ottawa to discuss possibilities of joint development.

The Ladner meeting likely will "catalogue the questions and answers" regarding some of the physical problems in developing the port and may explore further means of achieving a joint development, Mr. Bonner indicated.

Oil Rig Near Charlottes

A 400-mile tow to relocate the semi-submersible offshore drilling platform under contract to Shell Canada is more than half over.

VMD-built SEDCO 135-F was in Queen Charlotte Sound today and expected to reach her next station in the general area of Sandspit on the east coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands Saturday or Sunday, a Shell spokesman said.

The vessel, under tow by 3,500 h.p. Gulf Joan, another tug and her two tender ships, left Barkley Sound four days ago after spending 10 months drilling four wildcat wells 12-20 miles off Vancouver Island's west coast Long Beach.

Lottery for Us? Don't Bet on It!

'Montreal Experiment Will Be Short-Lived'

By PETE LOUDON

Civic and government leaders here are against following the lead of Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau in planning a tax lottery.

"Lotteries are still illegal," said Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

"It will be a short-lived experiment," said Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen.

"The B.C. Municipal Act does not permit it," said Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis.

"It wouldn't work for building hospitals here," said George Masters, secretary of Royal Jubilee Development Society.

$28 MILLION

The Drapeau plan was unveiled Wednesday. Mayor Drapeau, who maintains his scheme is not a lottery, plans to raise $28 million annually by inviting Canadians to pay a voluntary $2 tax to his city each month.

The "taxpayer" would then be qualified for a monthly draw for $150,000 in cash prizes ranging from $100,000 to $100, payable when winners correctly answer a skill-testing question — "an easy one."

Here are detailed reactions recorded in Victoria this morning:

Mr. Bonner said lotteries are illegal in Canada and the amendments to the law, which now are before Parliament, "are likely to undergo quite a debate."

He conceded that Mayor Drapeau's plan to combine a draw with skill questions might make it legal but a moral question remains, should service to the Canadian public properly be financed by a lottery?

NOT SUCCESSFUL

Mr. Bonner said experiments with a state lottery in New Hampshire have not been successful. He pointed out that a huge amount of money must be raised to make such a scheme effective.

In Ireland, where a lottery, the Irish Sweepstake, is famous, only six hospitals are aided by the world-wide lottery.

And Ireland is not a wealthy country and hospital services are geared accordingly, he added.

Mayor Stephen said he personally does not think a lottery is a proper way to meet government expenditures, although it might be suited to charities.

In Britain experiments have been made with draws for U.K. bonds, "but I don't think it lasted." He didn't think the scheme would be applicable to Victoria although it might be all right in Montreal.

Montreal, he said, has "got into a jackpot" and is so overspent the city is in grave trouble. But Victoria has one of the lowest borrowing records in Canada and one of the lowest municipal per capita debts.

He doubted that many Victorians would agree to pay taxes to Montreal.

SHARE THE POT

"It will just share up the gambling pot instead of it all going to the Irish. Those who buy chances will do it for a year or two and then turn to another form of gambling and where will Mayor Drapeau be then?"

Reeve Curtis said it might be excellent for Montreal but it's not permitted in B.C. under the Municipal Act. He conceded that Canada appears to be moving toward lotteries.

"Mayor Drapeau has shown leadership in other areas and it could be he is doing the same here."

Mr. Masters said he thought Victoria would have to sell tickets all over the world to make a lottery successful.

He recalled that he had researched the idea several years ago when Victoria's Royal Jubilee was building a new $500,000 wing.

"We would have had to sell $150 worth of tickets to every family in Victoria" in order to pay for the project and prizes.

Ald. C. M. Parrott of Victoria was the only person contacted who would say "it's worth looking into." But personally, despite the fact "75 per cent of people buy sweepstakes" he did not think a lottery was a desirable way of raising civic revenues.

TOW TUG ARRIVES

Last of Frigates Bound for Japan

By ALAN WHITE

Two of the last naval frigates on the West Coast—one of them a pioneer weather ship on Station Papa—will be hauled off to Japan for scrap Friday.

The Japanese tug Toko Maru arrived in Victoria at noon to tow the Beacon Hill and St. Catharines from their resting places in Esquimalt Harbor.

A shipping office spokesman said this morning the tug, owned by Mitsui Shipping of Osaka, Japan, will leave sometime Friday with the two frigates.

The two vessels were sold recently through Crown Assets Disposal Corporation to N. W. Kennedy Shipping of Vancouver, the spokesman said.

RETIRED LAST FALL

Beacon Hill—HMCS until she was decommissioned last September—was the last frigate of the Pacific Maritime Command.

Built during the Second World War at Yarrows, Ltd., for the Royal Canadian Navy, she served up until the time she was taken out of service.

She is 301 feet in length and weighs 1,570 tons.

St. Catharines—bearing the name and unique spelling of the Victoria-like Ontario city near Niagara Falls—is a sister ship to Beacon Hill.

She was built at Yarrows in 1943 and served with the RCN until the late 1940s.

Then she was sailed around from the east coast with HMCS Stonetown to become a department of transport weather ship.

Rebuilt and strengthened to withstand weeks of standing fast in the Pacific 900 miles off the coast of Vancouver Island, she became one of the first ships to serve on weather Station Papa (first known as Station Peter).

WEATHERED CRITICISM

St. Catharines withstood the mountainous seas of the weather station and severe criticism of crew members who thought she was unsafe from 1950 until April of 1967.

Then she was replaced by the new Canadian Coast Guard Ship Vancouver.

Much of her electronic gear and weather-monitoring equipment was removed for installation on her replacement vessel.

The ship's wheel and bell were sent to the city of St. Catharines for installation in a museum there, a DOT official said.

Her sister frigate on the weather station, Stonetown, was taken out of commission several months ago and has been recommended for similar sale as surplus, he said.

. . . TRUDEAU RUNAWAY

Sharp also delivered most of his organization, and Trudeau-Sharp buttons are being worn side-by-side by many delegates and supporters.

The finance minister said he gave his support without condition to Trudeau, but there's no doubt that he will be a key Trudeau adviser if the justice minister makes it to the top.

The move was a hard blow for the opposition, although some of the camps made claims—many of them correct—of Sharp delegates that had switched to them.

With Sharp went three ministers to the Trudeau cause — Industry Minister Bud Drury, Energy Minister Jean-Luc Pepin and Revenue Minister Jean Chretien.

Already in his camp were Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, Minister Without Portfolio Bryce Mackaskey and Treasury Board President Ed Benson.

Tough Decision for Minister

The reaction of the other candidates to Sharp's withdrawal ranged from congratulations for his courage to anger.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer voiced his regrets.

"I realize just how tough and courageous such a decision was for him, but making such decisions in a statesmanlike manner is not new to Mitchell Sharp," Hellyer added.

Hellyer also is showing strength and popularity, and many feel he is the only man that a last-minute alliance might drum-up to beat Trudeau.

There was anger from Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner.

He came out with an angry statement about "back-room" deals and claimed establishment "power-brokers" were trying to run the show.

It came as a surprise to many to hear Trudeau alleged to be a choice of the establishment.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin contented himself with a statement that he saw a wide-open convention with no deals being made.

But whether it's called a deal or an alliance, there are—as at any other political convention—talks and negotiations on the quiet about what will happen as the ballot starts knocking off contenders.

Martin Support Dwindling?

Martin also claimed he was well on his way to victory—but there are mounting reports that the 64-year-old external affairs minister is slipping.

But he's a cagey, veteran campaigner who has shaken more delegates' hands than any other contestant, and no one is counting him out.

However, it's noticeable that Martin is not generating much excitement.

The word from the Robert Winters headquarters it that the former trade minister is picking up some strength that had been lined up behind Sharp—and the reports are probably true, but there's no over-all sign of any great swing to the "Mr. Big Business' of the contest.

Trudeau Wednesday night told a cheering crowd of about 3,000 packed into a suburban night club in Aylmer—in Quebec just across the Ottawa River from the capital—that he hoped more people would be joining him.

There have been statements from the others still in the race—Health Minister Allan MacEachen, former Quebec provincial minister Eric Kierans, and Agriculture Minister Joe Greene—that they have no intention of withdrawing before the voting starts in favor of Trudeau.

But there are indications that all three, with emphasis on MacEachen and Greene, will support Trudeau.

Most of the delegates were in their seats in Ottawa's spanking new civic centre for today's opening ceremony, with Vancouver Senator John Nichol, president of the Liberal Federation (but due to stand down this weekend), in the chair.

Press Helps to Fill Hall

Almost all the eligible 2,481 delegates and about 700 alternates were expected to register before Saturday's voting.

The convention story will be covered by 1,200 representatives of press, radio and television and there will be about 2,800 invited guests.

Nominations for the leadership were to be announced later today. Eight major candidates and two fringe entries have received the necessary 50 signatures for nomination so far. The two so-called minor candidates are Rev. Lloyd Henderson, 50, of Portagle La Prairie and Ernest Zuendel, 29, of Montreal.

Under convention rules, all candidates with less than 50 votes on a ballot are automatically out—or the low man goes if all receive more than 50 votes.

Voting starts about 10 a.m. Saturday although the organizers have not exactly pinned this down.

Later today, all the candidates will make three half-hour appearances before work-shop session at which they will field questions from delegates on the pressing questions of the day—from national unity to foreign affairs, urban sprawl and pollution.

It's safe to assume that all the supporters have planted questions carefully-tailored for their own man, and embarrassing ones planted for the opposition.

Farewell to Prime Minister

Tonight it's the big farewell ceremonies for Prime Minister Pearson — who continues to give no hints as to who he supports, although his silence also is meaningful.

There will be his key-note speech, entertainment, and a wind-up fireworks display.

It promises to be a touching moment before about 10,000 jammed into the centre — a blaze of red as the color scheme, with a stylized superimposed white maple leaf.

And the audience will fry under the searing lights for colored TV that have been installed.

It's all costing a bundle, and by the amount of liquor and entertainment being provided by the leading contenders, it's easy to believe that their total costs will top $200,000.

Kierans told a press conference Wednesday that he will spend about $100,000 — and the highly-organized campaigns of Hellyer, Martin, Turner and Trudeau are costing more than that.

Bombing Cessation 'Must Be Complete'

By J.-F. LE MAUFF
AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

HANOI (AFP) — The official North Vietnamese press insisted today that cessation of bombing must be "definitive, complete and unconditional for the whole of the north" of Vietnam.

At the same time, the Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan described the Hanoi government's posture as "an attitude of goodwill and a serious attitude."

Nhan Dan was reporting the government statement, issued Wednesday, in which Hanoi proposed open contacts with Washington to prepare a full bombing halt "so that talks may start."

The statement, which set out the official view of the war at some length, was broadcast Wednesday night in Vietnamese, English and French.

GIVES FIRST NEWS

In today's article, Nhan Dan provided the public with its first news of the speech last Sunday in which President Johnson announced a partial bombing halt. It emphasizeed that raiding had continued up to within several dozen miles of the capital.

The article said: "The limited bombing which Johnson has just decided on does not meet the legitimate demands of the Vietnamese people. We demand of the Americans a definitive, complete and unconditional cessation of bombings and other acts of war for the whole of the North of our country."

Man Ordered To Pay Damage Done to Car

A Vancouver man was fined $75 and assessed $35 damage in central court today after he pleaded guilty to wilfu damage and causing a disturbance.

Police said Gary Sall, 29, snapped the turning indicator lever and jammed the transmission lever of a car parked on North Park Street Wednesday night.

He was arrested after police received a complaint of a man sleeping in another car a block away.

Magistrate Ostler fined Sall $50 for the damage, $25 for causing a disturbance, and ordered Sall to pay $35 to the owner of the damaged car.

Marijuana Terms Lifted First Time

Magistrates to Get Word After MLA Drug Probe

By JOHN MIKA

An effort should be made to deflect the full force of the law from falling on youths who are caught for the first time smoking marijuana as a prank or experiment, the legislature was told Wednesday.

The suggestion was made in a report by the special drug imperative" that a national conference of legal, sociological penalties which equate marijuana with heroin and other "hard" drugs.

The committee's report said marijuana was harmful but it implied the present maximum penalties of seven years for using it or life imprisonment for providing it to someone else were questionable.

It asked for immediate action which would allow crown prosecutors to suspend charges before a conviction is rendered by the court in cases where the evidence shows a youth was a first offender and was otherwise of good repute. But the case could be resumed if the youth broke the conditions. J. Tisdalle (SC—Saanich and the Islands) said the proposal was made "to temper justice with mercy and as a stop-gap until a national investigation (of the drug problem) can be made."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner told reporters the suggestion was "an interesting and possibly a valuable one" and would be studied closely by his department.

He said he could instruct prosecutors to try out the suggestion to see if "they may prevail upon" magistrates to agree in individual cases.

The wording of the recommendation called for consideration of the feasibility of:

● "Where a person is charged with marijuana possession or use and evidence is such that, except for this charge, the accused is of good repute and this is a first offence, the prosecutor may ask for an adjournment of the proceedings.

● "If granted, such adjournment to be continued subject to good behavior for such period as is deemed suitable."

While appearing to question the penalties, the committee's report made it clear the MLAs felt marijuana was harmful and should be treated as such.

The committee's report, made after about a dozen meetings to hear police, clergy, school officials, sociologists and students, avoided any assessment of how widespread drug use is among B.C. youth.

"The opinions by witnesses varied so much you could drive a car between them all sideways," said Mr. Tisdalle. "So we tried another approach."

The other approach was to warn that so many kinds of drugs are used — from heroin to glue-sniffing— that it is foolish "to isolate and focus attention on one specific drug."

The report said persons concerned about the problem "seem somehow to have become side-tracked into placing the major emphasis on the 'drug of the day' when by far the greater problem is why young people, in particular, increasingly misuse drugs."

It recommended that a fund be set up to finance detailed research into the causes of the drug trend among youth which could supply reliable information to a Bureau of Drug Abuse Control for relaying to appropriate agencies and community organizations.

It also urged a comprehensive educational program and complimented the efforts of Greater Victoria and Vancouver school boards in this direction but emphasized that "the educational approach must be varied and geared to the age level.

"The committee would advise the beginning of the educational approach at an early age," the report said and added that community groups as well as schools must be thrown into the battle to contain the spreading use of drugs.

It said the department of education should compile a list of books, pamphlets, film clips and videotapes dealing with the problem and furnish these to school boards and community organizations that wish to help guide youths away from drugs.

The report added that it would be desirable to reconvene the committee at the next session and added that its members were willing to hold hearings throughout the year if the house wished.

Esquimalt Mock House Planned

Welfare and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will act as governor-general at a mock parliament to be conducted by officer candidates of the Fleet School Esquimalt.

The Mock Parliament will be held in the Old GGymnasium, CFB, Esquimalt, Monday at 9 a.m.

Prime minister of the parliament is William Fergusson. Other members are: Ernest Colwell, secretary of state for foreign affairs; Peter Dickinson, minister of trade and commerce; Kenneth Mayberry, minister of transport; Robert Thompson, minister of national defence;; Paul Phillips, minister of finance and receiver general of Canada; Andre Rioux, opposition leader and Jerry Flynn, minority leader.

The government intends to introduce a bill giving Canadians a Merchant Fleet. The opposition appears united in an effort to defeat it, unless government will permit several major amendments.

Senior students from local high schools have been invited to observe proceedings.

Deposit Bottles Eyed In Anti-Litter War

A backbencher Wednesday demanded firm government action to stop the "pollution of the countryside" with non-returnable soft drink bottles.

"We should ban the use of no returnable bottles in all public areas," Don Phillips (SC—Peace River South) told the legislature.

He said a serious problem has developed in rural areas and at resorts during the past year because so many soft drinks now are sold in bottles requiring no deposit.

Broken bottles have caused injuries to bathers and campers in resort areas as well as to cows in fields alongside highways, he said.

Introduction of the no-deposit bottles also has destroyed valuable tradition which saw children occupy some of their holiday time scouring the country to collect bottles to make themselves some pocket money while eliminating litter.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kiernan said later that he had met manufacturers and distributors of non-returnable bottles and they assured him of full support in any campaign to curb littering.

He said the bottles are just a part of a much-larger problem of littering and said the only answer to the problem is a change in people's attitude.

He said a solution will be easy when B.C. people become as concerned as the Japanese who won't even throw a cigarette butt on the ground.

Waterfront Project Start in August

VANCOUVER (CP)—Construction of the waterfront project 200 involving an estimated expenditure of $300,000,000 will start in August, project chief Gilbert Hardman has told city council.

First phase of the project, involving three office buildings, should be completed by 1971, he said in an interview. The first building will be a $2,000,000, six-storey structure to house Canadian Pacific Railway offices and telecommunications equipment.

A 35-storey federal government building is to be the second structure built under plans developed for the city's harbor area two years ago.

Unsettled Outlook For Shareholders

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—An unsettled outlook for the immediate future is the prospect for the shareholders of Algoma Steel Corp.

David S. Holbrook, chairman and president, says in Algoma's annual report it is unlikely profit margins will improve in 1968.

He said it is not possible at present to predict the future of the Canadian steel industry over either the short or long term with any degree of assurance.

New Venture By Royal Bank

MONTREAL (CP)—The Royal Bank of Canada says it is "completing arrangements" to acquire a 25 per cent interest in Banque Belge pour l'Industrie in Brussels, Belgium.

W. E. McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank, said in a statement: "This new venture should significantly contribute to the continued successful growth of the Royal Bank group in the international banking field."

AT NEW YORK airlines displayed strength. Most Canadian and U.S. gold mining stocks slumped again, Homestake and McIntyre Porcupine slipping about 1½ each. Most aerospace defence stocks were soft. Steels rallied.

Prices on the American stock exchange were irregularly higher in slackened trading.

AT MONTREAL prices edged up fractionally in most sectors of the market.

AT LONDON industrials were quietly firm on the stock market today. British bonds enjoyed considerable activity in early business, with prices rising by as much as ⅝ in places, but disappointment with a decision not to change the bank rate later brought a general easing from best levels.

Dollar stocks again were strong, following the further rise on Wall Street. The dollar premium climbed to a new peak of 35½ per cent.

Ford Plants Shut Down By Strike

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Co. of Canada's Oakville, Windsor and St. Thomas plants were shut down today as workers continued a wildcat strike that started in Oakville Wednesday.

Pickets were at the gates of the three plants which represent the major part of Ford's Canadian operation.

The wildcat strike involves 5,646 workers at the company's Oakville plant, 4,177 in Windsor and 1,033 in St. Thomas.

The strike started when day-shift workers in Oakville walked off the job Wednesday afternoon to protest the postponement of a strike deadline from 10:30 a.m. today to 10:30 a.m. Monday.

It spread Wednesday night to the Windsor workers who set up picket lines at the end of the night shift. The St. Thomas workers joined the strike today when they walked off the job minutes after the day shift started at 7 a.m.

Earlier reports today said the Oakville workers returned to work but a company spokesman said only 100 non-union probationary employees entered the plant today.

Ford has a car and truck assembly plant at Oakville, a car assembly plant at St. Thomas, and a foundry, engine plant and transmission and chassis plant in Windsor.

REMAIN ON JOB

In Niagara Falls, Ont., 230 workers at the company's glass fabricating plant remained on their jobs, as did 491 employees in the company's parts depots across Canada.

George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW, said in a statement today's strike deadline was rescheduled because the union wanted to include its national director in negotiations and there was not enough time to deal with all the disputes issues before the 10:30 a.m. deadline today.

He said the unauthorized walkout by all the plant's UAW members in Oakville was caused partly by the action of the company in notifying the workers of the strike postponement before union officials could explain the reasons for the delay.

LaFarge Cement Profits Show Gain of 15%

VANCOUVER (CP) — LaFarge Cement of North America Ltd. reported Tuesday that net profits of the company and its subsidiaries in 1967 increased 15 per cent to $1,687,653.

Consolidated sales also rose 15 per cent, reaching $19,360,471.

James Sinclair, chairman of LaFarge, said in his report to shareholders that part of the additional profit is due to the extra production of its suburban Richmond cement plant, the capacity of which was doubled to 3,500,000 barrels.

Mr. Sinclair said that because capacity is greater than present B.C. market potential, export markets have been sought. These markets have been found and long-term contracts starting in 1969 ensure the plant will work at close to capacity in the years ahead.

"Prospects for 1968 are good and should be even better in 1969 when the export contracts begin," the president sid.

Brazilian Power Profits Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Brazilian Light and Power Co. Ltd. had net earnings of $51,600,000 or $2.95 a share in 1967, compared with $36,400,000 or $2.10 in the previous year.

In announcing the results, the company said a full account of the year's operations will be given in the annual report to be mailed to shareholders in about a month.
